Vol. XLIX. MONDAY MORNING, JANUARY 13, 1930. C DAILY, FIVE CENTS

MISSISSIPPI RAMPANT

Rains Continue in South

Towns and Thousands of Acres Inundated in Valley States

Ohio Also Passes Flooding Stage Threatening Cities in Kentucky

MEMPHIS (Tenn.) Jan. 12. (AP)—Residents of the Lower Mississippi Valley, [illegible] that the January rise of its [illegible] crest would be only freshets had [illegible] rush vented out tonight by rains which have fallen continuously since last Monday. Enough water was in sight on the Mississippi and [illegible] to begin tributaries tonight to class as high water as a flood of no [illegible] proportions.

Reports late tonight showed towns in Arkansas, Mississippi, Tennessee and Kentucky affected by high water and thousands of acres not previously flooded by freshets were inundated.

DRIVING RAIN FALLING

Jim Truman, Ark., an oft-flooded town, the villages of Lunsfore and [illegible] had flooded streets and para[illegible] business from the St. Francis River, which was threatening the town of Lake City through an old [illegible] break.

Little Rock reported that rains which mean floods on many of its own continued to fall. A few [illegible] on the outskirts of Little [illegible] have been forced to leave [illegible] because of overflowing creeks.

There was apprehension at Henderson, Ky., as the Ohio passed [illegible] stage and flooded lands near [illegible] mouth of the Green, driving [illegible] to higher ground. At Hickman, Ky., the Mississippi was [illegible] over bottom lands.

A driving rain was falling here [illegible] tonight.

LEVEE BROKEN THROUGH

In North Mississippi the Cold [illegible] River broke through a levee [illegible] Greenshaw and about four [illegible] of extremely valuable farm [illegible] were flooded. Several negro [illegible] were removed in motor [illegible]. Coldwater, a town of 2000 [illegible] was flooded, but not [illegible] seriously.

A private levee on Colon River, near Dyersburg, Tenn., went out, and dairy families had narrow escapes. They were taken to safety in boats. Their homes were flooded.

Other levees on the Colon River, which is twelve inches higher than during the 1927 flood, were in danger. Lowlands were flooded near Kilman, Ky., at the only place the Mississippi itself was doing any damage. At Big Lake, Ark., levees around the lake were being [illegible] worked. The lake was above flood [illegible] and still rising.

Partisan Foes of President Held Up to Scorn by Chief Executive Nation's Progress Despite Them Cited in Missive to Ohio Educator

COLUMBUS (O.) Jan. 12. (AP)—The United States has swept to a mightier and mightier destiny every year since the signing of the Declaration of Independence, despite those partisans desirous that the President should fail, even if their stratagems injured the country, says President Herbert Hoover in a letter made public here tonight.

Replying to a letter of New Year's greeting from Dr. W. O. Thompson, president emeritus of Ohio State University, the nation's Chief Executive paints a plain word-picture of those who would have him fail in his task. Yet he finds much gratification in the fact that the great majority, regardless of party, wish to help him succeed.

The outstanding problem of the day, says President Hoover, is the search for, production of, and distribution of the truth, as a means of defeating half-truths, untruths and injured facts.

ENCOURAGING FACTOR

"The human flood which flows through the White House shows all the dark colorings and flotsam that you mention," continues the President. "But it is brightened more than you think by the majority who, regardless of party, genuinely wish to help the President to succeed in his task. Of course, it is true that malice sometimes is the road to newspaper headlines, and there always will be partisans desirous that the President should fail even if their stratagems injure the country, or whose daily toil is to mix mud pies. But if these blots were other than exceptions, this nation would not have swept to a mightier and mightier destiny every year since independence.

HAIR SHIRTS OF PAST

"You will know of the wearing of hair shirts in the Middle Ages by way of reminder of sins and trouble. Somewhere lately I said that every man has a few mental hair shirts and that Presidents differ only by their larger wardrobe—for certain individuals, newspapers, associations and institutions officiate as haberdashers in this regard, with a high generosity which guarantees both humility and urbanity. There is even rumor to be expected from the fact that they have no compulsory power. But above all this the President has for a few short years the opportunity to speed the orderly march of a glorious people, and the inspiration of that moving host is compensation that comes in larger measure to him than to any other man.

"You apparently penetrate the

KNIFE TO BE USED TODAY ON TUNNEY

Ex-Champion Will Lose Kidney as a Result of Dempsey's Body Blows

NEW YORK, Jan. 12. (Exclusive) Those thudding body blows Jack Dempsey inflicted on Gene Tunney when they met in Philadelphia when Jack lost his world's heavyweight title, and at Chicago, when he failed to regain it—the same devastating punches that Tunney so stoically endured to achieve and preserve a ring championship, financial independence and an heiress bride—will send him under a surgeon's knife tomorrow for an operation that is far more serious than he would have his friends and the public believe.

At 10 a.m. tomorrow Tunney will stretch his powerful frame upon an operating table in the Harkness Pavilion at Presbyterian Hospital in the New York Medical Center while Dr. Hamilton Fish prepares to cut away one of Tunney's kidneys, an operation that is seldom performed, or necessary, upon a young man in Tunney's physical condition.

Tunney went to the hospital early tonight. With him was his wife, the former Polly Lauder, Carnegie steel heiress. They went directly to the room reserved for Tunney. An adjoining room, with a door connecting the two, had been reserved for Mrs. Tunney. She will remain there for several days and it is possible the days may lapse into weeks, she was told by a member of the staff.

Tunney, according to an informant who is familiar with the situation, decided to submit to an operation as a last resort.

SIX BURN TO DEATH WHEN LAMP TIPS

Five Members of Family and Guest Die in Fire at Findlay (O.) Residence

FINDLAY (O.) Jan. 12. (AP)—Six persons, including five members of the same family, burned to death early today when fire destroyed the home of Wilson Long, twelve miles east of here.

The dead are Wilson Long, 46 years of age; his mother, Nancy Long, 78; his sister Laura, 52; a daughter, Helen, 17; a son, Leroy, 4, and a friend, Leona Ewing, 14.

Investigation disclosed that Long's sister, who was an invalid, may have upset the lamp blamed for the tragedy and, due to her helpless condition, found it impossible to spread an alarm.

The women and the girls all were sleeping on the ground floor. Long and his little son were in bed upstairs.

FLYER'S WIDOW DIES IN FIRE

MEMPHIS (Tenn.) Jan. 11—Mrs. Marguerite Grider, 40 years of age, widow of Capt. MacGavock Grider, American war flyer, said to have been the principal character of Elliott White Spring's story, "War Birds," was fatally burned late tonight when trapped in her blazing home in a residential section.

ARIZONA PAIR DIE IN SNOW

Jerome Stage Company Manager and Truck Driver Perish When Auto Stalls in Mountains

PHOENIX, Jan. 12. (AP)—Two men were found frozen to death on the Jerome highway near the summit of Mingus Mountain today and several others are missing, the victims of one of the worst snowstorms in the history of Yavapai county, according to word received here.

The dead are Timothy Kirkpatrick, 35 years of age, manager of a stage company at Jerome, and David King, 32, truck driver, also of Jerome.

Their bodies were found about 150 feet apart three miles from the place where their car had stalled in the snow.

They had left Jerome Saturday for Prescott.

MOTOR TRAFFIC TIED UP

Mr. and Mrs. Browning of Chino Valley, near Prescott, are included in those reported missing. Details are lacking as to the exact number and identity of the others missing.

Motor traffic out of Prescott was paralyzed as the storm hit with added fury late this afternoon.

Communication with Payson, located in the upper reaches of Tonto Creek, in Central Arizona, was established for the first time in forty-eight hours late today. Reports from that place say sixteen inches of snow covers the ground, and forest rangers are unable to move from their station because of the heavy fall.

RECORD SNOW AT CANYON

In Long Valley, near Payson, a record snow of three and one-half feet is said to be standing in many spots. Snow of twelve inches in depth covers the White Mountains today and road crews opening the Rice-Springerville highway for traffic reported that the region was eighteen inches under.

The heaviest snowfall in eighteen years was reported Saturday at the Grand Canyon.

From Kingman to Springerville snow varying in depth from fifteen to forty-two inches was reported.

In Southern Arizona Bisbee experienced both rain and snow during today. Rain fell in Nogales all day, making the third consecutive day that this section has been in the center of storms.

SNOWBOUND TRIO TO GET FOOD VIA AIR

Truck Fighting Its Way Toward Rhinelander and Friends in Cabin

LAS VEGAS (Nev.) Jan. 12. (Exclusive)—Efforts to get supplies to Kip Rhinelander, maritally involved scion of great wealth and Huguenot descendants, and his party, snowbound in Kip's log cabin in the mountains near here, were intensified today as the three-day snowstorm abated.

An airplane is held in readiness to fly the moment the weather permits and drop provisions. Meanwhile a rescue squad has been started out in a caterpillar truck trying to fight its way within striking distance of the camp, where Mrs. Alice Jones Rhinelander's ex-husband is believed to be undergoing severe hardships, owing to lack of supplies.

After proceeding as far as possible on the caterpillar, the rescuers will attempt to negotiate the remainder of the hard climb on snowshoes. The truck made twenty miles of the way last night, but encountered obstacles which made it seem unlikely that the rescue group will be able to reach the camp.

COLD BLAMED FOR DEATH

WALLA WALLA (Wash.) Jan. 12. (AP)—The body of a man about 55 years of age, presumably frozen to death, was found in a shack on the banks of the Snake River near here today.

SKY HIDES FATE OF PILOTS

Low "Ceiling" Balks Search for Two Aviators Lost While Engaged in Altitude Test

NEW YORK, Jan. 12. (AP)—A dense fog and lowering rain clouds that made flying almost suicidal today brought to a virtual standstill the widespread search for two flyers who disappeared Friday after they had soared aloft on an altitude flight.

At half a dozen fields in the metropolitan area airmen glanced despairingly at the lowering "ceiling" and chafed at the restraining elements which kept them from the hunt for Daniel Marra and William Kirkpatrick, the lost aviators.

Hope is rapidly waning for the pair, who took off from Farmingdale, N. Y., to determine the altitude capacity of a six-place cabin monoplane owned by the Fairchild Airplane Manufacturing Corporation, a unit of the Aviation Corporation. It is believed that a treacherous cross-wind and poor visibility caused them to lose their bearings.

Yesterday a systematic search was begun over four States and out to sea, with more than three dozen planes and many vessels co-operating. Portions of New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Connecticut and New York were scanned from the air and ships along the coast kept a vigilant watch.

From widely scattered points along the coast came vague reports that persons had seen or heard a heavy plane passing. A boy said he heard a plane land in the water near Rocky Point, L. I.; word was received that a plane had passed over Bethany, Ct., and many other "tips" were received.

Rewards totaling $1500 were posted for the finding of the plane. The Fairchild company offered $1000 and $500 was offered by Mrs. John Kirkpatrick of Bloomfield, N. J., mother of one of the airmen.

Kirkpatrick and Marra were experienced pilots with considerable training in test work.

Kirkpatrick is 26 years of age. He is an aeronautical engineer, having graduated in 1923 from Massachusetts Institute of Technology, where he made a special study of chemistry. He lives with his mother at Bloomfield, N. J.

Marra, who recently joined the Fairchild company as test pilot, was an army-trained flyer. He was a graduate of Kelly Field and had done advanced work at McCook Field.

Fifteen Hundred Marooned in Calaveras County as Snowstorm Rages

High Winds Cause Damage in Many Places Amid Wild Flurries

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 12. (Exclusive)—With 1500 motorists marooned in Calaveras county, telephone trunk lines down and heavy damage done by wind in several places, an unprecedented California snowstorm which swept the State Saturday night and Sunday morning still was in progress late today.

The snowstorm, which started during Saturday and rose to its greatest height early today, swept from the Sierras and foothills to the Sacramento and San Joaquin valleys and through the coast area. It was recorded as the heaviest snowfall the State has experienced in years and brought to many valley towns the first snowfall in their history.

Marooned between San Andreas, Angels Camp and the Calaveras big trees were more than 1500 Sunday visitors from San Francisco, Oakland, Stockton and valley towns who had started for the annual snow frolic of Angels Camp Roosters Club at the big trees.

ONE ROAD CLEARED

Volunteer workers aiding snow plows and scrapers of the Calaveras county highway department succeeded late in the afternoon in clearing the road between the Big Trees and Angels Camp, permitting the crowds gathered for the snow frolic at the trees to make their way back to Angels Camp. They then started work on the road between San Andreas and Angels Camp, along which it is estimated more than 300 automobiles were snowbound.

No anxiety is felt for the snowbound motorists since three towns, Angels Camp, Vallecito and Murphys, are within walking distance and most of the marooned motorists "mushed" through the snow to these towns and spent the day huddled around stoves.

Butte and Tuolumne, Shasta and Trinity counties in the north, bore the brunt of the snowstorm with heavy falls in Sacramento and San Joaquin counties.

Except in the mountain and foothill regions main traveled roads generally were open during the day, according to the State Automobile Association.

HAIL IN BAY CITY

San Francisco today felt the edge of the snowstorm which swept the State when in the early morning a heavy fall of hail and sleet turned into rain. No record of snow was shown by weather bureau gauges but the hail and sleet in the outlying districts of the city was mistaken by residents for snow. The early morning found small boys, in the district west of Twin Peaks, engaged in the building of snow men, which quickly wilted under the morning sun.

Sunshine accompanied by cold blistering winds followed the hail and sleet of the morning and the forecast for tomorrow is continued cold, clearing weather.

In Sacramento and Sacramento county more than an inch of snow fell in the morning and the upper Sacramento Valley was entirely carpeted with snow.

The foothill city of Oroville in Butte county was covered with two inches of snow, the first snow Oroville has had since 1912. At La Porte, fifty miles northwest of Oroville, four feet of snow covered the ground after a raging storm in the early morning and at Storrie more than two feet of snow fell

Rain Near Total to Date Last Year; Today's Forecast Fair and Cool; Some Smudging Expected

While at least 500 persons were snowbound last night by the storm which swept the mountains from the Ridge Route south and eastward thousands of others blocked highways leading to snow-covered foothills for a day's sport in the white mantle, dodging the rain which generally pelted Southern California and aided materially in boosting the season's precipitation.

Although thousands gathered in the mountains only one fatality was attributed to yesterday's rain and snow.

Blinded by the rain that beat against his windshield, Morris Feldman, 509 South Spring street, drove his car in front of a Pacific Electric train and was killed at the Muscat crossing on Foothill Boulevard. An unidentified woman who was with him suffered a fractured skull and is not expected to live. Mrs. Feldman was on his way to visit his invalid wife at the Ramona Sanatorium in San Bernardino when the accident occurred.

BOY HIKER MISSING

A few minutes after he was missed by his five Boy Scout hiking companions in a snowstorm on Oak Flats, near the crest of the range above San Bernardino yesterday, 14-year-old Richard Crawford, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Crawford of San Bernardino, had dropped completely from sight.

The lad was walking at the rear of the single-file group of boys and it is the belief of deputy sheriffs that he slipped off the trail into the snowdrift. The five other boys returned home and when they learned Richard had not been accounted for they notified authorities.

A posse from the Sheriff's office at San Bernardino, augmented by Federal rangers, will attempt to locate the missing boy this morning.

Stricken with pneumonia in the family's little snowbound cabin, Mary Garcia, mother of two children, was reported in a critical condition last night by Forest Supervisor J. E. Elliot and Charles Doyle and Russel Smith, who trekked on snowshoes to the Garcia cabin, one mile east of Crestline, with a supply of food and medicine.

A physician will attempt to make his way through the drifts to the cabin today to attend Mrs. Garcia. It will be impossible to remove her, it was said by mountaineers in San Bernardino.

The United States Weather Bureau here reported that .61 of an inch of rain fell in the twenty-four-hour period up to 5 p.m. yesterday, raising the season's total to 4.36 inches as compared to the normal on this date of 5.47 inches and the last year total on the same date as 4.66 inches.

CLEAR SKIES FORECAST

Today will be fair and cold with moderate northwest winds, the Federal meteorologist predicted last night. Temperatures yesterday hovered between 40 and 50 deg., with the low point at 40 deg. and the high at 49 deg.

As the storm traveled southward it lessened in precipitation, reports showing that Santa Barbara received 1.11 inches while San Diego was visited with only .02 of an inch during the twenty-four-hour period ending at 5 p.m. yesterday. Inglewood and Mt. Wilson led points adjacent to Los Angeles with .75 of an inch each for the same period, while San Pedro came in with lowest record of .04 of an inch. Other low points were Burbank with .19 of an inch and Venice with .13 of an inch.

The rain was spotty, but all sec-

PLANES HUNT LOST FLYER

Four Aircraft and Many Autos, However, Fail to Find Any Trace of Maury Graham in Nevada

In a heavy snowstorm which made flying extremely hazardous, four Western Air Express planes made a fruitless search yesterday for Maury Graham, mail-plane pilot of that company, who has been missing since he left Las Vegas, Nev., at 10:10 p.m. Friday bound for Salt Lake City, where he was due at 2 a.m. Saturday.

The search planes concentrated their efforts around various points which reported the passage of an airplane early Saturday morning, but the blinding snow made visibility so poor that their mission virtually was foredoomed to failure. Nevertheless the pilots on the rescue planes stuck grimly at their task as long as there was the slightest bit of daylight. In addition, automobile searching parties slowly toured the snow-banked areas surrounding the towns from which there were reports of the plane's passage Saturday morning, but they came upon no trace of the missing flyer.

With the entire territory over which Graham's route lay virtually snowbound, officials of the Western Air Express still are confident, they said yesterday, that their pilot did not meet with any serious accident. There are numerous emergency landing fields along his route, they said, at one of which he may have descended to wait out the storm. Failure to receive any word from him is easily explainable by the fact that only a few of these emergency landing fields are equipped with a telephone.

If Graham failed to reach one of the emergency fields and was forced to descend in open country, it was said no great apprehension need be felt for his safety unless he was injured in the descent. However, he is a pilot of such long experience that it is assumed he would be able to make a perfect landing in the snow.

He is well equipped to survive fairly comfortably for three or four days in open country, the company officials said. He has his emergency rations, of course, is plentifully supplied with blankets, and has a blow torch stove. In addition, when he set out he carried a heavy lunch, which had been prepared for him by his wife. If he is marooned in open country, he can do nothing toward effecting his own rescue, as his plane is not equipped with a wireless sending set.

After the planes had concentrated their efforts most of yesterday on points adjacent to Graham's regular course, a telephone message received late in the afternoon by F. O. Lee, the company's agent at Salt Lake City, turned the search to territory that lay more than fifty miles north of the regular course. The message to Lee came from W. H. Snyder of the Bristol Mines in the Highland Range about eighteen miles north of Pioche, Nev.

Snyder told Lee, the latter reported by radio to the Western Air's local headquarters, that at about 6 a.m. Saturday an airplane circled over the mine four times, apparently looking for a landing place. Snyder said the mine crew hurriedly tried to clear off a runway for the plane, but the pilot evidently did not notice their efforts, for he suddenly headed west and disappeared over the Highland range.

On the other side of the range is a valley, with plenty of smooth ground to allow a plane to land, Snyder said, and it is believed Graham may have landed in this valley. If he did, he is in almost inaccessible country, as there are no roads leading to it. However, Snyder reported that D. H. Buehler, the mine superintendent, is organizing a searching party from the mine crew which is going to set out afoot.

Earlier yesterday the air com-

Will Rogers Remarks:

S.S. BREMEN, Jan. 12. [To the Editor of The Times:] When I was a little boy out in the old Indian Territory I remember seeing a Sheriff disarm some men one time and it always fascinated me, but I had never seen it since, so when I got to New York last Friday and they told me they was going to disarm whole nations over in London next week why I just grabbed the fastest thing there is, the Bremen, and now here I am away out in the middle of Lindbergh's ocean. All the hired help are on President Wilson's old commuting boat the George Washington. They left in December. We will pass them tonight some time. I tried to get our captain to tow 'em in. I am feeling fairly good now, but if it gets rough you won't hear from me till I get my feet on some of the King's domain.

Yours,

counties south of the Tehachapi received wettings of varying degrees.

During the twenty-four-hour period the season's total was raised in thirty communities above that on the same date last year. These included, Claremont, Garden Grove, Hermosa, Inglewood, Long Beach, Ontario, Oxnard, Pomona, Redondo, Riverside, San Diego, Van Nuys and Whittier.

The heaviest precipitation in the county flood-control districts was reported at the San Gabriel Dam intake, where 1.08 inches fell during the twenty-four-hour period.

SMUDGING EXPECTED

A sudden clearing of the skies over the Santa Paula and Ventura districts last night brought reports of a cold snap with expected smudging in citrus groves before dawn, according to E. S. Ellison, frost expert of Santa Paula.

Ellison reported that temperatures probably will drop to 27 deg. in communities west of Santa Paula, including Fillmore, Piru, Ojai, Ventura and Santa Barbara.

No smudging was anticipated in the Pomona-Riverside citrus belt, according to F. D. Young at Pomona, and Dr. Albert W. Cook at Redlands, both government frost experts.

Young said temperatures would not drop below 30 deg., although a harmless frost was expected on the ground this morning.

A thirty-mile wind whipped the ocean off San Pedro into whitecaps and drove combers over portions of the breakwater. No damage was reported from craft at any point along the coast.

Long Beach streets were flooded at the height of the storm, but property damage did not result.

MANY RESCUED

Fighting five feet of snow at Lake Arrowhead, Chief of Police Arthur Johnston of that community led a party of men on snow shoes and skis to the many cabins surrounding the lake to rescue forty children and nearly 100 women, snowbound in their cabins with little fuel and food.

The children and women are permanent residents at the lake resort. Little fear was held for their safety, but the attempt to bring them in to the comfort of the Raven Inn and the Village Inn was started when a new blizzard swooped down on the colony late yesterday.

Fifty visitors swelled the number of persons trapped by the snow at Lake Arrowhead to 250, according to telephone reports.

The supply of fuel oil in the cabins and at the village hotels cannot last longer than tomorrow.

Just as a snowplow was about to succeed in opening the Hesperia desert road from the lake, a howling wind brought snow in its teeth and chased the road crews back to camp. It will be two days at least before the workers can start again, it was indicated last night from the camp.

COUPLE SAVED

A man reported to be a Dr. Purdy, Los Angeles physician, and Mrs. Purdy, were rescued last night from the Arrowhead Highland store, one-half-mile south of the crest on the Lake Arrowhead High Gear Road, by John Dexter, mountaineer.

The couple had started from Lake Arrowhead last Thursday. Their car skidded from the road and they made their way afoot to the store. Dexter led them to more comfortable quarters at Strawberry Flats.

Dexter also treked 'cross country on snow shoes yesterday to deliver medicine to a girl marooned in a cabin at Skyland. He did not report the girl's name, but said that her condition is not critical.

No word was forthcoming from Big Bear Lake Valley, where at least 300 persons are known to be cut off from the outside world.

Two snow plows that were attempting to open the Big Bear road were caught in yesterday's blizzard and their crews had to hurry to safety.

An average of four feet of snow blanketed the crest of the San Bernardino Mountains, while the National Old Trails Highway through Cajon Pass remained clogged.

E. Q. Sullivan, State Highway Commissioner, plans to attempt to break through this morning with a strong snow plow. Many westbound transcontinental motorists are reported held up in Victorville. They will attempt to follow Sullivan through the pass this morning.

SNOW ON DESERT

Four inches of snow were reported on the desert as far down as Victorville.

Drifts towering twenty feet were encountered by W. R. Barker and Frank Azredo, Southern California Edison patrolmen, as they made their way from San Bernardino to the range summit yesterday.

Pleasure cars were turned back at Edom and only transcontinental motorists were allowed to traverse the one-way road opened through Beaumont and Banning. Thirty inches of snow were reported from these localities.

The only road open yesterday to pleasure-seekers was a one-way cut to the Big Pines Recreation Camp.

Several hundred cars—only those equipped with chains and in good mechanical condition—slewed their way upward to the camp during the morning hours.

Marooned since last Friday when wind and snow stalled their trucks at points all along the Ridge Route, nearly 100 truck drivers kept to refuge last night in gasoline stations and hotels on the mountain road.

From the Grapevine, at the northern end of the Ridge Route, to a few miles west of Saugus on the south end, trucks and a few passenger cars remained frozen in.

Drivers were optimistic of getting their vehicles started yesterday morning when the weather cleared a bit, but the boiling water that they poured in radiators could not offset the chill of a new blizzard which tore across the peaks and highways, and the trucks and drivers remained snowbound.

MANY GO TO SNOW

The Sheriff's office substation at Newhall reported that 1000 automobiles an hour passed there—bound for the deep snow of the Ridge Route foothills and loaded with passengers dressed for a day's pleasure of snowballing and skiing.

No through traffic flowed over the Ridge Route, however, and efforts to clear the road in the higher altitudes proved futile.

The afternoon blizzard so thoroughly banked the road with drifts that it is a matter of conjecture when travel can be resumed.

Telephone wires connecting the Ridge Route resorts were short-circuited and communication from one end to the other was maintained through relays to and from San Francisco.

Thousands of the Sunday motorists sought out-of-the-way mountainsides for their snow pleasure, but an equal number traveled to the Sierra Madre Mountains back of Pasadena and Monrovia.

More than 1500 visitors rode street cars to Mr. Lowe, where they took advantage of the sports offered by three feet of snow.

Hikers on the Mt. Wilson Toll Road, closed to motor traffic, did not have to climb very far to get all the snow they wanted. Twenty-foot drifts were reported at Hennenger Flats, half way up the road, where nearly 200 walkers ate their lunch and returned to the bottom safely.

Late reports from the Camp Baldy region, where thousands of persons enjoyed a realistic winter day, stated that 15,000 automobiles were turned back from the canyon at Foothill Boulevard and Mountain avenue.

No cars will be allowed to attempt to climb to the camp without skid chains, officers at the road warned.

Fresno was visited by the first actual snowstorm in half a century yesterday. Snow blanketed the town with a two-inch deposit during a three-hour storm—the first, according to old residents, since 1878.

It snowed most of the day in the Sierra Madre Mountains, while the storm held off in the San Bernardino Mountains until shortly after noon before unleashing a new attack.

Drivers Try to Dig Out of Snowdrifts

PLANES HUNT MISSING PILOT

pany had received a report of a plane being heard near Pioche at about dawn on Saturday, but not much credence was placed in the report because the point mentioned was so far off Graham's course and other reports had been received of a plane being heard at points along his course. Nevertheless, one of the planes sent out yesterday had been dispatched to that region, following the railroad to Caliente and then turning northeast to Pioche. The pilots of this plane, Alexis Klotz and Fred Kelly, had been instructed to turn down toward St. George, Utah, if their search in the Pioche region was unproductive.

St. George was the center of the search at first yesterday, for it is directly on Graham's course and a plane had been reported heard over there at midnight on Friday. There also had been a report of a plane being heard a half-hour later at Lees, Utah, which is still on the lighted airway.

Besides the plane sent to Pioche, two other planes gathered at St. George yesterday. One of them, piloted by Jimmy Carson, subsequently flew on to Salt Lake City, arriving there at 12:08 p.m. The other, piloted by Fred W. Kelly and Jimmie James, had instructions to remain in the St. George region and make it a base for short exploratory trips. The fourth plane, in which were Monte Shelton and A. W. Barrie, flew the course from Las Vegas to Salt Lake City, arriving there at 1:18 p.m. It was likely, company officials said, that all these planes will be sent to the Pioche region to run down the clew supplied by Snyder.

Miracle Play in Difficulties

DALLAS (Tex.) Jan. 11.—Two squads of police were called out last night to disperse a crowd of about 300 actors and extras who milled about the box office at Fair Park Auditorium, following the closing performance of Morris Gest's production, "The Miracle." The actors said their pay was not forthcoming.

After tonight's show a deputy sheriff served attachment papers on all properties of the production for indebtedness.

HEAVY SNOWFALL

Great Western Power officials in the Feather River Canyon plant reported that twenty-seven inches had fallen at Big Meadows, twenty-five inches at Prattville and twenty-five inches at Caribou.

On the Mt. Hamilton range, east of San Jose, and in the Santa Cruz mountains, the storm left a heavy blanket of snow and covered the hills to within a few miles of San Jose.

Except for a trace last week, the snow in Stockton was the first seen since 1921. Between 6 and 8 a.m. more than two inches of snow fell, which turned into slush as the weather grew warmer. Snow-laden trees and telegraph wires collapsed when the storm was at its height, driven by a strong southeast wind. Damage done to wire lines along Roberts Island Road southwest of Stockton is reported heavy.

At Folsom prison three inches of snow fell and prisoners permitted the freedom of the yard engaged in snowball battles while the more ambitious carved fanciful snow sculptures. Continued cold and more snow is the forecast for tomorrow in the Sacramento Valley.

In the San Joaquin Valley Stockton experienced the heaviest fall of snow on record, Fresno had two inches of snow, the first in twenty years. Turlock had the first snowfall since 1922, while Madera with four inches of snow on the streets and over the surrounding country, experienced the second snowfall in its history.

Precipitation figures as reported from northern stations up to 5 p.m. today are:

	Last 24 hrs.	Seasonal to date	Seasonal last year
Eureka	.44	10.69	16.94
Red Bluff	.60	6.34	8.80

Snow on ground at Summit 62 inches.

NEVADA ENTIRELY COVERED WITH SNOW

RENO, Jan. 12. (AP) — For the first time in the memory of old-timers this is the first winter that Nevada has been completely covered by a snow blanket. Tonight there is no spot in the State left untouched by the snow.

More snow is expected here tonight. The highest temperature reached today was 34 deg., the lowest recorded at 8 above zero.

HOOVER RAPS AT SNAGGERS

vital question of public action—the discovery and promulgation of the truth. No real believer in democracy questions the sureness of public judgment—if the public is given the truth, but there is a time element in the triumph of truth. When we look back over history we see the periods of either moral, social, economic, or political stagnation while the truth was en route and some variety of untruth occupied the scene. We can and must, however, greatly increase the production of truth and we must know the truth before the grave interest of 120,000,000 people is involved in government policies. We sometimes can speed up production before the ill-informed awakes to his opportunities. Facts are bad for his digestion and the truth makes misrepresentation uncomfortable.

TRUTH HARD TO DISCOVER

"The truth, as you say, is hard to discover; it must be distilled through the common judgment of skilled men and women from accurately and patiently collected facts and knowledge of forces before the extraction of the essence of wisdom. The materials themselves also are hard to come by; it takes time and patience, especially as our many inventions have banished forever the simple life. In the meantime a vast clamor of half-truths and untruths and injured facts always will fill the air and intoxicate emotions. The President himself cannot pretend to know or to have the time for detailed investigation into every one of the hundreds of subjects in a great people. The fine minds of our citizens are available and can be utilized for the search.

COURSE EXPLAINED

"So you will know why, when you hear of more and more temporary committees, commissions, conferences, researches—that they are not for executive action (for which they are anathema,) but are one of the sound processes for the search, production, and distribution of the truth. And they are more. They spread co-operation with government among our best citizens not only in finding the truth, but also they aid to spread it and to get action upon it.

"Our great American experiment has demonstrated that the people will of their own initiative take care of progress if the government can remove abuse and help put the signs on the road, stimulation to all of which is part of the job of President."

THOMPSON LETTER

In his letter to the President, Dr. Thompson asked that "I be indulged in extending my good wishes into a bit of counsel growing out of a half-century of observation." He wrote that "for some time we have had a highly agitated people. Men do their thinking while walking the street, newspapers in hand, publicity stirring superficial emotions has developed a mob mindedness eager to hear some new thing. The press and the pulpit resound with empty echoes of falsehood for which there is no excuse. Do not permit these things to dishearten you even though they discourage.

"The open door of the White House in which we will rejoice makes it possible for all classes to approach you. The wonder is that an President can retain his sanity . . .

"May I also add that millions who have no means of publicity—millions that lack my temerity in writing you—are not enthusiastic over the antics of the agitators but quietly believe that Mr. Garfield was correct when he said that the great issues of our country finally are settled at the fireside and in the home."

POLITICAL CHRISTIANITY HIT

Cardinal O'Connell, in Boston, Denounces Futile Attempt to Compel Virtue by Law

BOSTON, Jan. 12. (AP)—William Cardinal O'Connell severely denounced political Christianity at a service in Holy Cross Cathedral here today. He was commenting upon statements that the churches today are empty.

"Christ gave the commission to His church to teach, to influence by word and example, in His spirit of gentleness and moderation," the cardinal said. "And we see those who claim to act in His name demanding the most cruel punishment for offenses which are not forbidden by God's law, but against a doubtful human ordinance.

"When the churches are turned into political factions, when, instead of saving souls by gentle patience and sincere example of moderation in the affairs of human life, all their energy and effort are turned violently and virulently into frantic and equally futile attempt to compel virtue by statute and enforce as if it were a divine command that which at best is a temporary human experiment, when they have embittered even their friends by their fanaticism—then of course, these churches will not only be empty, but deserted, and who is to blame?

"It is the fault of fanatics pursuing a momentary phrase of life as if it were an eternal principle, assuming to judge what only God can judge. It is this quality of fanaticism in every period of history which has hurt the best influence of reason and of religion."

RAINS FLOODING EASTERN RIVERS

most of the Middle West with a treacherous coating of ice, seriously disrupting wire and transportation service and making travel dangerous.

Numerous accidents to motorists and pedestrians were reported, despite efforts of extra details of workers, engaged in restoring traffic lanes.

Thaws of the past few days added to flood hazard in several of the affected districts of Illinois, Missouri and Indiana. Rivers and numerous smaller streams were reported out of their banks inundating bottom lands.

SNOW CAVES IN WAREHOUSE ROOFS

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 12. (AP)—With the exception of Springfield, Mo., the Middle West and Southwest tonight reported that the backbone of last week's blizzard, if not broken, had been at least temporarily paralyzed by warmer temperatures, and in some sections rain fell in generous proportions.

At Springfield, in Southwestern Missouri, sleet and snow fell today, several warehouses and garage roofs collapsing under snow burdens. Yards and streets were littered with broken trees and fallen wires. Sleet snapped the electric light wires there, plunging many homes and one large hotel into darkness.

At St. Louis rain fell most of Saturday night and, after a let-up this morning, began falling again at noon today. It was cloudy and around freezing over most of Kansas today.

VERMONT FACING THREAT OF FLOOD

SWANTON (Vt.) Jan. 12. (AP)—The spectre of a destructive flood rose with the temperature here today as the Missisquoi River, backed up by an ice jam seven miles long and already flooding streets and buildings beside its banks, threatened to invade this town of 1500 persons.

The flood waters had reached a level higher than in 1927 when the State was swept by destructive floods, but yesterday the temperature dropped to below zero and last night the water level receded somewhat. Today, however, unseasonably warm weather accompanied a southeast storm and residents watched its rise with apprehension. Outside the town farmers were forced to abandon their homes.

—to the exclusive homes in PASADENA who have sought for something superior in DRY-CLEANING SERVICE

Not every home in Pasadena will be interested in this advertisement. For there are many who seek only a low price . . . and are satisfied with indifferent results.

But to others—people of discernment, who realize that there is a genuine, marked difference in dry-cleaning service as in everything else one buys—this advertisement will be welcome news.

For over 29 years, the H. J. Cook organization has served a high-class clientele. We have sought out only the society and professional people—and they, in turn, have sought out us.

There is the kind of dry-cleaning that makes a dress, suit or coat look fairly clean but feel like an apology. There is the kind of dry-cleaning that gives a garment all the freshness, character and life it had when first bought.

That has always been my objective—to do only the class of cleaning and dyeing that is satisfying in every detail—that restores the feel and looks of the fabric—that removes every stain perfectly—that restores chic and style—that takes minute care of such things as broken seams, loose buttons, belts and belt loops, buckles, etc.

Such a service is now available to you here in Pasadena. I have opened a branch store for your convenience at 606 East Colorado Street. Here your orders will be received; but the actual work will be done in our plant on West Washington Street in Los Angeles because only in this way can I be assured that our standards of workmanship will be maintained.

I have planned to give you as speedy a service as is possible with quality workmanship. One order will convince you that our prices for cleaning does show marked superiority—and that our prices, while not "cheap," are reasonable indeed, quality considered.

Typical of Cook Standards is the fact that we serve such firms in Los Angeles as these:—

PARROT FEVER CLEW SCENTED

Bacilli Believed to Be of Disease Isolated

Organism Similar to Typhoid Germs Detected

Meanwhile More Cases of Ailment Reported

BALTIMORE, Jan. 12. (AP)—Isolation of what are believed to be psittacosis bacilli by Herbert I. Ward, bacteriologist of the State Department of Health, was announced today as three more cases believed to be parrot fever were reported to the health officials. Forty-eight hours of additional study will be necessary for positive identification of the germ.

An organism, similar to that causing typhoid and para-typhoid, was found by Dr. Ward in cultures taken from the blood of three persons ill at Annapolis from the disease. The parrot fever was first reported in Maryland from the Kalmey family at Annapolis.

The illness there followed the death of a parrot bought at a Baltimore pet shop, and four employees of the shop since have become ill with what is believed to be psittacosis.

SCARED BERLINERS TAKE PARROTS TO ZOO

(Copyright, 1930, Chicago Tribune)

BERLIN, Jan. 12. (Exclusive)—The Berlin zoo was thronged all day yesterday by parrot owners who are too scared of the psittacosis epidemic to dare to keep their pets and do not have the heart to kill them. Word had gone around that the zoo would accept suspected parrots and keep them in quarantine for a period. After accepting the first dozen birds the zoo realized it would be swamped with all the birds in captivity in Berlin so it closed its gates on the desperate owners.

Similar scenes were enacted at zoological gardens in other German cities. People who in the course of years have acquired a reputation of being lovers of animals and birds were surprised to find cages with parrots and parrakeets on their doorsteps with notes asking them to be good to them because the owners are scared of them. One woman in Munich took in one of these foundling parrots. She died of pneumonia, the doctors are asserting, and not parrot disease, but Munich does not believe them.

Following the ban on imports of parrots by the German Minister of the Interior, Karl Severing, Saxony went a step further by decreeing that no parrots will be allowed to enter Saxony from other parts of Germany. Baltic ports have been notified by the Swedish government that no parrots will be allowed to enter that country.

The German ban on the importation of pet birds has resulted in the destruction of dozens of parrots and parrakeets as they encountered the ban on entering Hamburg and other ports. A West Berlin apartment house has developed several cases of psittacosis, the blame of which was laid at the door of an aviary owned by one of the tenants.

NEW CASES OF DISEASE REPORTED IN EAST

NEW YORK, Jan. 12. (AP)—Four new cases of psittacosis, or parrot's fever, were reported over the week-end by the New York State Department of Health, which said two were stricken in Yonkers and two in Johnstown. From North Adams, Mass., came a physician's report of four cases of illness attributable to a parrot.

Three other possible cases of the disease are under observation in Providence, R. I., two in New York City, four in Baltimore and three in Annapolis, Md.

DEATH NEAR PITTSBURGH LAID TO PARROT FEVER

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 12. (AP)—A death, believed by physicians to have been caused by parrot fever occurred today at Freeport, near here.

The victim was Mrs. William Shields, 51 years of age. Dr. C. A. Rogers, who performed a post-mortem examination, said her ailment had every symptom of the tropical disease. A 14-year-old daughter of Mrs. Shields is seriously ill with the same affliction.

REVOLUTION REPORTED LAUNCHED IN URUGUAY

MONTEVIDEO (Uruguay) Jan. 12. (AP)—Unconfirmed reports received here today said Nepomuceno Saravia, son of the late Gen. Aparicio Saravia, leader of the Nationalist party, has proclaimed a revolution in the Rivera Province of Uruguay, near the Brazilian frontier. The Nationalist party issued a manifesto denying support of any armed revolt. Leaders said Nepomuceno Saravia lacks followers or prestige in the party ranks.

WILD FOWL MEET SHOCKING END

Los Banos Workmen See Eleven of Flock Fall, Electrocuted

LOS BANOS, Jan. 12. (AP)—Workmen employed in well drilling for Contractor Ed Bramblet of Fresno on the Sam Hamburg ranch are telling of seeing eleven geese drop dead in the air recently.

There were fourteen geese in the flock, which had passed over a power line some 100 yards away from the workmen, and eleven of them fell dead near where the men were at work, the other three flying on.

One theory advanced is that in the heavy fog an electric current might have passed from the power line through the bodies of the birds.

YALE DEAN SPEAKS FOR MACINTOSH

Pacifist Professor Held Fine Type for Citizenship by His Employer

NEW HAVEN (Ct.) Jan. 12. (AP)—Prof. Douglas Clyde Macintosh of Yale divinity school, who has been denied citizenship because he refused to swear he would bear arms in defense of the United States, is the sort of man best suited to make an American citizen, in the opinion of Dean Luther Weigle.

Lauding his high character, Dean Weigle expressed the belief that barring of Prof. Macintosh will be a loss to the country. His application for citizenship was rejected in United States District Court because he found his first allegiance was to God and that he could not have a part in any war unless he believed its cause justifiable.

"Prof. Macintosh," said Dean Weigle, "is a man of high character and loftiest principles, one for whom I have the utmost respect. I consider him one of the finest personalities and one of the ablest teachers on my faculty."

The professor, who did Y.M.C.A. work overseas in the World War, has remained silent on the subject by advice of his attorney, John W. Davis, former Democratic candidate for President, who will carry an appeal to the highest courts.

Other members of the divinity school faculty, it is said, are in sympathy with their colleague.

New Glider Mark Set by Bowlus

SAN DIEGO, Jan. 12. (AP)—After taking off at 1:17 a.m. W. H. Bowlus broke his previous American record for motorless flying by remaining aloft in a glider for 8h. 19m. and 3s. He previously had stayed aloft 5h. and 25m., but that record was not official.

Today's flying was in full accordance with all regulations and constitutes the American glider record. He did not land today until the wind had abated to eight miles an hour. It died down completely when the glider still was 200 feet above the ground, but Bowlus landed without damage.

Auto-Bobsled Crash Kills One

SEATTLE, Jan. 12. (AP)—Ray Whitteman, 15 years of age, was killed, and two others, Ann Eggan, 18, and William Walters, 18, were injured seriously here tonight when an automobile crashed into the bobsled on which they were coasting.

Bud Jensen, 22, driver of the car, was held for investigation.

Reasons Given for Form of Parley Invitation

Adopting Position Prior to Meeting Criticised

Measures of Security Now Existing Defended

LONDON, Jan. 12. (AP)—The Foreign Office, in a reply to the French memorandum of December 20 with regard to the forthcoming naval conference, made clear some of the factors which led Great Britain to issue its invitations to the parley in the form it did. The reply was made public here tonight.

France was told that the British government "considered it would not conduce to the success of the conference if the various governments were to entrench themselves before the conference opened on positions, based perhaps on misunderstanding, from which they could not recede, nor in the invitation did His Majesty's government refer to the obligations contracted under the covenant (of the League of Nations) or to questions of national security and such considerations, because they are clearly inherent in all disarmament negotiations and must be in the mind of every nation taking part in this conference."

WARNING GIVEN

The reply held that unless reduction in naval armament is believed to be justified by the measure of security already achieved through the League of Nations and other pacts, the public expectation will be disappointed and a tendency to expansion in arms will develop where nations once more will "trust only to military preparations for security."

The French memorandum had stated that the Paris antiwar pact was based on the force of public opinion, but that its rational application had not yet been organized. It expressed doubt whether the pact can be looked upon in its present state as sufficient to guarantee the security of nations.

The French stated that it was primarily on the League of Nations covenant that they had undertaken to base the limitation and reduction of armaments. It is considered that naval limitations such as might be agreed upon at the conference are only preliminary to a course of general disarmament to be agreed upon later.

"One of the great advantages in the frequent meetings at Geneva," the text of the British reply points out, "is that governments have opportunities to understand each other's respective positions and problems.

PACT CITED

"It is true there may not yet have been devised complete machinery for sanctions to enforce the various peace agreements now in existence; but meantime much can be done and His Majesty's government places considerable trust in the fact that fifty-six countries have declared their intention to renounce war as a measure of national policy and to resort only to pacific means for settlement of international disputes.

"Unless a beginning in reduction of naval armaments is held to be justified by the measure of security already achieved through the covenant of the League of Nations, the quadruple treaty relating to the Pacific, the treaties of Locarno, signature of the optional clause of the statues of the Permanent Court of International Justice by thirty-three countries, and finally by the treaty for renunciation of war, public expectation will be disappointed. A tendency toward expansion in arms will develop and nations will be taught once more in practice to trust only to military preparations for security.

"His Majesty's government earnestly hopes the nations attending the London conference may, by agreement on reduced naval strengths, register their confidence in the great advance made, since the war in provision for national security by political agreement.

LATIN PACT MENTIONED

"His Majesty's government has learned with interest of the views of the French government regarding the desirability of a treaty of mutual guarantees and nonaggression between the Mediterranean powers. They agree that the four-power treaty relating to the Pacific which resulted from the Washington conference exerted a happy influence upon negotiations of the Washington naval treaty.

"His Majesty's government would only point out at this stage that a treaty such as that suggested by the French government appears to go considerably further than the Pacific treaty above mentioned, which provided only for the summoning of a conference for settlement of controversies and for joint consultation in the face of aggressive action.

"Inasmuch as all Mediterranean powers are members of the League of Nations it would appear facilities already exist for joint consultation in event of need. There is a great measure of security in this, but His Majesty's government will be glad to exchange views on the subject with all powers concerned."

DELEGATES MAY NEED ADDITIONAL FUNDS

S. S. GEORGE WASHINGTON (At Sea) Jan. 12. (AP)—The large American contingent now steaming eastward to the five-power naval conference in London must either conclude its labors within sixty days or receive more funds.

Budgeting of the present available funds of $200,000 tonight disclosed that even with the closest economy in London it will be entirely expended within two months. A Congressional appropriation of additional funds to carry the delegation through the conference is regarded as inevitable by financial officials of the party.

In view of indications that the parley may last three or four months it is expected that Congress will be asked for an additional appropriation, with a preliminary estimate of the amount needed being $125,000.

Aside from the transportation costs of $20,000, it is estimated that the daily expense of maintaining the delegation in London will be approximately $3000.

Eielson Search Hinges on Plane

FAIRBANKS (Alaska) Jan. 12. (AP)—Immediate plans for renewing the Eielson-Borland search depends on the serviceability of the Fairchild cabin plane in which Capt. Pat Reid and his two mechanics, William Hughes and Jim Hutchinson, landed yesterday at Unalakleet, Alaska, after being out of contact with the outside world for a week. Maj. H. C. Deckard, in charge of the rescue expedition, made this announcement from Nulato today.

Maj. Deckard said that he and Pilot Matt Niemenen will take off for Unalakleet when weather conditions permit to examine the plane and decide whether it should be returned to Fairbanks for repairs.

MIDSEA AIRDROME PLANNED

Portuguese Government Will Install and Equip Modern Station in Azores

TERCEIRA ISLAND (Azores Archipelago) Jan. 12. (AP)—Far out in the Atlantic Ocean, on the little Island of Terceira, which is one of the Azores group, the Portuguese government is erecting the first international transoceanic airdrome in the world.

American and other airmen seeking to span the Atlantic or circumnavigate the entire globe by air will find on this rocky oasis on the Atlantic a highly modern air base, equipped not only with the most approved form of slipways and hangars, but with spare parts and most skilled aviation mechanics ready to lend assistance in any direction.

Terceira Island is 3250 miles from New York and 2500 miles from Le Bourget, the great French aviation center.

This island on the Atlantic was chosen as a landing spot by Portuguese aviation experts because it is the most sheltered of all the numerous islands constituting the Azores archipelago and is free from high winds and other atmospheric disturbances which hinder an airman's path. Unlike most of the other islands in the Atlantic which are of volcanic origin and mountainous, Terceira possesses the unusual virtue of being flat and is covered with a smooth and luxuriant growth of grass.

It will require from eighteen months to two years to complete the new air station. The government already has approved the necessary credits which are not to exceed $5,000,000. In taking this step, the Portuguese government has acknowledged that modern aviation, even with highly skilled pilots like Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, and the most highly developed machines, is not altogether safe unless a series of floating airdromes such as those urged by noted American aviation experts and all along by Louis Blerlot, the first aviator to fly the British Channel, are established along the route of flight across the ocean.

It is believed by Portuguese aviation authorities that if such a landing point, as the Lisbon government now is establishing in the Azores, existed a few years ago, many of the airmen who lost their lives in attempting to bridge the Atlantic without a stop might have been saved.

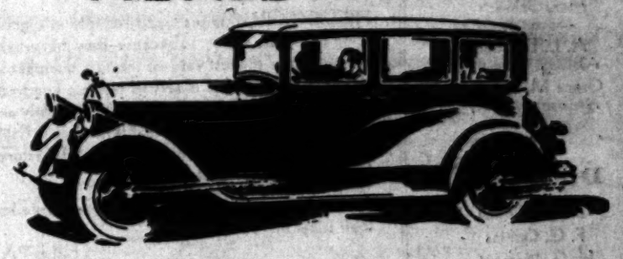
Re-Perfected

PIERCE-ARROW



It is not unusual for owners of Pierce-Arrow, series "80" models to get from 12 to 15 miles to the gallon of fuel and get it consistently.

Tire mileage shows similar economy, and maintenance costs on any Pierce-Arrow are far below normal averages.

A wheelbase of 130 inches gives plenty of room and comfort on the road. The extensive use of aluminum keeps weight low in proportion to power—that is the reason for such excellent records of fuel and tire mileages.

There is now ready for resale a Re-Perfected Pierce-Arrow "80" sedan which looks fine, performs excellently and costs little. The finish has not even been scarred or retouched. The tires are good. The car has traveled only 12,215 miles since it was purchased in 1927.

See this Re-Perfected "80"—test it as thoroughly as you wish. It will afford you comfort, style, dependable endurance and real economy—and you will be driving a PIERCE-ARROW.

Methodist Church, South, Outlines Policy

Calls for Men and Money Without Limit

Cites Government's Duty to Enforce Law

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12. (AP)—A broad legislative program, including provision of whatever legislation, money or men might be necessary to enforce prohibition, was laid down today in a statement of policy of the Board of Temperance and Social Service of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

The statement, issued jointly by Bishop James Cannon, Jr., chairman, and Dr. E. L. Crawford, secretary of the board, advocates administration of the law by its friends; enactment of the Sheppard bill to make the purchaser of liquor equally guilty with the seller; passage of such legislation as may be recommended by the Law Enforcement Commission and the extensive development of an educational policy in support of the Eighteenth Amendment.

OBLIGATION CITED

Coming on the eve of the submission to the House by its Appropriations Committee of the Treasury-Postoffice supply bill, which carries funds for prohibition enforcement, the statement calls for money to "meet the need for adequate enforcement, whatever the amount may be."

"We positively insist that when men openly flaunt their determination to violate any law of our country, the government must suppress anarchy and compel obedience to the law, absolutely regardless of cost," it says.

MONEY NO OBJECT

Outlining the program, the statement calls upon Congress "to vote for whatever measures, money and men may be necessary to obtain effective enforcement of the prohibition law, by strengthening and improving the personnel and working equipment of all governmental prohibition agencies, including the Federal courts and their officers, the customs officials, the Coast Guard, and the officers and field force of the prohibition department.

"It is not a question of dollars and cents—$25,000,000 $50,000,000, $100,000,000 or $200,000,000," it continued. "From the financial standpoint alone, the cost of enforcement is small compared with the great economic benefits which have come from prohibition, even at its worst."

The statement praised the "efficiency shown by Dr. J. M. Doran, the Commissioner of Prohibition."

BRITTEN CALLS PROHIBITION FANATICS ITS WORST ENEMY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12. (AP)—On the eve of a report to Congress by President Hoover's Law-Enforcement Commission, Representative Britten, Republican, Illinois, today denominated prohibition's "present control by fanatics, intolerants and simple-minded followers" as its greatest enemy.

Britten, who last week was chosen by the wet bloc of the House as chairman of an executive committee to nominate a chairman for the group, said he would call a meeting early this week.

POWDER SMOKE NOT MENTIONED

But Chicago Savant Cites Many Other Sources of Pall Over City

CHICAGO, Jan. 12. (Exclusive)—Smoke belching from a million locomotive and stacks and chimneys lays such a pall over Chicago that the city never gets more than one-quarter of the health-giving rays to be found in the sunshine shed upon it, according to scientists at the University of Chicago. During the period from December 1 to January 31, the city gets none of the rays, the researchers say.

The conclusions are set forth in a survey of recent experimental work, published today under the title of "Ultra-Violet Light and Vitamin D in Nutrition."

Chicago's smoke pall is more impenetrable than that over almost any other city, it is stated.

TWO-YEAR DRY SURVEY PROPOSED IN HOUSE BILL

BY LAURENCE M. BENEDICT
"Times" Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12. (Exclusive)—President Hoover's law enforcement commission would be given two years' time and $1,000,000 in expense money to make a complete investigation of the prohibition problem under a bill to be introduced in the House tomorrow by Representative A. Piatt Andrew of Massachusetts.

Upon concluding the inquiry the commission, under the bill, would report to Congress what changes, if any, it deemed necessary or advisable in the country's system of dealing with intoxicating liquors.

Although its chances of passage seem extremely slim, the proposal will receive considerable support from Senators and Congressmen who like Andrew, feel that the Wickersham commission has not addressed itself to prohibition in the thorough manner expected of it by Congress and moreover that more time is necessary if the group is to make a complete study of the question.

Senator Carter Glass, Democrat, of Virginia, author of the amendment financing the commission's work, is one who believes that the Wickersham body has shirked its prohibition responsibilities. Whether it has may be known tomorrow when the commission is scheduled to submit to Congress a preliminary report recommending certain changes in the enforcement machinery.

Dry leaders in Congress are expected to line up solidly against the Andrew proposal, and for that reason it is not likely it will receive serious consideration.

KELLOGG PACT TEETH SOUGHT

Move Planned to Harmonize League With It

Britain Will Sponsor Idea at Council Session

Meetings Beginning Today Likely to Be Dull

GENEVA, Jan. 12. (Exclusive)—Another attempt to put teeth in the Kellogg peace pact and at the same time reinforce the authority of the League of Nations to call a halt to any outbreak of hostilities between nations will be made during the fifty-eighth session of the League Council which opens tomorrow. Great Britain intends to start cogs working to revise the League covenant so as to bring the document into harmonious alignment with the Kellogg pact.

Britain points out that Article 15 of the covenant tacitly permits warfare in case peaceful methods fail, and insists that the present-day world peace spirit demands that the article be rewarded in such a manner that a definite renunciation of war will be included.

DETAILED PLAN DESIRED

During the forthcoming session the British delegate will present the proposed method of procedure in the hope that a detailed plan can be worked out so that the reframed article can be accepted at the next assembly.

Britain also is expressing active interest in the tariff truce and despite the fact that it is not as much a free trade country as formerly it intimates that it is willing to keep with tariff agreements which are aimed at improving international trade. This attitude on the part of Britain lends support to the ambitious plans of Aristide Briand, French Foreign Minister, for the creation of a United States of Europe. It is expected that M. Briand will bring up his issue again during the present session. British support may go a long way toward building up some sort of a basis for a general continental agreement.

SESSIONS TO BE DULL

Outside of these points the council agenda gives promise of producing a series of dull, unimportant discussions. Sandwiched in between The Hague reparations parley and the London naval conference, the council meeting is lost in the international shuffle as many delegates will leave in the middle of the week for the all-important London meeting. Among these will be Arthur Henderson, British Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, who is due in London Thursday morning to wind up preparations for the conference.

All the delegations for the League session reached here before tonight. Because Mr. Henderson feared violence to the Italian delegation headed by Dino Grandi, the entire Geneva police force turned out to guard the representatives when they arrived tonight and detectives are stationed at the Hotel Des Bergues, where the Italians are staying.

The accident occurred last night.

LONE WOMEN BARRED AT TABLES IN MONTE CARLO

MONTE CARLO (Monaco) Jan. 12. (Exclusive)—The decision which has just been announced by the authorities of the famous sporting club, that all unaccompanied women be excluded from the baccarat room from now on, is causing consternation in social circles here. Gen. Politzoff, secretary of the club, has revoked all season cards which have been given to single women, and has declared that only ladies whose husbands or gentlemen friends play also, will be permitted to take their places at the green tables.

A storm is raging at Monte Carlo where the members of the female sex constitute more than 50 per cent of those who gamble. No direct reason has been given for this sudden gesture, although Gen. Politzoff admitted today that the Sporting Club has recently needed a little "weeding." It seems that the middle classes are getting better represented in the clubs and salons every year, and the aristocratic members are registering serious objections. The new regulation is planning to keep out dowdy evening gowns.

It is understood, of course, that single women whose social standing is known, will not be affected.

The situation is ticklish as it is feared that the women whose cards have been revoked might demand entrance or cause scenes.

Survey Reveals Increase in Expenditures in 1927

NEW YORK, Jan. 12. (AP)—The total cost of government in the United States, covering the aggregate expenditures of Federal, State and local governments, for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1927, amounted to $12,179,000,000, according to a survey announced by the National Industrial Conference Board.

The total outlay for 1926 was $11,616,000,000, the survey pointed out, stating that the increase in 1927 was incurred mainly by local governments.

STOUT TOSSES HAT INTO RING

He Will Enter Race for State Controller

Nomination on Republican Ticket Sought

Sacramento Man Active in Veteran Circles

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 12. (Exclusive)—George M. Stout, secretary and member of the California Veterans' Welfare Board, today announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for State Controller at the August primary election. Sout said:

"During the last eight years, I have administered the distribution and expenditure of more than $35,000,000 of public moneys for relief of war veterans, without loss to the State of California or cost to the taxpayers, and without criticism from the public.

SERVED VETERANS

"As the executive secretary of this board, I have been favored with an exceptional opportunity to become familiar with the tax systems and fiscal business of California. My knowledge of accountancy and of public records will be most valuable and particularly essential in performing the duties of State Controller.

"The need of close attention to the cost of government is exceedingly important to all taxpayers and I pledge myself, if elected, to justify public confidence by a practical and economical administration of this office, and to exercise every legal and practical safeguard over the expenditure of the tax money of California."

HOME IN CAPITAL

Stout's home is in Sacramento. He is 39 years of age, and was educated at the University of Utah. He entered military service of the United States as a private in 1917, served eighteen months with the American Expeditionary Forces in France and was discharged in 1919 as a lieutenant.

When California decided to embark upon its program of State aid to war veterans in purchasing farms and homes, Stout was active in behalf of the bond issue. In 1922 he became assistant secretary of the Veterans' Welfare Board and a year later was made secretary and a member of the board. In this position he has served continuously for eight years under three succeeding governor. He is a member of the American Legion.

WORLD BANKER LIST OFFERED

One of Five Americans Will Rule New Institution

THE HAGUE, Jan. 12. (AP)—A list of names of five Americans was brought here today by Melvin A. Traylor of Chicago and Jackson E. Reynolds of New York to submit as candidates for president of the bank for international settlement. Neither of the American reparations representatives would give any indication as to the men they would indorse to the bankers' committee.

The hurry-up call issued yesterday by Philip Snowden, British Chancellor of the Exchequer, and Henri Cheron, French Finance Minister, speeded up the work of the second Hague conference. Big and little delegations gave up their week-end to spend all today in negotiations seeking to end the work preliminary to adoption of the Young plan.

Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reichsbank, is expected tomorrow morning so that, with the American delegates already here, final arrangements for putting the International Bank into operation may be effected at the same time as the signature of the protocol adopting the Young plan.

The Germans and French had three conversations concerning sanctions, or guarantees of German payment, during the day. The result was withheld.

SILVER SLUMP WORRIES CHINA

Minister of Finance Hurries to Seek Counsel

[Copyright, 1930, Chicago Tribune.]

SHANGHAI, Jan. 12. (Exclusive) T. V. Soong, Minister of Finance, hurried here from Nanking yesterday and has been in conference with local bankers as well as members of the American Kemmerer Financial Commission.

The conferences are continuing in an attempt to find a solution of the serious financial crisis due to the slump in the value of silver, which threatens to precipitate Chinese currency in the same direction as the old German mark and the Russian ruble.

Mr. Soong refused to issue a statement tonight further than to say that the conference will continue tomorrow and that he hopes that some decision might be reached by tomorrow morning, when the local gold exchange opens. The government's resolution ordering the cessation of dealings on the gold exchange was not enforced, but the dealings yesterday morning were more orderly, the silver market holding steady.

Reports from Peiping and other points state that distress is increasing due to the rise in prices of commodities. The merchants are aviating their prices to try to offset the silver slump.

RADICALS GAIN SENATE SWAY

Concessions May Continue Their Hold for Years

Effects on G.O.P. Expected to Be Far-Reaching

Outcome of Situation Now Matter of Conjecture

BY ARTHUR W. CRAWFORD

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12. (Exclusive)—Concessions just made by Republican leaders to the radicals may insure their retention of the balance of power in the Senate for years to come.

Far-reaching effects upon the future of the Republican party are anticipated and as a result a virtual abandonment of all efforts to keep the radicals from constantly strengthening themselves under time-honored seniority rules.

Whether the outcome will be a modification of party policies to bring about harmony or whether there will be a constantly widening cleavage within Republican ranks cannot be foretold now.

INDEPENDENT COURSE

The radicals will continue on an independent course, joining forces with other groups in opposition to administration or other policies, but seldom being willing to compromise sufficiently to be on the winning side of an affirmative proposal.

The latest concessions made to the radicals were intended to avert controversies threatened in the immediate future and to smooth the path for tariff legislation. The long-range effect is likely to increase the effectiveness of the radicals as trouble makers for the Republican party. Without any particular regard for their party organization and usually favoring policies in conflict with those of President Hoover, the radicals are expected to make campaign ammunition for the Democrats and may cause defections which will contribute to Democratic successes in elections.

EFFECT SHOWN

Just what a radical balance of power on committees means is shown by developments in connection with the lobby investigation. The coalition of Democrats and radicals was responsible for the adoption of a resolution directing the Judiciary Committee or a subcommittee thereof to conduct the inquiry. Senator Norris, Republican, Nebraska, has been permitted by the regular Republicans to retain the chairmanship of this committee despite the fact that he openly supported Alfred E. Smith for President in 1928. Other Republican members of this committee include two radicals, Senators Borah, Idaho, and Blaine, Wisconsin.

The Judiciary Committee is made up of ten Republicans and seven Democrats. The radicals by combining with the Democrats can control the committee.

FINANCE GROUP

The Finance Committee, which handles tax and traffic legislation will have a radical member in Senator La Follette, Republican, Wisconsin, for the first time since the death of his father. This committee includes eleven Republicans and eight Democrats. If Senator La Follette and either Senator Couzens, Republican, Michigan, or Senator Thomas, Republican, Idaho, join with the Democrats, the regulars lose control.

Two radicals, Senators Brookhart, Republican, Iowa, and R. B. Howell, Republican, Nebraska, hold the balance of power on the Interstate Commerce Committee, which will consider railroad consolidation and other important legislation. Senator Howell is chairman of the Committee on Claims.

BANKING COMMITTEE

On the Banking and Currency Committee, before which measures aimed at Wall street speculation as well as branch banking and other important bills are pending, Senator Norbeck, Republican, South Dakota, a radical, is chairman, and two other radicals, Senators Brookhart and Blaine, are members and hold the balance of power.

The radicals demonstrated their grip on the Committee on Agriculture early in the present Congress by incorporating in the farm-relief bill as reported to the Senate an export debenture provision. The balance of power on this committee is held by four radicals, Senators Norris, Norbeck, Frazier, of North Dakota and Shipstead.

SHIFTS MADE

The Military and Naval committees now have only one radical member each, due to the fact that one radical has just been shifted fro meach in getting what they regard as better assignments, Senator McMaster, Republican, South Dakota, is on the Military Committee and Senator Schall, Republican, Minnesota, on the Naval Committee.

Senators Schall, McMaster and Frazier hold the balance of power on the Committee on Postoffices and Post Roads. Senator G. P. Nye, Republican, North Dakota, is chairman of the Committee on Public Lands and Surveys which conducted the Teapot Dome oil investigation and with Senator Norbeck holds the balance of power. On the Committee on Indian Affairs Senator Frazier is chairman and with Senators Schall, McMaster and La Follette holds the balance of power. Senator Schall has just obtained the chairmanship of the Committee on Interoceanic Canals.

Dairy Product Glut Reported

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12. (AP)—Warning that there is a temporary overproduction of butter and dairy products, the Federal Farm Board today advised farmers to use their own produce in their homes.

Approving resolutions prepared by its dairy advisory commodity committee, the board advised farmers generally to "consider carefully production methods from an economical and profitable standpoint."

"With the above in mind, we recommend the sale for slaughter of all low-producing and unprofitable cows.

"The price of butter now is below the cost of production," it added.

DEATH AND DAMAGE IN ENGLAND'S STORM

LONDON, Jan. 12. (AP)—Many casualties and severe damage were reported early today as the result of a severe gale which struck England yesterday. It caught the weather experts unawares. The wind was felt in Ireland and Southwest England. Its full fury was not felt here until late at night. There were three deaths from falling trees and signboards. Several roads were blocked by tree trunks. A boy watching the launching of a lifeboat at Ramsgate was blown off the pier and drowned.

STEEL EXECUTIVE DIES OF PLEURISY

CHICAGO, Jan. 12. (AP)—The death of William Lawall Jacoby, 56 years of age, steel and financial executive, here Saturday was made known today. Pleurisy was the cause. He had served as general manager of the La Trobe Steel Company, president of the American District Telegraph Company in New York and vice-president of the A. G. Becker & Co., bankers.

TIME AND QUAKES RE-CREATE MEXICO

Capital Strange Mixture of Past and Modernism

(The new Mexico, the Mexico of Calles, Portes Gil and President-elect Ortiz Rubio is playing an important role and will play a more important one in the new world affairs. It is a different Mexico; how different is told in a series of dispatches of which this is the sixth. Another will be published in an early issue of the Times.)

BY HUBERT W. KELLEY

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 12. (NANA)—It is morning in Avenida Juarez in the heart of the continent's oldest and best-known city. The pale sunlight tinges the bleached bones of ancient domes and towers. It warms the delicately tinted facades of newer buildings. It glistens on the marble statues along the wooded plaza of the Alameda.

The ancient buildings, dimly ornate with Spanish carving, are leaning, their cornices wavering, their faces cracked with fissures. Earthquakes, the soft yielding subsoil of the city and the exactions of time are razing those memorials of Spanish grandeur as all things venerable have been cast down by the revolution. But those buildings will fall only to make way for new and five-story buildings of concrete and steel, even as the traditions of Cortes and Diaz have fallen to make way for the people. But it all takes time and earthquakes.

STREAMS OF TRAFFIC

Three or four streams of traffic ply the thoroughfare, hundreds of Ford taxis, in which one may ride any reasonable distance for two-bits American; innumerable busses, the limousines of the wealth, truckloads of beans, charcoal and flowers, and, near the curbing, the modern American street cars, which carry one tremendous distances for 5 cents.

But many prefer walking to riding in the City of Mexico, even if too vigorous exercise in the rarefied air does make even the native pant for breath. And so the broad sidewalks swarm with natives in European dress, reading the morning newspapers as they stroll, scanning books in the spirit of the new educational movement, or loitering at the modern shop windows, the steel shutters of which are rolled up at a late morning hour.

RELIC OF PEONAGE

In front of the stone ribs between the shop windows the innumerable itinerant merchants who overswarm the city with their trays and tripods. They stand sometimes a dozen to a block, even on such a Fifth avenue as the beautiful Avenida Juarez. Shoe strings or carmels, ice-cream cones or excellent cigarettes, opals, topazes, a card of pearl buttons?

Some of the merchants are trotting through the pedestrian crowd, weaving as they go, but never unbalancing the tray of wares on their heads, bound for some choice corner a mile away. The porters, the burden-bearers, run, too, carrying upon their backs huge cases of merchandise, sacks of beans, enormous baskets of carnations and lilies, sewing machines and all manner of cargoes better suited to a truck.

The toothless old woman begs, the barefoot boy Indian begs, the tiny boy begs with his first few words of English.

They trot, heads down, gray beards upon hairy chests, their rude wooden soles beating a tat-tat-tat upon the stones. They are the creatures of Markham's "Man With the Hoe," terrible beasts of mec with the minds of children and the dull eyes of animals. Their feet are like hoofs, their short gnarled arms are incased in metal bracelets and wrappings of hemp. They alone in the Avenida Juarez preserve the memory of peonage.

LOTTERY SELLERS

A French horn sings a ta-te-ya-ta, a loudspeaker over the door of a radio store shouts the raucous strains of American jazz, broadcast from a talking machine record. A boy hisses to another across the street, as they hurry to school. The tantalizing whine of a mouth organ attracts attention, and one must turn to look at the miserable blind one who sits cross-legged on the cold sidewalk. He is a young man, lightly bearded, a rimless felt hat on his shaggy head, a filthy sarape over his shoulders, his denim trousers ragged, his feet bare. He is playing a sentimental ballad about a palpitating heart and an unrequited love.

"Senor, in the name of sweet heaven—"

But pass on. There are thousands of others. Then the coat tail is tugged. A thin childish voice begs:

"Lottery ticket, senor. It is a lucky number. A Toston—two-bits. That is all. And perhaps it will bring you wealth. Please, senor. Please. Please. Please."

Pass on. Let the poor little girl beg. Her large dark eyes are appealing; she is very frail. That thin black shawl will not keep her warm. But pass on. Thousands of others are selling tickets for the national lottery. They dangle the blue and red coupons before your eyes a dozen times in a block. The toothless old woman begs, the barefoot Indian begs, the tiny boy begs with his few words of English: "Hollo. Vary chep. Cohm ohn." It all happens on the beautiful avenue.

MUST HAVE SHINE

The pale sun is filtering through the beautiful trees of the Avenida Juarez. Students sit on the ornamental iron benches along the sidewalk and read, while bootblacks shine their shoes. One must have a glassy shine in the City of Mexico, even if one has no shirt. All up and down the Avenida front the bootblacks, their parlors slung on their shoulders, ply their trade. Just a little more than 5 cents, American, and the shoes twinkle ebony. Lottery salesmen, tray merchants, bootblacks, and taxi drivers—is there anything else in the City of Mexico?

A crone, a mere huddle of bones under a black shawl, tends her charcoal stove, no bigger than a bucket, at the street corner. Her face is weasened and very small; her fingers are talons encrusted with dirt. With strangely piercing eyes she surveys the morning pedestrian, and in the presumption that she can spot a hungry one, shrills out to him.

"A tortilla, cheap."

The hungry one usually hears her not. Perhaps one in a day takes advantage of the unusual bargain from the simmering spicy dish over the ruddy charcoal.

The blue-helmeted traffic patrolman on his footstool in the center of the intersection blows a bluejay note on his pitch pipe, and the yellow busses, the red street cars, the gray fords—they seem to be preferred—the porters with burdens, the ice-cream cone merchant with his red and yellow cart, the black police patrol wagon with a load of unsmiling patrolmen, all heave forward recklessly. Pedestrian, watch for your life!

ONLY FLAPPER RUNS

Who runs at the crossing at San Juana De Letran? Senorita stenographer, a new product of old Mexico, with black bobbed hair, the short skirt of an American flapper, rouge-bow lips, long finger nails, stained red, and large Spanish earrings, the only Mexican touch to her apparel.

Senor professor, his nose slicing open a book on the Aztec language, in the spirit of the revolution. Senor American business man with a haggard face and a cynical smile. He has been up too late at one of his countrymen's clubs, howling for the days of Porfirio Diaz, when the carriage wheels of American concessionnaires rolled over the backs of peons.

Senor Mexican salesman, alert and "high-powered," about to deliver an oration in the stately office of some ancient building on the subject of life insurance, an American motor car, a vacuum cleaner or a radio.

It is a strange metropolis, a mingling of sixteenth century Madrid, an Indian village, a modern American city and more.

One gets bits of it all and not too much of it on the Avenida Juarez in the morning.

EAST MEETS WEST AT RITES

Christian Burial Service Read in English Over Body of Charlie Boston, Founder of Tong

NEW YORK, Jan. 12. (AP)—In the funeral chapel of the undertaking concern Chuan Seng, which means "may you live a long and happy life," a slim young Chinese Presbyterian clergyman with a Harvard accent read in English a Christian burial service today over the body of Charlie Boston, one-time Mayor of New York's Chinatown, who died more than a week ago. He was 67 years of age.

Led by an Italian band playing occidental funeral marches, a long and complicated procession of motor cars wound itself patiently through the narrow, but no longer colorful, streets of Chinatown and sped on to a cemetery on the outskirts of Brooklyn.

And there, with the ancient ceremonies of his fathers, somewhat abbreviated and modified, however, they consigned to a temporary grave the remains of Li Quong Young, also known as Charlie Boston, founder of the On Leong Tong. Eventually his body will be taken back to the land of his ancestors.

Paradoxically, in Chinatown itself the customs and spirit of the Occident appeared to dominate.

There were Christian prayers because when Li Quong Young became Charlie Boston he forsook the Confucianism of his fathers. In the garb of a western business man, Charlie Boston lay in a bronze casket.

In the drab and conservative apparel of the Occident, members of the On Loeng Tong from all over the country, including a delegation from San Francisco stood about the casket.

Outside in the rain, hundreds of other Chinese stood in stolid rows, but among all the hundreds of his countrymen who gathered for Charlie Boston's funeral, not one had a queue. Not one wore velvet slippers.

There was a Chinese band—faithfully, if indifferently—making loud noises on cymbals to scare away evil spirits. But the players rode in a municipal bus. And they wore derby hats. And there was a man at the head of the procession throwing out bits of paper on which were lettered prayers to frighten away bad spirits. But he rode in a limousine.

THE NEW OAKLAND 8

$1045 AND UP

General Motors' Lowest-Priced Eight . . . . . the Car with Superior Performance

Today a new eight-cylinder motor car makes its appearance. It is the newest General Motors eight and by several hundreds of dollars the lowest in price. It is the most recent accomplishment of a staff of engineers with sixteen years' experience in designing fine eight-cylinder cars. It is the New Oakland Eight with smart new bodies by Fisher.

Superior Performance

The New Oakland Eight develops 85 horsepower and is the first stock car of its size and weight to employ an engine of such high power. Since performance depends largely on the ratio between horsepower and weight, the New Oakland Eight is exceptionally fast and powerful. Oakland produces one horsepower to 37 pounds of car weight. That's why few cars are as fast. That's why few, if any, can pass it on the hills. That's why it accelerates so rapidly in traffic. Truly it is a car with superior performance.

Eight-Cylinder Performance

Exceptional smoothness and flexibility are other prominent characteristics of the New Oakland Eight. It has all the smoothness which results from the overlapping power impulses inherent in eight-cylinder engine design. In addition, it enjoys exclusive mechanical advantages which make it even smoother and more delightful to drive.

Sound Basic Design

Because of their wide experience with eight-cylinder engines, the men who developed the New Oakland Eight were able to produce a car remarkably sound in its basic design. Several of the engineers who participated in creating General Motors' first eight back in 1914 were responsible for the development of the New Oakland Eight. To this latest task they brought a wide knowledge of eight-cylinder design. It is reasonable to expect that the Oakland is a finer eight because of this fact.

Moderate Price

We believe you are going to like the New Oakland Eight. We believe it will appeal to you all the more forcibly when you consider its very moderate price. You will find its many new features worthy of a thorough inspection. And a demonstration will reveal how well it merits the description, "the car with superior performance."

The New Oakland Eight, $1045 and up, f. o. b. Pontiac, Michigan, plus delivery charges. Lovejoy Hydraulic Shock Absorbers included in list prices. Bumpers, rear fender guards and spring covers extra. General Motors Time Payment Plan available at minimum rate.

NEW SERIES PONTIAC BIG 6

A Famous Name—A Finer Car . . . Introducing Important Improvements

When an announcement regarding Pontiac is made, it carries a message of great importance to everyone interested in low-priced six-cylinder cars. This has been true from the very beginning of Pontiac's career. The announcement of the first Pontiac in 1926 brought to the low-price field a new order of beauty, performance and reliability. And each Pontiac announcement since that time has introduced a car which represented an improvement even over its own highly regarded predecessors.

Important Improvements

Now comes the New Series Pontiac Big Six—an even finer car with a famous name. It retains all those excellent qualities which have been responsible for Pontiac's success in the past. And in addition it introduces many refinements in smoothness of performance, in comfort and safety.

New bodies by Fisher make this latest Pontiac Big Six more beautiful than ever. A new belt moulding, which encircles the car, emphasizes its stream-line length and lowness. A choice of attractive new Duco colors is available at no extra cost.

Greater Smoothness and Safety

The smoothness of Pontiac's 60-horsepower engine is further increased by the use of improved type rubber engine mountings. Pontiac's large non-squeak four-wheel brakes have been made even more efficient. A new sloping non-glare windshield also adds to its safety. Greater-than-usual handling ease is accomplished through the use of a new type of steering mechanism. Improved Lovejoy Hydraulic Shock Absorbers bring about a notable increase in riding comfort.

Time-Tried Performance

In speed, power and pick-up the New Series Pontiac Big Six continues to uphold the Pontiac reputation for spirited performance. And Pontiac's economy and long life remain, as ever, the pride and satisfaction of everyone who drives the car.

When Pontiac is improved upon, the resulting car merits the careful consideration of everyone who is interested in a low-priced six. Come now to our showroom and inspect this finer car with a famous name—the New Series Pontiac Big Six.

The New Series Pontiac Big Six, $745 and up, f. o. b. Pontiac, Michigan, plus delivery charges. Shock absorbers standard equipment. Bumpers and spring covers at slight extra cost. General Motors Time Payment Plan available at minimum rate.

Consider the delivered price as well as the list (f. o. b.) price when comparing automobile values . . . Oakland-Pontiac delivered prices include only authorized charges for freight and delivery and the charge for any additional accessories or financing desired.

THE SON OF TARZAN

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

During these months, Meriem slowly learned the rudiments of apes' language, perfected herself in jungle craft and often now helped Korak and Akut while they hunted. The great anthropoid had come to accept the girl on a footing of equality, though for the most part he avoided her. The youth was always kind to her. He had constructed a tight little shelter in the swaying branches. Here she slept. The Killer and the ape perched near by.

High in her leafy bower, Meriem no longer feared the leopard, though there was always Hista the snake to strike terror to one's soul and the great baboons living near by who barked at any of the trio when they passed near them. After the construction of the shelter the activities of the three became localized. They ranged less widely, always returning to their own tree at nightfall. A river flowed near-by. Fish and game were plentiful.

Existence settled into the routine of sleep and food. They looked no further ahead than today. Korak had given up hope of returning to civilization. He had wandered so far inland that now he knew he was completely lost in the mass of the jungle. Since the coming of Meriem he had found the thing he most had missed—human companionship. They were friends, companions, happy and innocent children leading an idyllic life together.

The little girl idolized Korak as she might an older brother. Love was a thing unknown to either, but as the youth neared manhood it was inevitable that it should come to him, as it did to every other savage male. Meriem could now swing through the trees with the agility of the Killer himself, surefooted, lithe and fearless. Korak was very proud of her and even old Akut would grunt his approval of this little "human she."

STORM SENDS SCORES OF LEADING STARS SKY HIGH

Espinosa, Armour, Coleman and Cruickshank Tie for Third With 151; Walter Hagen Picks Up

BY EDWARD LAWRENCE

And the rain poured down!

Pouring, sliding, squishing, squashing down the soggy fairways of Riviera Country Club, Densmore Shute of Columbus, O., between the rain drops yesterday to score 38-36—74, which, with 73 of Friday gave him a thirty-six hole total of 147, and a two-stroke lead over the field in the wettest Los Angeles $10,000 championship in history.

And the rain poured down!

Gushing, roaring streams, dodging drops as big as saucers, and fighting an icy wind that stung through soaked clothing like the crack of a lash, Horton Smith, that gangling youngster from Joplin, Mo., played inspired golf through the heart of a raging storm to score 36-41—76, and finds himself only two strokes back of Shute with 73-

BLEAK DAY FOR STATISTICIANS

Burden of Proof Rests on Shute's Shoulders

Statistically speaking it was a mighty bleak day down in Santa Monica Canyon yesterday where the world's most famous golfers battled the elements in their fight to gain first honors in the Los Angeles open golf tournament.

We all might as well admit it—the weather was awful. Even such veteran golfers as John Black, MacDonald Smith and others stated they had never played under

BERG FACES CANZONERI IN FEATURE

Featherweights Hold Spot Among Fighters of Nation During Week

NEW YORK, Jan. 12. (AP)—Madison Square Garden shelves the heavyweight temporarily this week to make way for a lightweight duel between Tony Canzoneri, erstwhile featherweight champion, and Jack (Kid) Berg, bruising English fighter. This ten-round encounter, set for Friday night, heads the national boxing schedule for the next six days.

TONY CANZONERI

Canzoneri and Berg are two of Sammy Mandell's leading challengers for the 135-pound crown. Canzoneri already has had one shot at the title but muffed his opportunity when he was outpointed by the clever Rockford (Ill.) title-holder at Chicago. Berg, whose rough-and-ready style of milling has won him thousands of friends among New York's boxing faithful, has campaigned with brilliant success in this country.

Harry Carlton, Jersey City lightweight, meets Sammy Dorfman of New York in the semifinal, while Herman Perlick, Kalamazoo (Mich.) featherweight, tangles with Jake Zeramby, Boston southpaw, in the first ten.

Al Singer, Bronx lightweight idol, comes back to the wars in a ten-round bout against Georgia Day,

GARDEN HEADS FOIL DEMPSEY

Rights to Both Ball Parks Acquired by Moguls

Polo Grounds and Yankee Stadium Leased

Former Heavyweight King Shut Out by Move

BY JACK FARRELL

NEW YORK, Jan. 13. (Exclusive) Matching its millions against the magnetic personality of Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion, who had visions of promoting outdoor boxing bouts on a major league scale, in these parts next summer, the Madison Square Garden Corporation today blasted the old Manassa Mauler's high hopes by acquiring a one-year lease on both Yankee Stadium and the Polo Grounds for fight-producing purposes.

HUMBERT J. FUGAZY

And by way of making sure that no individual promoter or rival corporation shall rise to dispute his position as dictator of outdoor boxing presentations here next year, William F. Carey, president of the corporation, obtained also an option on the big ball parks for the 1931 season as well, according to his announcement.

Although the financial considerations involved have not been revealed, it is understood that the great triumvirate, that is to say, the Garden, the Yankee and the Giant ball clubs, agreed to continue on the same profit-sharing basis that prevailed in the last two years. This means that the ball clubs will share equally in 10 per cent of the net returns regardless of which park the Garden holds fights in. It is said that each ball club received $60,000 last summer under this agreement.

If Dempsey is in earnest about competing with the Garden for outdoor fistic plums here his only hope now is Ebbets Field in Brooklyn, and in order to get that he will have to match his wits against those of Humbert J. Fugazy and a commission headed by Billy Duffy, well-known Broadwayite, who now are having a merry little tiff of their own for a season's lease on that ball orchard.

That ten-round brawl between Paulino Uzcudun and Otto Von Porat at the Garden the other night was a real heavyweight elimination party, inasmuch as both men fought themselves right out of the picture. By striking a defensive pose from the second round on through the fight Von Porat ruined himself as a New York attraction and pulled the structure of good will and sympathy that he had built up in the Scott fight right down over his ears. In victory, Paulino proved that if it required nothing but a fighting heart and dogged determination to remain in the heavyweight swim he yet might stroke his way to the top of the heap. But Paulino's left hook lost its potency. If it hadn't he would have knocked Von Porat out.

Nine of the sixteen major-league baseball clubs will go through their training sessions in Florida this year—Athletics, Yankees, Tigers, Browns, Red Sox, Cardinals, Dodgers, Phillies and the Braves.

Rain Halts Many Sport Tilts Here

The Old Rainmaker put the damper on a good many of the Southland's sports events yesterday. Polo at Midwick between Santa Barbara and a Purple four was put over for the time being because of the wet condition of the field, as were matches at the Uplifters and the Hollywood clubs. Four soccer tilts were postponed as was invitational tennis tournament at the Midwick Country Club. Golfers and the swans at the various city parks seemed to be the only active groups yesterday.

FONSECA HAS BEST AVERAGE

Cleveland First Baseman Wins Batting Crown With Recod Low Mark

BY PAUL MICKELSON

Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO, Jan. 12. (AP)—Lewis Fonseca, discarded to the minors four years ago by the Philadelphia Nationals, won the 1929 American League batting championship with the lowest average since Tyrus Raymond Cobb turned the trick way back in 1914.

JIMMY FOXX

The veteran Cleveland first baseman, official averages revealed tonight, batted 566 times in 148 games and collected 209 hits for a .369 average, which was ten points lower than the championship average made by Leon (Goose) Goslin of Washington in 1928 and one more than Cobb's low mark in 1914. Al Simmons of the championship Philadelphia Athletics was second with a .365 mark, while Henry Manush of St. Louis, runner-up to Goslin in 1928, finished third with .355. Goslin was far down the list of leaders for the season, his average dropping 91 points to .288.

Other members of the "Big Ten" American League hitters and their

SHARKEY CHAMP, EX-CHAMP SAYS

Picks Gabby Gob as Best of Heavyweights

Dempsey Claims Bostonian Should be Recognized

Manassa Mauler May Take Another Fling, He Hints

BY EDWARD J. NEIL

Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 12. (AP)—Jack Dempsey, who should know something of heavyweight fighters, believes that Jack Sharkey, the Boston sailor who once wilted under the old mauler's fists, is today the heavyweight champion of the world. This and other interesting things the Battle King of other years proclaims in ranking the boxers of the world for 1929 in a copyrighted story for the Ring, a fistic magazine. Dempsey's rankings replace those the late Tex Rickard prepared in past years for this publication.

JACK DEMPSEY

"First I want to make my bow to Jack Sharkey and say that he is the best American heavyweight, and in my opinion the accredited world's heavyweight champion," says the article under Dempsey's name. "At Miami Beach he easily beat the outstanding contender at the time, Young Stribling, and in New York he knocked out Tommy Loughran, a really great fighter."

MAY COMEBACK

The former champion hints, but with little energy, that he may once more return in person to his old battlefields.

"There have been many stories printed to the effect that I am awaiting the winner of the Sharkey-Scott bout at Miami and that I would then issue a challenge to him," Dempsey writes. "At this time I have no plans. I am a promoter who turned to this new field because I am inclined to believe that my second fight with Gene Tunney was my last. "I have had my fling. The ring was kind to me and still is. The boxing public has been even kinder.

"But, if a foreigner gains the world's heavyweight title, be he Schmeling, Campolo, Scott, Carnera

Marker-counters Splash Around Soggy Course While Hardy Professionals Dash for Clubhouse; Exactly Fifty Players Qualify for Final Two Rounds

BY RALPH HUSTON

In midst of all of the plaudits for the great performances of Horton Smith, Denny Shute, Neil Christian, and the rest, let's take time out and give a few cheers for those unsung stoics who braved the storm and rain to keep track of the scores and pars, if any, on the efforts of the various professionals as they fought their way over Riviera's water-soaked fairways and more or less definitely out, picked up and dashed for the clubhouse, these hardier spirits, unmindful of wind and rain, trudged the four miles around the Riviera course so that the scores might be correctly kept.

Another woman who fought her way around the course was Mrs. Bobby Cruickshank, who followed her wee husband every step of the way, despite the downpour.

Bill Mehlhorn got a beautiful birdie on the second hole, sinking a forty-foot putt, but he forgot all about it when he took an eight

SPORTS SYSTEM FLAYED BY DEAN OF UNIVERSITY

NORMAN (Okla.) Jan. 12. (AP)—Dr. A. B. Adams, dean of the college of business administration at the University of Oklahoma, predicted in a prepared statement here tonight that college athletics will be placed upon a frankly commercial basis unless steps are taken to curb what he termed "hidden commercialism."

Dr. Adams referred to a resolution recently adopted by directors of the Big Six Athletic Conference permitting each member school to clean its house

Connie Mack Bolsters Philadelphia Athletics for 1930 Championship Ga

WORLD CHAMPS ADD RESERVES

Mahaffey Expected to Help Star Pitching Staff

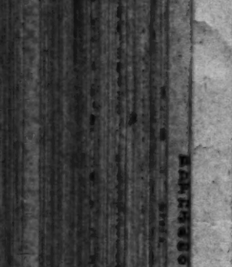
Jim Keesey to Understudy Foxx at First Base

McNair May Replace Boley at Shortstop Berth

BY HENRY P. EDWARDS

This is the first of a series of eight articles detailing the efforts of American League clubs to strengthen for the 1930 campaign.)

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 12.—Connie Mack has seen too many world championship teams disintegrate practically overnight to believe in adopting a stand-pat policy. Consequently, he has added much new material to the Philadelphia Athletics, despite the fact they finished way out in front in 1929 and then proceeded to win the world series from the National League champions, 4 to 1.



CONNIE MACK

First of all, he has negotiated a trade with the St. Louis browns whereby Wally Schang, a veteran catcher, but one who still can hit, throw and run like a youngster, will be on hand to help out Mickey Cochrane. Other backstops on his roster are Ralph Perkins, another veteran, and Mattox, a youngster just out of college.

ADD NEW TWIRLERS

A club that boasts of Bob Grove, George Earnshaw, Jack Quinn, Rube Walberg, Howard Ehmke, Ed Rommel and Bill Shores might be said to have a pitching staff equal to the task of dragging down another pennant, but the astute Connie is taking no chances. He has added Lee Roy Mahaffey, a veritable iron man from the Coast League; Snider, a promising youngster from the Portland club; John McGrew, who won twenty-four and lost ten games for the Omaha Western League club; Glenn Leibhardt, Jr., son of a former famous American League pitcher, and Mahon, a free agent from Nebraska. Liebhardt made his pro debut last season, winning eleven and losing eight games for Des Moines, a team that finished last. Because of his experience, Mahaffey may be said to have the best chance to become a regular.

New infielders are First Baseman Jim Keesey of Portland, a strong right-handed hitter; Donald McNair, a sensational shortstop from the Sally League; Dibrell Williams a promising 18-year-old second-sacker from Little Rock; Roger Cramer, a young third baseman who led the Blue Ridge League in batting, and Roy Tarr, a shortstop prospect from the Nebraska State League. Keesey thus replaces George Burns as an extra first baseman and his acquisition will allow Manager Mack to shift Foxx over to third base if necessary and allow Jimmy Dykes to play second in event of Bishop being out of the game. Bishop's eyes bothered him last season and his batting average fell far below his regular mark. McNair is expected to be Joe Boley's first understudy at shortfield. Cramer, Williams and Tarr may need more experience before they can crowd any of Connie's champions out of the regular line-up.

OUTFIELD STANDS

For outfielders, Connie will depend upon Simmons, Haas and Miller, his three batsmiths, with Custe Orwoll and Homer Summa in reserve. Wally French, extra outfielder, already has been sent to the minors, while it is not certain that Lebourveau will stick. Other members of the world champions who have departed are Sammy Hale, in exchange for Schang, and Pitcher Yerkes, who goes to Portland along with French and Jimmy Cronin, rookie infielder.

BERG TO TAKE ON CANZONERI

New Haven, Ct., at the St. Nicholas Arena tomorrow night.

The Philadelphia arena's weekly show tomorrow night will find Eugene Haut, French bantamweight, battling Vidal Gregorio of Spain, in the ten-round feature.

Harry (Kid) Brown, veteran Philadelphia lightweight, takes on Gaston Lecadre of France, in the semi-final, also at ten rounds.

At Jack Dempsey's Chicago Coliseum, a light-heavyweight battle between Leo Lomski, Aberdeen, Wash., and James J. Braddock of Jersey City, will be the feature attraction Friday. On the west coast, at Los Angeles Tuesday night, Fidel La Barba, former flyweight champion, meets Ignacio Fernandez, Filipino featherweight, in a ten-rounder.

Other fights on the national schedule include:

Monday—At Chicago, White City: Ray Kiser, Chicago, vs. Harry Dublinsky, Chicago, lightweights, seven rounds, and Bobby LaSalle, California, vs. Clyde Hull, Cleveland, welterweights, seven rounds.

Tuesday—At Los Angeles: Freddy Tomkins, Milwaukee, vs. Freddie Mann, Los Angeles, lightweights, six rounds.

Wednesday—At New York, Coliseum: Big Bill Hartwell, Kansas City, vs. Arthur Dekuh, Italy, and Buck Weaver, California, vs. King Solomon, Panama, all heavyweights, each ten rounds. At San Francisco: Battling Dozier, Omaha, negro, vs. Johnny Preston, Honolulu, welterweights, ten rounds.

Friday—At Chicago, Coliseum: Archie Bell, Brooklyn, vs. Harry Pierro, Chicago, bantamweights, and Emil Paluso, Louisville, vs. Ray McIntyre, Chicago, each ten rounds. At Hollywood, Speedy Dado, Philippines, vs. Jackie Caston, Spokane, flyweights, ten rounds. At San Francisco: Freddie (Dummy) Mahan, El Paso, vs. Pete Meyers, San Francisco, welterweights, ten rounds.

DICTATEUR NABS RACE

NICE (France) Jan. 12. (AP)—The grand prix de Monte Carlo, a steeplechase handicap worth $6000, was won today by Dictateur, owned by Roeder and ridden by Richard Petit. Dictateur, a six-year-old son of Ukko out of Dragonne, was the public's third choice in the betting.

Lie Decides Shot to Use

BY SOL METZGER

Even though you may think your golf will some day develop to such a point that your ball will always evade sand traps, the fact remains that the Joneses, Smiths, Hagens and Diegels have not as yet produced a game of such skill and accuracy.

So, while it stands to reason sand traps are to be avoided they always will be a problem during your rounds. The sole cure is to solve the problem, to be able to extricate your ball when you get in. No better plan can be followed than to study the methods of the leaders. They know.

They roughly divided all shots played from sand traps adjoining or near the green, into two types. One concerns itself with the ball partly or wholly embedded in sand. The sole remedy here is to explode or blast it out. The other shot concerns itself with a ball that is sitting on the sand. Such a ball is either putted, or chipped, or exploded to the green. On tomorrow's article let us first take up the ball that can be putted to the green.

The pivot is the least understood phase in golf instruction. Sol Metzger has prepared a leaflet on the pivot which he will gladly send to any reader requesting it. Inclose a stamped, addressed envelope.

Oimon Cops Skiing Event

GARY (Ind.) Jan. 12. (AP)—Casper Oimon of Canton, S. D., won the Class A event of the Ogden Dunes Ski Club's tournament today, with a total of 19.2 points. Peder Falstad, also of Canton, finished second with 17.8 points.

Oimon's best jump was 169 feet, equaling the slide record. Harold Sorensen of the Norseman Club, New York, had a jump of 168 feet, but was disqualified for falling on his second trial, as was Earl Aaker of the Ogden Dunes club, who had the fourth-place jump of 163 feet. Guttorm Paulsen, Norge Ski Club, Chicago, was third in points with 17.7; Roy Mikkelsen, Norge Ski Club, fourth, with 17.6; Ted Peterson of Minneapolis, fifth with 16.7, and Larry Lien, Norge club, sixth with 14.66 points.

Gunnar Oman, Ogden Dunes Ski Club, won the Class B event, with a point score of 19, and a best jump of 166 feet. The leap replaced the former record of 163 feet. George Gunderson of, Racine, Wis., was second with 17.8 points and a best jump of 160 feet.

Sven Engen, Norge Club, took third with 16.1 points; Olaf Tandvik, Norge Club, fourth with 16.6; Henry Larsen, Norge Club, was fifth, scoring 14.75 points, while Reider Anderson, Ogden Dunes Club, and Morris Waterman, Norge Club, were disqualified for fall on their second trials.

DEAN ATTACKS SPORT TACTICS

of commercialism in athletics as a "humorous self-whitewashing." The resolution was adopted in response to a report of the Carnegie Institute alleging widespread professionalism in scholastic and collegiate sports.

"In the end," said Dr. Adams, "it will be up to the public. If the public demands super-football teams turned out by our universities, the best way to get them is to pay salaries to the players.

"If the public believes that our college institutions should be educational in nature, then athletics should be handled by the university in a way that would make sports subordinate to education, or athletics should be severed from university life, and allowed to take their place among sports already made professional."

He suggested placing athletics under control of councils, comprising students, faculty members and alumni, with faculty members predominating, bringing the budget of the athletic department under strict university control and devoting gate receipts from athletic events to defrayment of the expenses of the general athletic program and prohibition employment of prospective participants in athletics by the athletic department with athletic funds either for "real or imaginary services."

NEAR WILL HOOK UP WITH CASANOVA

Sailor Bobby Near, three times navy middleweight champion, who holds decisions over both Joe Peregrina and Jack Charvez, has been signed to battle Sandy Garrison Casanova, Scotch-Mexican ring star, next Saturday night at the Main Street Athletic Club.

Kid Ponce, Mexican 128-pounder, lost a hard-fought battle to Jack (Red) Stephens last Saturday night. Dynamite Jackson, negro heavyweight star, stopped Jim Brooks in a round. In the special event Sam Baker and Steve Hayden, heavies, battled to a draw.

RANGERS DROP THRILLER

CHICAGO, Jan. 12. (AP)—In a rough battle, enlivened by three separate fist fights by players, the Chicago Black Hawks defeated the New York Rangers, 2 to 1, tonight, and replaced them as second-place occupants in the National League hockey race.

CARD MENTOR PICKS TROJANS

Dink Templeton Favors S.C. Trackmen to Cop Meet

Stanford Coach Sees Dark Outlook for Charges

Krenz and Rothert Figured to Hold Their Own

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Jan. 12.—Now that Glenn Warner's Cardinal gridiron warriors have sent their moleskins to the dry cleaners for the last time, sport followers here on the farm are turning a speculative eye upon the scantily clad cinder artists of Coach (Dink) Templeton who have been earnestly cleaving the fog and rain since the opening of the new quarter in their initial drive toward another track championship.

"DINK" TEMPLETON

Stanfordites, grown nonchalant through consistent victory on field and track, are finding the view none too reassuring. And "Dink," the slick-haired boy wonder of Cardinal track fame, has already turned a gloomy eye toward the vigorous sons of Troy.

FAVORS TROJANS

The Stanford-S. C. clash is still well in the future, but Templeton has already picked his pupils for a drubbing; and a preseason examination of the Cards would seem to justify his lack of enthusiasm. Dean Cromwell's Trojans, as usual, are the college team which Stanford must beat this spring. As things look now Templeton will have to do some close figuring to do that thing.

Capt. Eric Krenz and Harlow Rothert should have things pretty much their own way in the discus and the shot again, but they seem to be just about the last of Stanford's fair-haired boys.

In the javelin both Kibby and Sparling, last season's spear-tossing aces, have graduated, and Perelli-Minetti has an injured shoulder that makes him a doubtful hope at best. Rothert and Rintala may enter, but their capabilities in the event are unknown, and are, therefore, not being counted upon by Card adherents.

"Red" Berry is Templeton's outstanding hope in the pole vault, left barren by the graduation of Ward Edmonds. Berry is doped to reach 13ft. before the season is over, but reports from Troy have it that Cromwell has several aerial aces who will be able to reach that mark also.

CARDINAL HOPES

Dowell, West, Werder, and Butler are the Cardinal hopes in the broad jump. Dowell, who leaped 24ft. last year to break the California-Stanford meet record, is the best of the quartet, but with Barber and Paul hitting the board for Troy, he will have to stretch to get into the good money.

Madison, whose best mark is 6ft. 1in., isn't considered as a serious threat to Southern California's Lassalette and Van Osdel.

In the running events Stanford has the sterling quartermiler, Johnny Morrison and the fleet Hector Dyer, sprint star, as leading lights, but neither of these can be set up as sure winners. Morrison will have to beat S.C.'s junior college transfer, Vic Williams, who outran the Card last year. And Dyer's opportunities of winning from the Trojan flash, Frank Wyckoff are not considered too good.

"Podge" Smith and Don Nelson are Templeton's leading hurdlers. Both these boys should be dangerous to all comers, but reports from the south have it that they will run into formidable competition when they meet Southern California's Jeddy Welch and Boyd Comstock.

Stanford had a flashy yearling squad last spring, however, and Card adherents have hopes that Templeton will be able to invigorate some of these youngsters to the extent of taking up the slack in his veteran material.

Elks to Play Club Quintet

Play in the Southern California A.A.U. basketball league gets under way tonight, when the Los Angeles Elks meet the Los Angeles Athletic Club Mercuries on the former's floor at the Elks' Temple.

Tonight's game will go a long way in settling the lead for the first round of play as the Elks and Mercuries loom as two of the strongest teams in the loop, and the latter team is the defending champion. This year marks the first that Wally Stockton's Elks have played in the club division of the A.A.U. League and they will be out tonight to make an impressive start. Stockton has a couple of crack shots in Bert Myers and Jimmy Shrader, both of these men starring in the game with the Henry's Clothiers at the Olympic Friday.

Henry's defeated the Elks, 32 to 23, but were given sterner competition by the Mercuries earlier in the week, the Wichita team winning, 33 to 30. However, the Elks will have the advantage of playing on their home floor tonight and it looks like anybody's game. The game will be called at 8:15 o'clock.

Line-ups:

Elks		L.A.A.C.
Myers (C.)	Forward	Rariden
Shrader	Forward	Ricker
Berger	Center	Wilcox (C.)
Johnson	Guard	DeMers
Rogers	Guard	Gage

RECORD SERVICE

Jack Morris, nephew of the famed Tom Morris, died recently at the age of 82. He was the pro at the Hoylake Golf Club in Liverpool for more than sixty years.

Reggie McNamara, 42-year-old bicycle racer, has competed in sixty-six six-day events since 1913 and won fourteen of them, more than any other rider in the history of this sport.

CIUCI EXPLAINS WORST FAULT

Young Professional Tells How He Discovered Weakness and Corrected It; Getting Body in Before Clubhead Causes Most Performers to Slice Badly

BY AL CIUCI

(This is the sixth of a series of articles written by famous amateur and professional golfers, telling how they overcame outstanding faults in their play.)

My greatest weakness?

Well, I'd say it is no different from the weakness of 90 per cent of all the people who golf. It applies to every shot, but most particularly that stroke saver, the niblick, and the mashie niblick approach. It is the fault of getting the body in before the clubhead.

In practice I can go out and lay any number of balls dead for the pin. But in competition I try to help the ball along, with the result that I get too much body and not enough arm and wrist action into the stroke.

COMMON FAULT

Slicing is the commonest fault. You see instructors advocating new grips, new stances and what not, when the remedy lies in keeping the body from getting in before the club.

Balance and timing are so essential to shot-making that good shots can't be made without them. And no one can have proper timing when the fault I have mentioned is in evidence.

You'll see a player concentrate on a stroke, bring his clubhead back slowly, and then with the feeling that the wrists and club are not sufficient to send the ball the required distance he sways his body, believing that getting all his weight into the shot will be beneficial. As a matter of fact this causes tightening up of the muscles and is ruinous to timing.

I suppose everybody knows that, but most of us keep doing it in spite of that factor. However, the fault must be corrected or the shots just won't come off.

When I found I was getting my body in I set about to correct this by shifting the weight as I came into the ball. The smooth flow of weight right to left is the medium of power applied from the club to the ball. Swaying or jerking ruins it completely. It takes practice to get that shifting of weight done properly, but once you learn how to wait for the clubhead you eliminate plenty of golfing woes.

TIMING ESSENTIAL

Timing is the secret of good golf, and the secret of timing lies in the swing. The only secret about the swing is proper instruction and plenty of practice. Practice! That's the answer to anybody's trouble.

I used to hear when I was a kid about the hours Jack McDermott spent with his mashie. He would lay a newspaper on the center of the green, and he became so good at his approach shots that he could pitch seven shots out of ten on the paper at 100 yards. You can bet he didn't have any body sway. He was the only fellow to win two open championships in succession, so I figured he wasn't a bad chap to imitate.

I'm doing a lot of practicing—and I've gotten rid of my bad habit, just as you can.

Postpone Two Tennis Events

The finals of the Midwick Country Club's invitational tennis show, and the opening of the fourth annual Los Angeles tournament were again halted by rains yesterday.

The Midwick officials announced that the same schedule would be followed on next Saturday, while the city tournament will pray for an opening next Sunday morning.

Four matches were completed in the city meet yesterday which were scheduled for the early hour of 8 o'clock after which showers drenched the courts.

The feature contest was the first round pairing of Newton N. Patchen of Occidental College and Clay Mahoney, the former Fairfax High star, the latter winning, 6-3, 6-2.

T. Kamishima, Japanese municipal player, eliminated Joe Walters, 6-2, 6-1, while W. L. Pearce conquered Carl Klass, 6-3, 6-3.

A mild upset occurred in the fourth tilt in which Dick Charnock was beaten by W. P. Newcomer—a newcomer in tennis ranks, 6-2, 6-4, 6-3.

With the exception of these four matches completed, the same schedule of play as that of yesterday will constitute next Sunday's program in the open city affair.

TULSA EAGLES NAB BAY CITY CAGE TILT

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 12. (AP)—The Tulsa Eagles basketball team defeated the Governor Club quintet, 22 to 15, here tonight in a fast game marked by the speedy passing and accurate basket work of the invaders. Score at half-time was in favor of the visitors, 12 to 6. Thomas, Tulsa forward, and Dahn, Governor Club, were high-point men of the game, each scoring 7.

Fifteen Games Carded by Troy in Ball League

University of Southern California's baseball squad will open its activities in the California Intercollegiate Baseball Association on March 10 when it will start a program of fifteen league contests with a two-game series with Santa Clara College, according to General Manager Gwynn Wilson.

Coincident with the announcing of the beginning of the baseball league activities, it was officially announced by Director of Athletics Bill Hunter that Sam Barry will coach the diamond squad. Barry, a newcomer to the Trojan coaching staff, is now handling the basketball team.

The California Intercollegiate Baseball League, which includes Southern California, Stanford, California, St. Mary's, Santa Clara and U.C.L.A., opens its schedule February 15 when Santa Clara and Stanford meet on the Saints' field. The Trojan nine will be the last team to start its league program, which is a good feature for the Southern Californians as Barry will not be able to take over the coaching duties until after the final basketball game of the season is played on February 22.

Nine home games and six contests on opponents' diamonds are on the Trojans' schedule, which is as follows:

March 10 and 11—Santa Clara at Southern California.
March 15 and 16—California at S.C.
March 25 and 26—Stanford at S.C.
April 14—Southern California at Santa Clara.
April 15—Southern California at St. Mary's.
April 17—Southern California at California.
April 18—Southern California at Stanford.
April 25 and 26—St. Mary's at S.C.
May 2—Southern California at U.C.L.A.
May 7—U.C.L.A. at Southern California.
May 10—Southern California at U.C.L.A.

BRUIN FIVE WILL CLASH WITH BEARS

Westwooders in Attempt to Overcome Persistent Jinx of Northerners

Caddy Works and his Bruin basketball team from the University of California at Los Angeles will make their first trip away from home this week-end, going to Berkeley Friday night to play the California Golden Bears on Saturday night in Oakland. The game with the Bears will be the second of the season for the Westwood squad, which tackled Stanford last Saturday night in the Olympic Auditorium in the season-opener.

CADDY WORKS.

The U.C.L.A. squad is going after revenge against Nibs Price's men, who have been the nemisis for the locals ever since they entered the Pacific Coast Conference two years ago. The California team won the only series the Bruins lost in 1928 and knocked them out of the running for the championship after they had won two out of three from both Stanford and Southern California. Last year the Bears won three straight victories over the Bruins.

Although the Golden Bear basketeers are rated weaker than usual this year, Caddy Works is taking no chances with them and expects to have a tough struggle against them. Price has uncovered a capable forward and basket shooter in Wilson Tripp, and Capt. Perry Ten Eyck has returned to the fold after temporarily succumbing to study difficulties. Joel Coffield, a guard last year, has been revamped into a forward by the Berkeley mentor.

Fistic Style Aids Paulino to Earn Nod

BY WALTER TRUMBULL

(Copyright, 1930, by North American Newspaper Alliance.)

Tuffy Griffith, a former opponent, and Al Mayer, his former manager, both told me that Paulino surely would beat Von Porat. By that they meant nothing against Von Porat. It was strictly a matter of styles. In olden times, Von Porat would have been a pikeman. He needs room to be effective. Paulino wouldn't give it to him. Little Paul fought as a daggerman. The only chance a man with a spear has against a man with a dagger is to keep him off, and this Von Porat couldn't do.

It isn't so easy for a tall man to fight a shorter man. Tom Sharkey could take most of the big ones. So could Walcott and Sam Langford. Jack Dempsey always liked the big fellows. Dempsey, in his prime, could fight them all, because he was plenty big enough and a great fighter both at long range and close in. But, in a general proposition, it is easier for an armed man to fight a bull than a hornet.

Tuffy Griffith now stands next to Sharkey as the most formidable contender in the United States for the heavyweight title, and Tuffy's stock has been advanced by Sharkey's refusal to fight him. Dempsey would like to match Griffith with Schmeling in the Lake Front Park in Chicago. Tuffy has beaten Sekyra, Paulino and Risko, the three men who served as steppingstones to Max Schmeling's reputation, and a bout between Griffith and Max undoubtedly would draw a big gate; but I imagine that the Garden has an agreement with Tuffy and also that it could make it difficult for Schmeling to box under any other promotion.

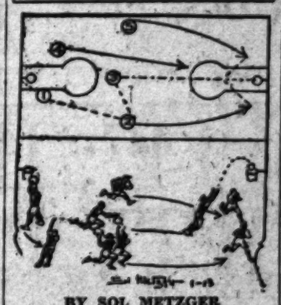
It looks as if a crowd of over 15,000 might see the postponed match between Sammy Mandell and Manuel Quintero at Miami Beach. This is fine news for William F. Carey and Frank Bruen, as it would seem to indicate that the Sharkey-Scott affair may draw beyond expectations. The racing crowd should help. The best stables in the game will be represented at Miami this season and that means a largely increased attendance.

Primo Carnera's debut in New York, the 24th inst., is arousing interest. Most persons think that the New York Boxing Commission did Primo a favor by refusing to let him meet Carl Carter, but permitting him to take on Big Boy Peterson. The fans will go to see Carnera, just as they turn out for the Great Shires; in spite of the fact that both seem to select catchers rather than pitchers as opponents. A bout of this type is regarded as in the nature of good vaudeville. Nevertheless, both Dan Morgan and Tuffy Griffith have been considerably impressed by the possibilities of Carnera, after seeing him in the gymnasium.

A youngster whose name has been mentioned frequently where "the ringworms gather" is Marty Gallagher. Many earnest followers of boxing maintain that Marty is steadily improving. Gallagher comes from the city of Washington and, under Queensberry rules, probably could trim any legislator present; although, under Congressional rules, some of them might take him. Gallagher is certainly a tough young Irishman and I have seen him show some very efficient flashes of fighting.

One boxer who should draw well anywhere is Freddie Lenhart of Spokane. Lenhart acts as if he actually enjoyed a fight, which is more than can be said for some pugilists more prominent. Freddie isn't exactly a short puncher, he can hit and, when he lands, it is likely to be a short battle. Lenhart has the courage and the style which should make him popular with the crowd.

Hoosier Cage Play Reviewed



BY SOL METZGER

"All well-planned plays will succeed a reasonable percentage of the time," says Everett S. Dean, Indiana's brilliant basketball mentor. "But remember," he adds, "it is the player who scores, not the play."

After all speed, cleverness, shooting ability and team spirit are the big factors in any offense. Indiana's fives have these qualities to a high degree. That is why this daring attack I am about to describe returns them many points during the run of a season.

A guard, No. 1, gets the rebound and passes the ball as quickly as possible to a forward, No. 2, who is in unguarded territory. No. 2 passes it back to the middle man of the attacking trio, No. 3, who is the best passer on the team. No. 3 dribbles down court to the foul ring, with No. 2 and No. 5 leading him along the sides of the court.

If unguarded No. 3 dribbles through for a close shot. If guarded he passes to No. 2 or No. 5. What a whiz bang of a fast-breaking offense this is.

FONSECA WINS BATTING TITLE

official averages were: Jimmy Foxx, Philadelphia, .354; Tony Lazzeri, New York, .354; Bob Fothergill, Detroit, .350; Earl Combs, New York, .345; Babe Routh, New York, .345; Harry Heilmann, Detroit, .344, and Dale Alexander, Detroit, .343. It was the first odd year since 1919, too, that Heilman, who now wears the livery of the Cincinnati Reds, failed to win the batting crown.

For the third successive year, exactly fifty American League batsmen hit .300 or better, fifteen of them being players in their first or second year in big time. Alexander of Detroit led the rookies with his .343 mark.

Aided by the big bats of Heilmann and Alexander, the Tigers easily won the team batting championship, hanging up a .299 average, three points higher than the Athletics, who were second, and three points higher than the mark set by the Yankees, who won it in 1928. The Yankees finished third in 1929 with a .295 total.

GEHRINGER STAR

Although Fonseca came back to top the willow wielders in the junior circuit, the averages disclosed Charles Gehringer, Detroit star, swung the busiest bat in the league. Gehringer finished eleventh among the leading batsmen with a .339 average; played in the most games, 155; scored the most runs, 131; stole the most bases, 27; led in three-base hits, 19; tied with his teammate, Alexander, for the most hits, 215; tied with another teammate, Roy Johnson, and Manush in doubles with 45, and though he occupied an unfavorable position in the Tiger batting order, he drove in 106 runs.

Combs led in singles with 151; Ruth was home-run king again with 46 circuit smashes; Joe Sewell of Cleveland led in sacrifices with 41, and tied his own world's record by striking out but four times in 152 games. Roy Johnson, Detroit rookie, was at bat 640 times. Eight players, who batted ten to twenty-seven times, failed to get a hit.

For the first time since 1905, Ty Cobb was not included in the averages, which he topped twelve times. Eddie Collins and Tris Speaker, who like Cobb have retired from active play, also were missing for the first time since 1908.

SHARKEY CHAMP, DEMPSEY SAYS

or some one not yet on the horizon, I may be prompted to reconsider for I still feel, even with my long absence from ring competition, that I could give a good account of myself with any of the present crop of heavyweights. On the face of things, however, I feel that I am done as an active participant. I feel that an American, Jack Sharkey, can well take care of the task of keeping the title in this country. If he isn't, then, well—"

Dempsey places Sharkey at the top of the heavyweight group with Max Schmeling second; Tuffy Griffiths third, and Phil Scott fourth. Next he groups seven men in this order: Tommy Loughran, Otto Von Porat, George Godfrey, Johnny Risko, Victorio Campolo, Young Stribling and Paulino Uzcudun. The list was compiled before Paulino upset Von Porat.

Maxey Rosenbloom heads the light-heavyweights with Jimmy Slattery, Lou Scozza and Leo Lomski linked in the second division. Mickey Walker, the champion, takes the same place among the middleweights with Dave Shade, Rene Devos and Ace Hudkins grouped below him. The welterweight class has Jackie Fields, the titleholder, linked with Jimmy McLarnin at the top.

Sammy Mandell, lightweight king, shares honors with Tony Canzoneri in his own first division while Kid Chocolate and Earl Mastro outrank Bat Battalino, the champion, among the featherweights. Al Brown and Bushy Graham share the top group of the bantamweights with Black Bill and Midget Wolgast holding the same positions in the flyweight class. Neither division has a generally recognized champion.

BRUINS RESUME... TILTS WITH O...

Tigers and U.C.L.A. Clash at Basket...

Occidental and the University of California at Los Angeles renew athletic relations tonight at the Glendale High School gymnasium, where the Bruin and Tiger basketball teams will clash at 8 o'clock. This tilt marks the first cage game between these institutions since 1927 when the Bruins deserted the Southern California Conference to join the Coast circuit.

The Westwood five, the defending champion at the Vermont-avenue institution, rather than... trounced the Tigers on the latter's home court before a throng of fans that crowded the gym to capacity. Since that time, Coach Ed Kleinbach has assumed the reigns and has elevated the basketball squad from Oxy to a championship aspirant. The Tigers have several veterans returning and hope to upset the Bruin foe.

Coach Eddie Kleinbach has a strong enough quintet to attempt this feat provided his charges form up to par and on account of their brilliant showing against the L.A.A.C. and Brigham Young teams, which barely nosed out the Eagle Rock representatives. Oxy mentor will open with Lou Seller at center; Capt. Bill Oliver and Abe Elliott, guards, and Glover and Larry Dimter, forwards. The Oxy forwards must have accurate shooting of Capt. Oliver Wildes, forward, and Carl Rowlanky center, which pair have alternated in tilts to date for point honors on the Bruin squad, hardly ever failing to score at least 15 points per game. Roe Bean, sophomore, has been out to relieve for the second forward berth while Lubin and Shy are the first-string guards.

These two varsities at their best are about on a par and the prospective fight displayed by either team should decide the issue. Glover and Dimter are very bit as accurate at hoop shots as the Bruin forwards, while Beebe and Elliott, guards, are perhaps the equal of the Bruin players. Knowledge gives the edge over Seller on the Oxy team especially in height.

The probable line-ups are:

Oxy
Glover	F.
Dimter	F.
Seller	C.
Beebe (C.)	G.
Elliott	G.

Buckeye Belle Grabs Feature

AGUA CALIENTA (Mex.) Jan. 12.—(AP)—Extreme outsider in the field, Buckeye Belle, always a good runner in the mud, walked off with the featured race here this afternoon as the Mexican-furioning event for handicap platers. The mare, which is owned by the colors of the Rancho Santa Carlos, had been prepped at Santanton, Cal., and meeting in the race lightly raced, went to the front at once never was to be headed. Wirt G. Bowman made a race of it through the stretch, getting home within a half-length of the winner at the wire, but all that got him was the place, as Jockey Cleveland had his mount to the limit. Pessimists got the show.

Time for the seven furlongs, 1:31 2-5.

Results:

First race, five furlongs, 4-year-olds and up, purse $500: 2-year-olds and up, purse $500: Buckeye Belle, 112, (Warren,) 15f, won; Pat E. (Hyer), 107, second; Manager Seth (Moran), 107, third. Time, 1:04 2-5.

MARSHALL TOPS MAT PROGRAM

Young Heavyweight in Feature Spot Again; Faces Stan Stasiak

Everett Marshall, the newest mat sensation, who pinned Joe Malcewicz, the Utica mat veteran and topnotcher in straight falls in a finish match here last week, will meet Stanley Stasiak, the roaring Pole from Cambridge, in his next start at the Olympic against a first-rate grappler.

"Carnation" Lou Daro signed Stasiak for the match yesterday. The bout will be held at the Olympic the 22nd inst., and will top one of the strongest mat cards the local promoter has scheduled in many months. Offers for matches on this card have already been wired to Ed (Strangler) Lewis, Dick Daviscourt, Dr. Karl Sarpolis and Nick Valcoff, it was reported.

Marshall became a nationally recognized topnotcher here last week when he smashed Malcewicz into the mat with an "airplane spin," twice in about twenty-five minutes. The newcomer, a husky 22-year-old boy from the cattle ranges of La Junta, Colo., stepped into the ring here practically unknown, and beat a grappler who was looked upon as the next world's champion about a year ago. Marshall entered the ring undefeated and unscored upon, and left with his record as spotless as before, but with his first victory against a real first-rater chalked up.

In Stasiak, a 245-pounder, Marshall will be up against a wrestler who is rated in mat circles as one of the toughest, strongest and most punishing of them all. He will be facing a six foot four inch tall grappler who has met and defeated nearly every wrestler in the game during the fifteen or more years he has been in the game.

Despite his giant build, Stasiak has shown himself to be very fast on his feet in his matches here with Champion Gus Sonnenberg, Nick Lutze and Dick Daviscourt. He has also shown tremendous strength and endurance, both of which mat experts here say will stand him in great stead when he tries to remove Marshall as a title threat.

Marshall declared yesterday he had several "nicknames" pinned on to him by wrestling fans around Denver, where he has done most of his wrestling. One of them he earned while still in high school and a guard on the football squad. It was the "Rock of Gibraltar" because he could not be moved. He was named the "Rocky Mountain Lion" by the wrestling fans, later.

Marshall went one year to the University of Denver, a year and a half to the University of Iowa, and at present is taking an extension course from the University of Washington in order to get a college degree. The young star declared yesterday in view of the fact that he attended Iowa last, he would like to be known as a former student of that university when mention is made of his collegiate career.

GRAND CIRCUIT TO ARRANGE SCHEDULE

KALAMAZOO (Mich.) Jan. 12.—(AP)—Stewards of the Grand Circuit will tackle the problem of fixing dates for the 1930 races at their annual meeting, which will start here tomorrow afternoon and continue through Tuesday. The problem of fixing dates satisfactory to the various cities seeking race meets promises to be interesting.

San Diegans Will Honor Trojan Star

Russ Saunders, who "made good in the big city," will be the honored guest in his home town, San Diego, Wednesday, when he will be given a present, the keys to the city, and sundry other objects suitable to a returning football hero. Mayor Harry Clark, Senator Ed Sample and Hal Hotchkiss, president of the Chamber of Commerce, will be the speakers at a banquet at the Grant Hotel. Coach Howard Jones and Willie O. Hunter, director of athletics of the Trojan coaching staff, will also be present. Lee Conti, president of the San Diego Trojan club, is in charge of the affair.

SCORE KEEPERS MERIT CHEERS

on the eleventh, and started tossing his clubs around.

Scotty Chisholm, who is even "Scotchier" than his name, lived up to his reputation by packing a plaid umbrella.

Oliver Hardy, the rotund member of the Laurel and Hardy team, was an extensive gallery in himself. He added a flock of hazards to the already difficult course by sinking to his shoe-tops at every step.

Harold Lloyd was trotting all over the course, and refused to come in out of the rain. He was following Leo Diegel, Al Espinosa and Bobby Cruickshank, and insisted on sticking with them through the final hole.

Sixes in unfortunate places that should have been fives, cost four players positions in the final thirty-six holes. Ted Luther, Al Zimmerman, Lewis Scott and Harold Sampson all had 160—one stroke over the qualifying figure.

A lot of dubs and duffers found consolation in the numerous rounds of 90 and worse that were turned in. John Perilli had the doubtful distinction of turning in the highest card of the day—98.

Tommy Armour didn't mind the weather. "Why, this would be a good day in Scotland," he remarked cheerfully, and proceeded to shoot a 77 to tie for third place.

Walter Hagen and his caddy were equipped with glorious green slickers. But the Haig had a 4 on the ninth for a 44, and gave up.

The tilted greens and traps drained well despite the heavy rain. This is a feature of golf architecture developed in the last three or four years.

Dick Taylor, official host for the Junior Chamber of Commerce, was one of the most popular men on the course yesterday. Kennedy Ellsworth, ex-president of the organization, hasn't had time to sit down and rest in the three days of the tournament to date. Le Roy Owen, present presiding officer, is another who is working overtime to make the tourney a success.

Bobby Cruickshank declared he had always wondered what the Johnstown flood had looked like, and was greatly pleased with the opportunity he had yesterday to find out about it.

Emerson Speer, official starter, is hanging up a new record. To date, not one threesome has been late in getting away from the first tee.

Horton Smith took his only five on the first nine on the ninth hole when he chipped over the green. His round of 76, played during the worst of the downpour, probably is the best ever played in this section of the country, under such adverse conditions. Certainly, it is the best ever shown in the Los Angeles open.

Abe Espinosa, who played in the rain, finished just as the sun started to break through the clouds. "Some guys have all luck," he remarked. "Just look at that sun! We ought to start out and play the round over again."

Billy Burke made his own putter, and he carries a carved trophy from Hawaii for luck. But they didn't help him yesterday. He had about a dozen putts from six feet down, and missed every one of them.

Bill Mehlhorn is playing in bad luck, or something. He has been off the fairway only once in his thirty-six shots from the tees, but he flounders all over the greens.

Hagen lit in a trap on the left of the first green, chipped clear over to the other side into another trap, and took three putts for a 9.

"Pat" Patterson was almost washed away at his scoreboard. Until some extra canvas was hung up on the west end, the wind and rain almost wiped out an entire column of the cards for the two rounds. Gregg Lifur, as usual, was on hand to give a lot of help.

Sid Churniss announced that Al Joison had practically agreed to act as toastmaster at the annual sportsman's dinner, at $100 a plate, which the Junior Chamber will hold sometime in April or May. The well-known Mammy songster was a gallerylte yesterday and promised he would officiate if he happened to be in town at the time of the banquet.

Frank Walsh blazed his way around the first nine in 34, but reversed the figures on the way home for a 71. He has a two-

Country Club, who scored 74-77—151, to lead the amateurs.

ROGERS SLIPS WITH 82

Taking advantage of a few brief hours of almost favorable weather in the morning, Chet Beer of Bakersfield and Neil Christian of Portland, Or., smashed out rounds of 78-74—152, and 79-73—152, respectively, to tie with Johnny Rogers of Denver, Colo., Friday's leader, who added an 82 to his first-round score of 70 for a 152 total.

A group of furtive young men, slightly baggy at the knees, but with a battling light in their eyes after learning that $4000 in rain insurance was collected yesterday morning, was kept in one continuous conference as the squawks poured in almost as fast as the rain. Their final huddle late yesterday afternoon resulted in a timely decision to stage eighteen holes of the finals today, and the final eighteen tomorrow.

This group goes under the cognomen of the "Big Nine," and despite a lot of kidding from people who have nothing better to do, are handling a mighty tough job in a most commendable manner.

And still the rain poured down, and down!

Today, the even fifty who scored 159, or better, will continue through the tournament.

Washed out of the picture on Riviera's moisty fairways, a score or more of golfdom's finest find themselves on the outside looking in.

With the remark, "I've had enough," Walter Hagen, British open champion, who has played under all sorts of weather conditions, picked up yesterday afternoon on the ninth tee.

Two strokes back of the qualifiers came a bedraggled group, which included Al Watrous of Detroit, a member of the Ryder Cup team; Johnny Dawson of Chicago, one of America's foremost amateurs; Craig Wood of New Jersey, Hawaiian open champion, and Henry Ciuci, leading New England pro.

Joe Turnesa of Elmsford, N. Y., winner of two major tournaments last year, failed to qualify for the open again, and had almost as much trouble as he encountered at Wilshire two years ago.

Those who barely got under the wire were Ed Dudley, 79-80-159; Mac Smith, 77-82-159; Tony Manero, 80-79-159, and Bill Mehlhorn, 78-81-159.

LA JOLLA PLANS TOURNEY

Joe Blake, one of the head men of the La Jolla Country Club, wired a cheering bit of news to the pros, when he announced a $1000 tournament over the southern course for Saturday. The pros can take in the La Jolla event on their way to Agua Caliente for the $25,000 open. Prizes will be awarded on the basis of eighteen-hole scores.

And the rain poured down!

We do not wish, in any way whatsoever, to detract from Shute's splendid golf, nor Christian's fine round of 38-35—73, yesterday's low score, but the seventy-six-shot by the "Flaming Joplin Comet," Horton Smith, was the greatest round of the day.

Had Horton enjoyed any breaks at all, he would have undoubtedly scored in the low seventies, and might easily have scored in the sixties. But Horton played through five holes in the hardest downpour of the day, holes where he went five over par, and spoiled an otherwise sensational score.

STARTS WITH BIRDIE

Starting out the first hole shortly after 1 o'clock, Horton poked two stiff woods down the fairway, laid a fifty-yard pitch shot four feet from the pin and canned his putt for a birdie 4.

Hooking a long brassie shot into a trap at the left of the second green, Horton got himself out of a bad hole by pitching two feet past the pin for his par. A full mashie to the third green went wide, but again the Joplin youngster bagged his par by pitching three feet past the pin and sinking his putt.

Smith was even with par on the fourth hole, a dangerous 245-yard par 3, when his long wood stopped thirty feet short of the pin, just off the green. His approach was six feet past, and his putt just rimmed the cup for a 4.

On the fifth green in two, and down in two putts gave Horton another par. A six-foot, downhill putt hit the cup and bounced out for a 3 on the 25-yard sixth hole, and Horton parred the 400-yard seventh, being on the edge in two and down in one putt after chipping a foot from the can.

RAIN STARTS IN EARNEST

It had started to drizzle on the fifth hole, and at the eighth hole began to pour in earnest. The rain, driven in sheets before a stiff breeze from the ocean, soon chilled players and spectators to the bone.

Smith, under those handicaps, smacked out a 250-yard drive, and laid a full mashie shot four feet past the pin. He dropped it for a birdie 3, and was one under par going to nine.

Rapidly becoming inundated, the ninth was almost unplayable. Horton's second shot skidded in the water and wound up in back of the green, yards from the cup. His approach stopped dead, six feet from the cup, and he two-putted from there for a 5.

Starting back with two fives, Smith got a bad break on the 436-yard twelfth hole, when his brassie second hooked into a raging torrent that but recently was a dry wash. Horton was forced to drop a ball, and wound up with a 6.

SUN FINALLY SHINES

The sun poked its head out from behind a mass of fleeing clouds as Horton stepped on the fourteenth tee, and he took the hint by parring the next four holes. The eighteenth, a difficult par 4, netted Smith a bogey, when his second stopped in the tall grass on a sloping hillside lie. He was on in three and down in two putts, his putt for a 4 just sliding by the cup.

Here is the card:

Par (out)	4	5	4	3	4	3	4	4	5—36
Smith	4	4	4	3	4	3	5	4	5—36
Par (in)	4	4	3	5	4	4	3	5	4—36
Smith	4	5	4	3	4	3	5	5	5—38

Shute, who was third in the 1929 national open championship at Winged Foot, two strokes back of Bobby Jones and Espinosa, played steady, rather than spectacular, golf. His outgoing card shows three bogeys and six pars, while he had seven pars, a birdie, and a bogey coming in to shoot par golf on that side.

Shute's card:

(Out)	5	5	4	3	4	4	3	5	4—37
(In)	4	4	5	3	4	3	5	4	5—37—74

Christian's round was one of the most remarkable of the tournament. Coming to the thirteenth hole five over par, the Portland pro smacked out four birdies in a row.

Christian's card:

(Out)	5	4	4	3	4	4	3	5	4—36
(In)	4	4	3	5	4	3	5	4	5—37—73

Other low cards were as follows:

Beer (out)	4	5	4	3	4	3	5	5	4—37
Kerrigan	5	4	4	3	4	3	5	4	5—37
Black	5	4	4	3	4	3	5	4	5—37
Coleman	5	5	4	3	4	3	5	4	5—38
Beer (in)	4	5	4	3	4	3	5	5	4—37—74
Kerrigan	5	4	4	3	4	3	5	4	5—37—74
Black	5	5	4	3	4	3	5	4	5—38—75
Coleman	5	5	4	3	4	3	5	5	5—38—77

Due to the fact that the field has been materially cut down, the first threesome starts at 9:30 this morning, and the last at 11:22. Play should be finished shortly after 3 o'clock.

And we hope the rain stops pouring down!

day total of 153, just six strokes back of Denny Shute.

There wasn't anything spectacular about Shute's round. He turned in steady, consistent golf to get his 74, and a two-stroke advantage over Horton Smith. He started early, and finished before the bad rain squall.

Neil Christian, whose 73 was low for the day, had four consecutive birdies on the second nine. He had a 3-2-3-2 for the thirteenth, fourteenth, fifteenth and sixteenth, and was immensely proud of the accomplishment, for which no one blamed him.

Leo Diegel had four sixes on his round, three of them on the second nine.

Just exactly fifty players qualified for the final thirty-six holes. Fifty and ties were to be included, but the final 150 was the fiftieth player.

Hollywooders Trip Oak Pucks

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 12. (Exclusive)—Hollywood's ice hockey team stacked up a five-man defense against the league-leading Oaklanders this afternoon on the Oakland rink and beat them, 3 to 0. The passing attack of the Oakland club was just about ruined by this style of blocking the net, and the Hollywood men proved better scramblers than their rivals.

The game was a rough and tumble affair, with some times as many as five men sprawled out on the ice, but there was only one penalty during the entire three periods. This one was chalked up against Joe Saundercook.

The Oakland team left tonight for Los Angeles, where it will play against the Los Angeles club tomorrow night for a fourth game in six days. Hollywood stays here and will meet the San Francisco club at the San Francisco Iceland rink tomorrow night.

COUGAR PUCKS VICTORS

DETROIT, Jan. 12. (AP)—Detroit's Cougars were on the long end of a 3-to-2 National Hockey League game with the Pittsburgh Pirates here tonight.

H.A.C. Cagers Meet Pacifics

Basketballers of the Hollywood Athletic Club launch their Southern California A.A.U. Club League season tonight when they engage in what promises to be a bitterly fought game with the Pacific Coast Club of Long Beach on the Movie City team's floor. The first whistle will be at 8:15 p.m.

Hopeful that this season will find it back on top of A.A.U. basketball as it was several years ago, the H.A.C. squad will go into action tonight in the best form of the season.

Coach Bill Paige hit on the right combination to use during the preseason schedule, the highlight of which was a 34-to-27 victory over the Tulsa Eagles, and it is probable that Ken Schneider and Herb Cole, forwards; Chuck Kearney, center, and Gene Dorsey and Richard Young will start tonight.

Line-ups:

Hollywood		Long Beach
Cole	F.	Rowe
Schneider	F.	Barton
Kearney	C.	Hockert
Dorsey	G.	McGinnis
Young	G.	Sawyer

FALCARO CHALKS UP THIRD STRAIGHT WIN

NEW YORK, Jan. 12. (AP)—Joe Falcaro, world's match-game champion, chalked up his third successive victory in an all-star round-robin bowling tournament here today, beating William (Dutch) Cliffe of Utica, N. Y., 2283 to 1833.

Falcaro had sixty-seven strikes, thirty-six spares, four splits and one error; Cliffe had thirty strikes, sixty-three spares, nine splits and three errors.

In the second match of the day, Cliffe lost to Jimmy Smith of Chicago, 1965 to 1812. Cliffe had 28 strikes, 16 spares, 12 splits and 2 errors. Smith had 45 strikes, 51 spares, 9 splits and 1 error.

BOSTON BRUINS UPSET

NEW YORK, Jan. 12. (AP)—Displaying a remarkable defensive game, the humble New York Americans broke the fourteen-game winning streak of the Boston Bruins, champions and leaders of the National Hockey League, with a 3-to-2 victory tonight.

Open Golf at La Jolla on for Saturday

An eighteen-hole, $1000 open golf tournament will be held over the La Jolla Country Club course at La Jolla, next Saturday, Joe Blake, of the Southern Club announced yesterday. The field will be limited to ninety entrants, namely the thirty-two low scorers in the recent P.G.A. championship; the thirty low in last year's national open, and the balance to be made up from low scorers in the Los Angeles open.

such terrible conditions as those which existed between 2 and 3 o'clock when scores of the leading contenders shot sky high.

Most of the leaders were on the second nine at this time. They were forced to drive into a gale which was biting cold. The rain descended in torrents, but it wasn't the downpour that bothered the boys so much as it was the intense cold. And on virtually every hole from the tenth through the fifteenth the tournament leaders had to fight every inch of the way.

REMARKABLE PLAYING

Some of the scores made under such circumstances were truly remarkable. There was Bobby Cruickshank's 77, for instance, and Horton Smith's 76. How they did it is hard to tell.

Denny Shute, who leads with 147, shot his brilliant 74 earlier in the day. The going wasn't easy by any means, but Denny got in before that awful 2 o'clock storm.

Yesterday I wrote that there were but twelve players left in the running for first-prize money of $3500. This dozen included only those who had shot under 75. It excluded "Mac" Smith, winner last year and the season before that. The conclusion was arrived at by statistical research which had showed that no man who shot worse than 74 on any round ever won a Los Angeles open.

Allowance was made for the weather, it being stated that "Mac" Smith's final score of 285 for last year would not be bettered this time unless weather conditions were exceedingly favorable yesterday and today. Well, you should have heard the boys talking about the weather. Their choice of words was a treat.

SHUTE MUST DO IT

If this statistical angle is to hold water it means that Shute must win the tournament, he being the only golfer who has had two rounds at 74 or under. Otherwise the great American public which is used to placing its faith in statistics will be disappointed and the writer will be considerably chagrined. Of course, my average will be .500, inasmuch as "Mac" Smith, who was relegated to the defeated class yesterday because of his 77, went even worse in his second round and has no chance of winning, thereby upholding that end of the statistical argument.

Then there is the weather angle which gives the writer a distinct "out," but it would be nice to have the statistics stand up, weather or no weather.

Of the twelve favorites listed yesterday morning—those with 74 or under—only eight really remain in the running as they tee off today. They are Shute, 147; Horton Smith, 149; Al Espinosa, 151; Bobby Cruickshank, 151; Fay Coleman, 151; Tommy Armour, 151; Johnny Rogers, 153; and Leo Diegel, 153.

It will be seen that there are six strokes between Shute in first place and Diegel, who is tied for eighth. That's about all you can reasonably expect a golfer to make up in two rounds and even that's a tough assignment considering the class of the field.

Those of the twelve who virtually dropped by the wayside were Charles Seaver, 72-82—154; Abe Espinosa, 75-83—158; Billy Burke, 74-80—154, and Massie Miller, 74-83—157.

Of this bunch, Seaver, Rogers, Smith, Armour, Diegel, Espinosa and Cruickshank were so paired that they played into the worst luck, having to drive into the teeth of the storm just when it was at its height.

OTHERS COME UP

There are several golfers who worked themselves into a position to win the tournament if Shute or Horton Smith will only let up a little. Neil Christian, Portland star, had the low score of the day, a 73, and starts with a total of 152 this morning. Neil was through before the worst of the storm came along, but his showing is worthy of a real cheer, nevertheless.

Chet Beer of Bakersfield, with a 74, made under more trying circumstances, also gets away with a total of 152 today.

In the 153 class, tied with Diegel, are John Black, Willie Hunter, Frank Walsh and Olin Dutra.

After revealing those twelve favorites yesterday morning the writer narrowed the field to four—Horton Smith, Diegel, Cruickshank and Armour. Shute was not included and it begins to look as if ye scribe might have booted one at this point, although I am still willing to string along with either Horton, Cruickshank or Armour as an excellent bet to nose Denny out. Particularly Horton.

Diegel got in trouble on the second hole yesterday. His brassie shot from the fairway was buried in the trap at the left of the green and even though Leo exerted all his strength he couldn't get the pill out of the wet sand in the trap. He finally wound up with a 6, and then shot all pars on the next seven holes.

Leo was playing with Al Espinosa and Cruickshank and the three drew a large following. Al played splendid golf and wound up with a 36, one over par, on the first nine, thanks to birdie 3 on the eighth.

Wee Bobby made some remarkable recovery shots. On the 245-yard par 3 fourth his drive landed under a tree up on the hillside. He got it out nicely and then sank a 15-foot putt from off the green for his 3. Trap trouble had cost Bobby a 6 on the previous hole. He finished the nine with 37, also getting a birdie on the eighth.

INTO DYNAMITE

But the boys ran into dynamite as they teed off on the tenth. The wind was howling and the rain struck them smack in the face as they made their shots under the most trying circumstances. Each of the three went one over par on the tenth and Bobby was the only one to get his par on the 11th, Leo and Al taking sixes. They were all one over par on the twelfth and and Leo took a six on the thirteenth while the other two golfers were one over par with fives. That's the kind of trouble they encountered and it is a wonder they scored at all.

Some idea of the grief Diegel, Espinosa and Cruickshank encountered is revealed by the statement that Leo had but three pars on the last nine, Al only two and Bobby five. Perhaps the fact that Bobby's little wife followed him during the entire eighteen holes had something to do with his fine showing.

This grief was only typical of that which awaited those who were forced to play on the course between 2 and 3 o'clock.

Of course, it was on the green that the boys lost most of their strokes. Practically every putt made yesterday stopped short of the cup.

Diegel had trouble with his approach shots, especially the shorter ones. Al's putter turned him down on several occasions. Bobby was in trouble off the tee several times, but made some fine recovery shots.

Playing eighteen holes today and eighteen tomorrow, rather than thirty-six in one day, should help uphold the statistical angle. But the burden rests squarely on the shoulders of Mr. Denny Shute of Columbus, O., the only man in the tournament with each round at 74 or under.

If Shute could score a 74 under such conditions as existed yesterday he ought to keep under that figure today and tomorrow, provided the weather man gives him a break. But golf is a strange, uncertain game.

OILERS FACE SHEIKS HERE

Local Puck Squad Tackles League-Leading Sextet from Oakland in Contest Tonight

Beaten more or less decisively in their last three starts against Oakland, the Los Angeles Richfields will try to do a little table-turning tonight at the Winter Garden when they hook up with the league-leading Sheiks

In their last two local battles the Oilers have lost, 3 to 2 and 11 to 1. And in the north, the Richfields bowed to Oakland, 3 to 0. All of which hasn't helped the Oilers in their league standing.

The Sheiks threatened to retain the league championship they won last year by virtue of superior speed. No club in the league can match skates skates with an array of forward talent such as Oakland has, including Sandercook, Horn, Cook, Miller, DaFoe, Vokes and George Giroux. Add to this a defense that features Phil Stevens and Georgie Bond and a goalie like Hec Fowler and it is easy to see why the Oaks are leading the league.

Manager Tommy Murray has a well-balanced team, but it hasn't been able to show to advantage except against Hollywood. If the Oilers would play against the Sheiks and San Francisco Tigers as they do against the Millionaires, they would have undisputed possession of first place.

Jake Lawrence turns in consistently flashy games for the Oilers, but the rest of the club doesn't get going together. One week Berge Irving, the husky defense man, will be a big star, and the next week it will be Guy Poole or Jack Wilson, or Sammy Larkin or somebody else. If they ever get clicking together the Richfields will present about the most formidable squad in the league.

Line-ups:

Los Angeles.		Oakland.
Murray	Goal	Fowler
Irving	Defense	Stevens
Wilson	Defense	C. Bond
Nichols	Wing	Sandercook
Larkin	Wing	Horn
Lawrence	Wing	Cook
Poole	Wing	Miller

GEORGE BOOTH TO HEAD ARIZONA LOOP

TUCSON (Ariz.) Jan. 12. (AP)—In one of the most bitter sessions in the history of organized baseball in Arizona, the Arizona State League board of directors today elected officers for the 1930 season and boosted the playing week to five days.

George Booth of Miami was elected president of the loop after Fred Joyce, retiring president, who had been re-elected by a four-to-one vote, refused to accept the post.

Pat Nathan, broker of Globe, was elected vice-president.

CLEVELAND CAGERS WIN

CLEVELAND, Jan. 12. (AP)—Cleveland's pro basketball team captured the first half championship of the American League here tonight by defeating Chicago by a score of 20 to 16. The score at the end of the half was 16 to 8 in favor of Cleveland.

CAPPER SCORES MARRIAGE LAWS

Constitution Change to Cure Divorce Ills Urged

Senator, in Talk Over Radio, Asks for Federal Code

Cites Inconsistencies Caused by States' Statutes

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12. (Exclusive)—Adoption of an amendment to the Constitution giving Congress authority to enact a uniform marriage and divorce law was advocated over the radio from Washington tonight by Senator Capper, Republican, of Kansas.

"The family and the right to hold property are two of the corner-stones of the foundation upon which our present-day civilization rests," Capper said. "Both are seriously threatened by our forty-nine different laws on the subject of marriage and divorce.

"A man and woman may be lawabiding citizens and their children legitimate in a community. The family moves 100 miles into another community and the man becomes a bigamist, and their children under the law have no right to bear the father's name.

DIVORCE LAWS

"This is not a fanciful statement. There are hundreds of instances where this, or something perfectly analagous, has occurred.

"Divorce is not obtainable on any grounds in one State, but is granted in another on evidence of bad temper of either husband or wife. How is that for contrast?

"Forty-eight State Legislatures and the Congress sitting as the town council for the District of Columbia, grind out forty-nine different codes governing the marriage contract and property rights depending on the marriage contract.

"And under our Constitution there are only two ways we can get at a remedy for this intolerable situation.

REMEDY CITED

"We can strive for uniform laws on marriage and divorce among the forty-eight States and the District of Columbia; or we can amend the Constitution so that Congress can enact uniform marriage and divorce laws for these United States.

"The adoption of an amendment to the Constitution is the first step. It then would be up to the National Legislature to enact a uniform marriage and divorce law, fully protecting the existing status of parents and children, and protecting the rights of the children in the future.

"The contract of marriage should be a matter of interstate comity and commerce just as much as a contract for the sale of commodities or freight rates or the movement of stolen automobiles or the white-slave traffic.

"The only remedy for the situation, it seems to me, and to many others who have given serious thought to the problem and its solution is for the States to delegate that power to their representatives in Congress. The General Federation of Women's Clubs is supporting actively the legislation which I have offered in the Senate."

MILLIONS GIVEN OLD TEACHERS

Carnegie Foundation Forms Fund for Professors

Annuity of $500 Provided After 70 Years of Age

Report Reveals Amounts Used in Many Projects

NEW YORK, Jan. 12. (AP)—Expenditure of more than $20,000,000, nearly one-sixth of the entire income of the Carnegie Corporation of New York, since its organization in 1911 for old-age security for professors was recorded in the annual report of President Frederick P. Keppel, published today.

Nine annual installments of $600,000 each are to be paid to set up a fund from which annuities of $500 are to be paid to professors 70 years of age. This fund supplements pensions to be granted after January 1, 1931, by the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching.

LIBRARY FUND $111,500

Appropriation for library schools for the year totaled $111,500. Other grants made to library service included $54,000 for the development of dental school libraries in the United States and Canada, $30,500 for the support of library projects in the Union of South Africa and Rhodesia, $124,000, for the development of college and university libraries, and $100,000 for support of other library interests including library extension in British Columbia.

For the comprehensive examination of the place of social studies in elementary and secondary education, $50,000 was granted the American Historical Association.

SCIENCE CONTRIBUTED TO

For similar studies in mathematics, classical languages, modern foreign languages and other educational research in the United States and the Union of South Africa, a total of $198,500 was voted. A total of $141,000 was contributed for adult education studies of reading habits, the Little Theater, college alumni associations and foreign languages groups.

To the advancement of scientific research in the United States the corporation contributed $295,500 during the year. The institutions receiving grants were the California Institute of Technology, the Carnegie Institution of Washington, Johns Hopkins University, the National Research Council, the Potter Metabolic Clinic, and Stanford University.

Night Clubs in New York Raided

NEW YORK, Jan. 12. (AP)—With warrants based on evidence obtained in previous visits, Federal prohibition agents and city detectives swooped down on ten night clubs and cafes in the theatrical district early today and arrested seventeen waiters and clerks.

Among the places raided was the Toto Club, West Fifty-sixth street. Most of the other places were the asserted "speakeasy" type of resort.

SHIPPING NEEDS OF NATION CITED

I.M.M. Executive Discusses Maritime Situation

More Men and Money Held Vitally Essential

Lasso Vessel Here After Squally Voyage

BY WAYNE B. CAVE

More men and money, that is, more western shipping brains and Wall street capital, are needed if America is to regain her place on the seas, according to A. C. Holzapfel, president of International Mercantile Marine, now wintering in Southern California.

He spoke as an observer of world shipping for fifty years, during which his concern has grown to a point where it supplies paints for 40 per cent of the ships of the globe.

"Your Pacific Coast has a wealth of outstanding shipping men, but it will take many hundred millions of dollars to build a merchant fleet. That means the great financial leaders must participate, and they are not yet as interested as they should be."

Government aid has stimulated a start in new building, but it must go much farther than it has, in his opinion, if a great modern fleet is to be sustained, in competition with bottoms abroad which operate more cheaply.

Although close to 80 years of age, Mr. Holzapfel says he expects to live to see aviation take its place seriously in the transportation of the world. "The chief business worry of today is to meet the inventions of tomorrow."

An outstanding chemist in his line, Mr. Holzapfel also is a world student of the arts. Although he long has been an American he founded his concern fifty years ago in an alley in London. Today it has many factories, scores of warehouses, and hundreds of agencies throughout the world.

LINER CALAWAII RIDES ROUGH SEAS

Despite exceptionally heavy seas and boisterous weather, the Lasco cabin liner Calawaii returned yesterday from Hawaii without apparent discomfort to her seventy passengers.

ROBERT SANDS

Winds on Tuesday and Friday reached fifty miles an hour, with squalls even greater, and at times accompanied by blinding rains. Peculiarly, the barometer was up to around 30.25 during the worst of these instead of dropping, a rare phenomenon, according to shipping men.

Among the travelers was Col. Robert Sands, head of the oldest and greatest printing house in Australia, founded by his grandfather ninety-five years ago. In the war he had charge of all German prisoners in the Antipodes and Far East. He and Mrs. Sands will visit here a week before proceeding to London.

The debatable divorce of the Straits trade into a separate conference is expected to come before northern and southern divisions of the Pacific Westbound Conference, scheduled to convene this morning at the Alexandria.

The parley is expected to last two and possibly three days, dependent on the effectiveness of peace parleys under way.

Delegates from as far north as Vancouver, B. C., are to attend, representing the following concerns: Dodwell & Co., Blue Funnel, American Mail, Canadian Pacific, Nippon Yusen Kaisha, Klaveness, Dollar, Oceanic and Oriental Navigation, General Steamship Corporation, and Java Pacific Line.

Richfield Oil Company's first movement of kerosene into Calcutta and Bombay, 200,000 cases, went out this week-end in the holds of the "K" Line steamer Yonan Maru from the docks of General Steamship Corporation. It is declared the largest single case shipment trans-Pacific from this port, the previous record being 193,000 cases.

Members of San Pedro's fishing colony who joined Jugo-Slavia's volunteer division during the war are said to have recognized themselves in films of the outfit in action, being shown at the harbor by Capt. Z. Pavlovich of the Jugo-Slav army. They are to be exhibited again tomorrow night at La Casa Grande, San Pedro. The local colony comprises 7000, and supplies 70 per cent of the local fishermen.

Dollar Line's trans-Pacific liner President Lincoln disembarked a score of passengers and began discharging 1600 tons of oriental cargo yesterday. She will embark forty travelers and load 2000 tons before sailing over the same course at 10 a.m. today.

The Panama Mail liner Ecuador, in from San Francisco this morning, will sail tonight for Central America and New York, inaugurating the new schedule calling for sailings on Mondays. She will embark a score of travelers here.

GOLD STRIKE STIRS ARIZONA

Mohave Mountains Discovery Hailed as Source of Old Dry Placer Millions

KINGMAN (Ariz.) Jan. 12. (Exclusive)—Northern Arizona is much excited over a gold discovery just made in the Mohave Mountains, sixty-five miles from this city. The strike evidently reveals the source from which came the gold taken out in dry placer activities that have extended across more than half a century.

The situation, geologically, compares with the Grass Valley district of California, where the Forty-niners first panned millions in gold nuggets at the grass roots and along creek banks, afterward discovering a fabulous treasury vault in the form of crystal quartz extending practically a mile deep and believed to have been the source from which the rich placer diggings of the early days in Northern California came.

"JEWELRY SHOP"

From out of this new find near Kingman have come specimens of gold ore that have dazzled and startled even the old-timers. Stories of the old days are being repeated and visions of new Eldorados came to the people of Mohave county.

A few weeks ago Billy Dunlap, George Pancher and E. V. Givens were prospecting in the Mohave Mountains. On the west slope of this range some twenty-odd miles south of Franconia and about sixty-five miles from Kingman, George Pancher had occasion to travel through a bunch of low-lying hills on the west slope of the Mohave Mountains, some six or seven miles back from the river. He found a number of quartz ledges cutting the country and so reported to his fellow-prospectors.

Givens returned to the district with Pancher and they took samples. They found specimens of quartz in which free gold was easily discernible. Horning gave such strings of gold in the pan that further prospecting was demanded.

TAKES PARTNERS

Associated with Dunlap, Pancher and Givens is A. Agrel, another of the county's old-time residents and prospectors. They established camp near the new discovery and began the location of claims, at the same time continuing a system of prospecting that demonstrated a section of country a mile in length by about half that distance in width was traversed by a system of parallel lodes and between which there were many veins, forming a network.

In all the surface showings of these many veins, the pan would show free gold while some of the returns were beyond a reasonable estimate. Picked samples later taken from the property gave returns from the assayer's offices of $40 to nearly $100,000 per ton, while all samples of the quartz gave returns of good mill values. Other samples taken carefully across several feet of ledge matter have shown extraordinary high values.

NOT NEW FIELD

This field is not entirely new for half a century ago placer diggings were prevalent and much gold was brought in from that district. It is now evident that the supply of placer gold which the dry washers of fifty or more years ago endeavored to extract from the gravel has been traced home.

In the quartz of the many veins of the new strike there is much coarse gold found, readily visible to the naked eye, said to demonstrate that the placer gold of that district is the result of erosion from these later discovered veins.

The gold is evidently primary and is found disseminated through the white siliceous quartz without contact with other metals or resort to cracks or fractures for its deposition. This is apparently proof that the ore is primary.

Its resemblance to the ores of the Mother Lode of California and to the old Vulture mine of Arizona is very apparent and quickly recognizable by those who are familiar with these widely separated sections of the country.

KEYSVILLE MINE AREA PICKING UP

Promising Ore Strike in Grumlumm Property Spurs Activity

KERNVILLE, Jan. 12. (Exclusive)—Disclosing what is believed to be a rich strike and renewed activity in the famed old Keysville mining district, the Grumlumm Mining Company has started operation of a five-stamp mill.

Julius Meyhoefer of 915 South Figueroa street, Los Angeles, is president of the company, and has spent $30,000 quietly developing the company's nine claims a mile and a half from Bodfish.

Roads have been built. About 185 feet of tunnel and sixty-five feet of the original surface have been opened up, and assays of gold ore have run from $15 a ton to $785, says W. C. Noyes, general manager. At times as many as fifteen men have been employed in preparing to start operations.

"Before the year is over we expect to be running the mill continuously, using three shifts and employing thirty-five or forty men," the manager says. "I am confident we have one of the richest mines in that part of the country."

MEXICO HAS NEW OUTPUT TAX ON OIL

Provisions of Measure Repealing Act of 1922 Given in Brief

MONTEREY (Mex.) Jan. 12. (Exclusive)—The new oil tax law which was passed by the Mexican Congress late in December became effective January 1. It repeals the decree of May 17, 1923, as well as all other laws which are contrary to the provisions of the new act.

Exceptions to the taxes established by the law include crude oil of national production which is utilized in any form within the limits of the country; products derived from crude oil of national production, utilized in any way within the country, provided it has been processed in national refineries; petroleum used by ships of national registry. Semimonthly tax payments are required. All taxes are in national gold, and they shall be paid into the Banco de Mexico, S. A.

"Of the revenue derived from the tax on production, from products of national origin, 9 per cent shall go to the State and 1 per cent to those municipalities within whose jurisdiction the producing wells are situated," the law provides. "These participations shall be in proportion to the official value of petroleum produced within the jurisdiction of each State and municipality."

Find of Bonanza Ore Reported in Colorado Mine

GUNNISON (Colo.) Jan. 12. (AP) Bonanza ore, with an estimated value of from $500 to $2000 a ton, has been discovered in the old Vulcan Goodhope mine, twenty miles southwest of Gunnison, it was announced today by officials of the Vulcan Consolidated Mines Corporation, which has had the property under lease and bond for three years.

A fifty-foot tunnel on the seventh level broke into ore New Year's Day and has now been crosscut for twenty feet and is heavily impregnated with Telluride of gold and a rare Telluride of copper, miners said. Several tons of the ore have been sacked.

The Vulcan Goodhope was developed more than thirty-five years ago and for years large shipments of ore were made from surface levels.

Extremely heavy water conditions have made exploration and unwatering of the mine difficult. A syndicate of New York mining men, headed by Dr. Max Roesler, mining engineer and metallurgist, has been in charge and has spent large sums in development of the property since taking the mine over in January, 1927.

Round Mountain Hole Strikes Top of Vedder Sand

ROUND MOUNTAIN, Jan. 12. (Exclusive)—Top of the Vedder sand has been struck by the Petroleum Securities Company in its Gardiner No. 1 well on Sec. 28, 27-23 in the Round Mountain field.

The sand was found at 1475 feet, and the hole is now being drilled near the 200-feet level with gray sand predominating.

Gerrard & Phillips have struck iron in their lone project in this field, on Sec. 32, 27-29. The bottom of the hole is around 1450 feet.

Homer Reardon's recently spudded Craig No. 1 well on Sec. 23, 28-28, is in sandy shale formation at 700 feet.

NEW MEXICO OIL REVENUES GAIN

Income from Source at Land Office $1,168,130

Total Largest for Any Year in State's History

Lea County's Production for 1929 Nearly Double

ARTESIA (N. M.) Jan. 12. (Exclusive)—The development of oil and gas on State lands in New Mexico is increasing at a rapid rate, according to a recent financial statement by the State Land Office at Santa Fe.

During 1929 the State Land Office did the largest business in its history, the receipts being only slightly under the $2,000,000 mark. Of that amount, receipts from oil and gas royalties and the sale of oil and gas leases on State lands amounted to more than all other sources of income combined—a total of $1,168,130.

The most active part of the State at present is Lea county, where production for the year 1929 was more than doubled. Pipe line runs for the county during the year amounted to approximately 990,880 barrels, exclusive of oil in storage and oil used for fuel purposes, which would run the accumulated production to more than 1,000,000 barrels for that period. Eddy county's production for 1929 ran half this amount.

Recent completion of a wildcat well in Lea county extended production twenty miles southeast from the Lea district. The well is Anna Meyers No. 1, of the Continental Oil Company, on Sec. 17, 21-36. Casing was cemented on top of the lime at 4001 feet and when the cement plug was drilled out the well started flowing and made 1000 barrels during the first eighteen hours. The test has been shut in to await pipe line connections.

Current rumor in the field is to the effect that the Shell Oil Company is contemplating laying a pipe line into the Hobbs district of Southeastern Lea county, from West Texas. A number of oil wells in the Hobbs district have been shut in, awaiting a pipe line, and now that Shell has become heavily interested in Southeastern New Mexico oil operators are inclined to give credence to the pipe line rumor.

CHANGES IN SMELTER AT EL PASO DUE

Remodeling of American Company Plant at Cost of $100,000 Forecast

EL PASO (Tex.) Jan. 12. (Exclusive)—An expenditure of approximately $100,000 will be made by the American Smelting and Refining Company in improvements to its smelter at El Paso, according to Brent N. Rickard, general manager of the plant. He says that 1929 was one of the most prosperous years in the history of the smelter and that 1930 is expected to be almost as good.

"It is reasonably certain that $100,000 will be appropriated for improvements to the smelter at El Paso," Mr. Rickard asserts. "It is necessary that the methods of handling minerals be improved. In this connection we hope to change and improve the sampling and crushing mill, to install a Dross reverberatory furnace and to install a Sinter crushing plant.

"These improvements will be in addition to the improvements in smelting methods installed for the purpose of increasing the efficiency of our plant, which were made during 1929, among them the installation of natural gas as fuel."

El Paso Copper Plant to Open

EL PASO (Tex.) Jan. 12. (Exclusive)—When the new copper refinery of the Nichols Copper Company in this city is placed in operation the 28th inst., employment will be given to between 400 and 500 men in the plant, according to F. R. Corwin, general manager.

"The refinery will handle 100,000 tons of copper annually," Mr. Corwin said. "Our annual labor pay roll will be approximately $500,000. I expect the copper market to remain in a satisfactory condition."

RICHFIELD FINISHES LAST OILDALE WELL

OILDALE, Jan. 12. (Exclusive) The Richfield Oil Company has completed the last of its government permit drilling jobs on Sec. 22, 28-27 of the Kern Front, and has the production shut in. The well is No. 6. It was completed at 2199 feet, with the casing cemented at 2186 feet.

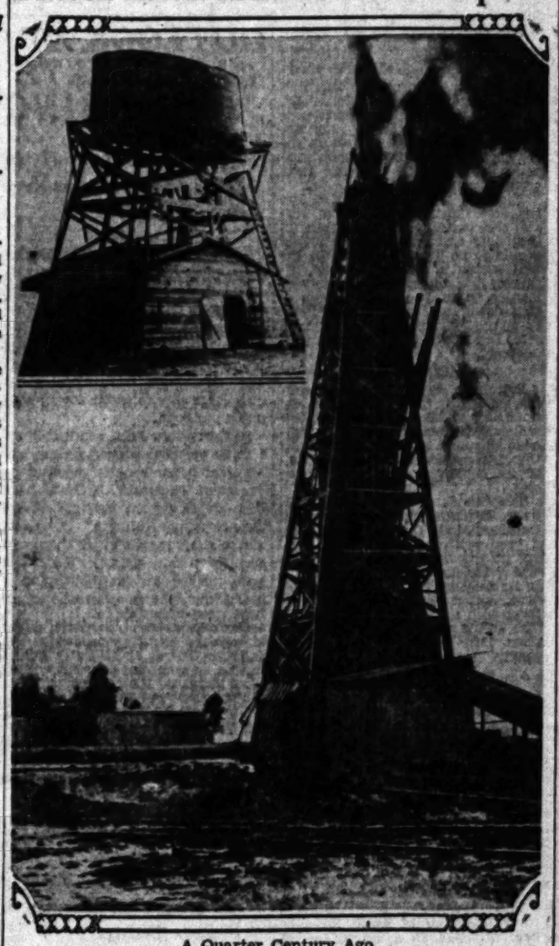
Nevada-Mont to Develop Fresh Placer Ground

LOVELOCK (Nev.) Jan. 12. (Exclusive)—The Nevada - Mont Company announces heavier equipment is to be installed on its gold placers at Placeritos, about forty miles north of Lovelock. The management states an adequate water supply has been developed, and existence of large and profitable gold-bearing deposits demonstrated.

Extensive placers south of Sulphur and nine miles north of Placeritos have been bonded by N. B. Terry and associates of Chicago. It is said from $300,000 to $400,000 will be expended on development of the deposits and piping of water from Black Rock hot springs, located twenty-two miles from the property.

WHEN WILSHIRE STRUCK OIL

Fifteen-Hundred-Barrel Gusher Spouts



A Quarter Century Ago

One of the first deep wells drilled in Los Angeles by old Salt Lake Oil Company. Insert shows redwood tank in which petroleum was stored until hauled away in tanks drawn by mules. Beneath tank was the tool shop and field office.

THE changes which twenty-five years have wrought in the city of Los Angeles are interestingly reflected by the accompanying picture, showing an oil well which a quarter of a century ago gushed at the rate of 1500 barrels a day, near the corner of Wilshire and La Brea avenues, within a stone's throw of the present Ritz Theater. The well was known as Arcturas No. 35 and was owned by the old Salt Lake Oil Company.

These interesting facts were brought to light by J. E. Koeberle, petroleum engineer of this city, who became interested in the activities of a group of Salt Lake City business men on the old La Brea Rancho, then wide open country. The company had ten shallow wells producing rather small quantities of oil and Mr. Koeberle persuaded the operators to let him deepen the No. 10. He took it down an additional seventy-six feet and sprang the output to 250 barrels daily.

This performance so enthused the operators that they erected a derrick and drilled a hole to about 1700 feet, where the well yielded 1500 barrels a day. This was in 1905 and 1906. Mr. Koeberle declared that at about the same time the company brought in from Texas the first rotary drilling outfit ever used in California and with it shoved a hole down to 1800 feet, where it put out 400 to 600 barrels, flowing between casing. A well known as No. 23 went to 1776 feet and flowed at the rate of 2300 barrels.

The first sand was found at 900 to 1100 feet, the next was reached at 1700 to 1800 feet, and finally the company began producing oil from depths between 2100 and 2300 feet. Mr. Koeberle is of the opinion that some of the present deep sands of other Los Angeles Basin oil fields underlie the old Salt Lake field out Wilshire way.

Nineteen months after Mr. Koeberle succeeded in getting sufficient funds for the old company to do some real drilling, for those days, the La Brea Rancho property was producing 9630 barrels of crude oil per day, and it was being hauled to market in Los Angeles—chiefly to refineries—in fifty-nine trailer wagons, each drawn by four mules. The public knew little about this big oil field, so Mr. Koeberle got up a parade.

All the fifty-nine oil wagons were hauled up Spring street from Ninth street to the Plaza, emblazoned with banners proclaiming that they contained crude oil from the Salt Lake Oil Company at La Brea Rancho. As a result of this advertising stunt, Mr. Koeberle asserts, the Associated Oil Company bought a 49 per cent interest in the property, later taking over the remainder of it. His recollection is that the total purchase was about $3,500,000, "but," says he, "the same class of property at this time would command not less than $10,000,000."

Today there are only a scattering half-dozen or so derricks in the La Brea Rancho area. Within the last three years upward of 100 old derricks have been removed, and it is reported that the scattering few which remain will shortly be taken down to make way for real estate improvements.

BIG BLACK BEAR TELLS PROGRAM

Plans to Spend $115,000 on Yreka Mine Group

Will Sink New Shaft and Put in Modern Equipment

Property of Marklee Gold Hit by Bad Fire

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 12. (Exclusive)—The Big Black Bear Mining Company, composed largely of British Columbians, announces that it contemplates an expenditure of $115,000 on the Black Bear and Yellow Jacket properties, located near Yreka. It is proposed to sink a new shaft on the main vein, open extensive laterals and install modern equipment.

The management says that a new ore body assaying $30 per ton in gold has been uncovered near the surface, and that promising ore shoots are showing in old areas. The Black Bear for several years was a famous producer, but has been worked only intermittently since 1882.

The Pioneer Consolidated Mining Company, working the Mitchell property near Grass Valley, reports the discovery of a small vein of excellent gold ore in the new winze. Strong veins are said to have been uncovered in the main workings and the installation of a larger mine plant and mill units is being considered by the owners.

Vigorous work is progressing in the historic Bully Hill mine near Winthrop, northeast of Redding, with a substantial tonnage of zinc-copper ore reported as being in sight. Early production is forecast. The Bully Hill was operated as a copper producer for many years by Capt. De la Mar, who erected a large smelter.

Fire recently destroyed the engine house, headframe and valuable machinery at the Marklee gold property, five miles from Volcano. The loss is placed by mine officials at $20,000 to $35,000. The company had been producing good ore for several months.

The Moore Mining Company reports that plans are progressing for the resumption of extensive work on its South Jackson and Moore properties near Jackson. It is planned to develop the Moore group at depth through the South Jackson shaft and explore a broad area of promising country.

NEW WELL PLANNED AT POSO CREEK

Foundation for Derrick Being Laid by Crew of Texas Company

POSO CREEK, Jan. 12. (Exclusive)—Foundation is being laid for the Texas Company's new well to be drilled on Sec. 16, 27-28, in the Poso Creek field. The well will be known as Alta Vedder No. 4, and will be located 150 feet north and 100 feet west from the southeast corner of the section.

The General Petroleum Corporation has staked location for a new well at Poso Creek. The hole will be drilled 150 feet north and 100 feet west from the southeast corner of Sec. 16, 27-28, in proven territory.

The General Petroleum has a site on Sec. 21, 27-28, which is being made ready for the rig, foundation having been laid, and active work waiting for the cement to dry.

The Agey Petroleum Corpany has begun its deepening program in the lower Poso Crdek field, and is drilling ahead below 2000 feet. Gray sandy shale predominates at bottom, it is reported.

The well is located on Sec. 28, 27-28, and is the only active drilling project in that particular area.

Three New Kern Wells Get on Way in Week

BAKERSFIELD, Jan. 12. (Exclusive)—Three new oil wells were spudded in last week in Kern county oil fields.

The California Western Oil Company began drilling its No. 5 well on Maricopa Flat, Sec. 17, 11-23. It is on the Havenstrite property.

In the Poso Creek field A. Bruce Frame is at work in his No. 4, Dominion on Sec. 28, 26-28.

Fred M. Sayre, who has been doing considerable prospecting, has spudded in his No. 1 well, south of Edison on Sec. 5, 30-29.

Four tests for water shutoff were reported as follows: Standard Oil Company No. 3, on Sec. 16, 11-23, and Doyle Petroleum Company No. 3, Sec. 8, 11-23, Sunset; Republic Petroleum Company No. 36, on Sec. 7, 32-23, Midway, and Chanslor-Canfield Midway Oil Company No. 30, on Sec. 23, 28-27, Kern River.

Two deepening jobs were begun, one being the Standard Oil Company No. 32, on Sec. 5, 32-23, Midway, and the other General Petroleum No. 10, on Sec. 14, 28-27, Kern River.

GOLD OUTPUT OF MINE AREA TOLD

Tonopah Mills Estimated at About $1,100,000

Treadwell-Yukon Total for Year $700,000

Slump in Silver Price Cuts Down Operations

TONOPAH (Nev.) Jan. 12. (Exclusive)—Bullion production of the Tonopah mills in 1929 is estimated at $1,100,000, with the ores drawn from properties at Tonopah, Gilbert, Divide and a number of small properties. The ruinous slump of silver prices forced closing of numerous properties in the final months of the year, and compelled the larger corporations to largely center activities on selective mining.

The Treadwell-Yukon Company has increased production from its mines at Tybo to 340 tons daily, and will probably raise its yield to 400 tons within ninety days. Value of the 1929 product is said to have approximated $700,000. The company is deepening its main shaft, opening new areas, and preparing for a record year in 1930. The ores are chiefly valuable for lead and zinc, but carry some silver and gold. The company maintains a monthly pay roll of $30,000, and has recently provided quarters for a larger crew.

The Tybo Dominion Company, understood to be controlled by New York and Southern California capital, has added a large compressor to its equipment and is sinking a 400-foot working shaft. The management expects the new outlet to pass from the oxidized strata into the sulphide zone at about 400 feet. The claims are located six miles north of Tybo, and were extensively worked more than sixty years ago.

The Red Rock Quicksilver Company is adding a fifteen-ton furnace to its plant in the White Mountains, preliminary to production of sixty-five flasks of mercury per month. A large tonnage of commercial ore is exposed. The B. and B. Quicksilver Company is preparing to place its new plant in commission this month.

Steady shipments have started from the large brucite deposits near the old camp of Downeyville to Los Angeles. The property, said to contain the most important deposit of commercial brucite ever found in America, was recently acquired by H. A. Sevinghaus of Los Angeles. One thousand tons a month will be trucked to Luling and shipped to Los Angeles by rail.

DEEPEST WELL HEAVY PAYER

First Year Output Valued at $1,301,004, Against $141,500 Cost

SAN ANGELO (Tex.) Jan. 12. (Exclusive)—The deepest producing well in the world paid for itself many times during the first year of its life. Between December 1, 1928, when it started to flow, and the 5th inst., it put out 938,128 barrels of oil worth $1.60 a barrel.

The value of the oil is said to have been $1,301,004, against a cost of $141,500 for drilling the well to a depth of 8525 feet. Most of the time this hole, known as University No. 6, and owned by the Continental Oil Company, has been yielding 2800 barrels per day. It puts out about 27,000,000 cubic feet of gas.

Good Progress at Kelly Rand Mine Reported

The Consolidated Metals Corporation reports good progress in both development and production in their Kelly Rand mine at Randsburg. Several new working faces have been opened up in both milling and shipping grade ore.

Shipments of ore and concentrates for the three months' period from October 1, 1929, to January 1, 1930, totaled 1188 tons, with a gross value of $126,156.

The Consolidated Metals Corporation is now negotiating for the purchase of one of the best producing quicksilver mines in the State, which will, if the deal is consummated, greatly increase assets and earnings. It is the announced intention of the company to become a complete unit in the mining industry.

Thirty-Day Test Due at Project

BELRIDGE, Jan. 12. (Exclusive) Disappointed by the showing obtained in its No. 1 well on Sec. 2, 29-30 in the Belridge field the Elmer Oil Company is giving the well a thirty-day test.

The hole was drilled to 3975 feet and brought in for fifty barrels daily after which it soon slumped to thirty barrels. At present the well is on the pump each day for an hour an a half, the remainder of the time elapsing to allowing the oil to accumulate in the hole.

Whether or not the company will drill another well to test out the territory has not been announced.

NEW KETTLEMAN WELL DUE

Petroleum Securities Project on North Dome of Field Slated for Early Completion

That the Petroleum Securities Company may join the ranks of producing organizations on the north dome of Kettleman Hills within two weeks is the opinion of field men. The company now is drilling ahead in Felix No. 4, on Section 35, 21-17, intending to go 200 feet farther in the oil sand. The hole is down 7276 feet, with nearly 700 feet of oil formation penetrated.

The Felix well is on land owned in fee by a number of property owners. They pooled their interests with the Petroleum Securities people, organizing the Felix Oil Company. Petroleum Securities is developing the property and, according to an asserted clause in the contract, if this organization suspends work on the well the Felix group can take it over.

The well was under way before the government undertook to create the curtailment agreement in that field and Petroleum Securities is said to be bound to complete the well within a reasonable time, although it is understood to have permission from the Felix group to shut down the lease, in accordance with the curtailment agreement, after this one well is placed on production.

OIL CONTRACTED

Petroleum Securities has contracted with the Associated Oil Company to take the oil from this well and has constructed a casinghead gasoline absorption plant on the lease capable of handling 100,000,000 cubic feet of natural gas per day.

The Standard Oil Company, Milham Exploration Company and Continental Oil Company each have a good well on production at present on the north dome. The General Petroleum Corporation brought in its Ochsner No. 2 on Sec. 26 this week, but is shutting it in to conform with the operating agreement. The well is said to be good for more than 1500 barrels a day, with a gravity test of 61 deg.

FISHING FOR DRILL

General's Ochsner No. 2 on Sec. 20 is fishing for a drill pipe with bottom of the hole at 7116 feet. The pipe is frozen at 6400 feet and has delayed operations there for a few weeks. A difficult fishing job was recently completed by the Associated Oil Company in Watson No. 1 on Sec. 34, 22-18. Drill pipe was frozen with bottom of the hole at 4891 feet and it now is being cleaned preparatory to resumption of drilling operations. The company's Whipley No. 1 on Sec. 35, 21-17, is drilling below 5340 feet.

The Ohio Oil Company has drilled to 8017 feet in its Smith No. 1 on Sec. 35, 24-19, in a search for oil. It now is the deepest hole at Kettleman Hills. Several months ago it tested wet slightly below 7000 feet.

The Standard Oil Company's No. 8 on Sec. 1, 22-17, has settled down as to production and is putting out 4200 barrels of oil per day from a depth of 7108 feet. This producer offsets the Milham Exploration Company's Elliott No. 1, now flowing 3300 barrels daily from a depth of 7236 feet, and the Continental Oil Company's Elliott No. 12-18, flowing 5800 barrels of oil per day, being a marked decline compared to the potential established when brought in.

Zinc Smelter on Laredo Card

LAREDO (Tex.) Jan. 12. (Exclusive)—Construction of a zinc smelter and refinery here to cost $8,000,000 is under consideration by the San Francisco Mines of Mexico, Ltd., according to E. A. Stroud of that company.

The company originally contemplated locating the plant at El Paso, but satisfactory land and water rights were not obtained there, and an investigation of conditions at Laredo with the view of locating the industry here is now being made.

TEXAS UNIVERSITY ROYALTIES MOUNT

AUSTIN (Tex.) Jan. 12. (Exclusive)—With the payments of a total of $158,131.29 of royalties on oil production and bonuses on leases to the University of Texas during the month of December, the fund of that institution derived from these sources reached a grand total of $13,377,446.03, all of which is invested in United States bonds. Four oil pools are now located upon lands owned by the university in West Texas.

OUTLOOK AT OLD ESTATE PROMISING

Diamond Drill Work in Louis d'Or Viewed as Very Encouraging

MIAMI (Ariz.) Jan. 12. (Exclusive)—Two drills are being operated on the old Louis d'Or property, now under option to the Pinto Valley Company, a corporation headed by Garrett Mott of New York City. He states that results have been very encouraging, with blocking out of a large disseminated copper sulphide ore body.

A thirty-foot lens, running from 1 to 20 per cent copper and an average of 3 per cent is reported by President Thomas P. Kelly to have been struck on the property of the Bronze King Mining Company, eleven miles from Miami. The group has forty-four claims. Work has been pushed for six months on a broad iron dyke, in which the values have been developed.

Cleaning up the old Gibson dump is reported as being profitable. H. E. Keyes and A. E. Miller of Miami have a lease on the property. They have increased the capacity of their milling plant to 250 tons a day with an average net return of nearly 1 per cent copper, it is stated.

OPERATIONS AT ARIZONA MINES TOLD

Central Copper Pushing Work on Dos Cabezas in Willcox District

TUCSON (Ariz.) Jan. 12. (Exclusive)—Operations of the Central Copper Company at Dos Cabezas are reported continuing, with a force of twenty-six men, of whom eleven are underground. The property is equipped with a large, modern mill and tramway and has its own railroad to Willcox. At the head of the corporation is T. N. McCauley, president of the Consolidated National Bank of this city.

W. M. Snow, consulting engineer, reports that the Mile Wide and Gould copper properties, near Tucson, are to have additional exploration through 2500 feet of diamond drilling and 500 feet of drifts and cross-cuts.

Percy Williams, manager of the Silver Reef property, states that a tunnel is being driven to cut a thirty-foot vein at depth, while a winze is being sunk on the ore.

A pilot mill is to be set on tungsten property in the Whetstone Mountains, owned by E. P. Larrieu, J. D. Chadwick and Jonathan Gordon of Tombstone.

MEXICO HIT SHARPLY BY SILVER DROP

Slump of 19 Per Cent in Year Threatens Mining Industry of Republic

MONTEREY (Mex.) Jan. 12. (Exclusive)—As a result of the drop in the price of bar silver, amounting to approximately 19 per cent during the last twelve months, many silver mines in Mexico will soon suspend operations, according to information received by the National Chamber of Mines.

In some of the mining districts conditions are so serious that appeals have been made to the government for financial aid, pending an improvement in the price of the metal. Already a number of mines have shut down, especially those in which silver is the principal metal obtained from the ores.

The present situation is affecting districts in the States of Chihuahua, Durango and Jalisco more than those in other parts of the country. During the year 1929 the total production of bar silver in Mexico was approximately 100,000,000 troy ounces, which was about 5,000,000 troy ounces less than the production of 1928.

Mining Company Wins Appeal on Corporation Tax

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 12. (AP)—Deciding that a California mining company whose sole activity during the last twenty years has been ownership of real property in Butte county is not "doing business" within the meaning of the new 4 per cent corporation income tax law, the State Board of Equalization reversed a decision by Reynold E. Blight, franchise tax commissioner.

This was the first appeal to come before the board from a ruling of the commissioner, whose office was created by an act of the 1929 Legislature imposing the income tax. Blight had held the Magalia Mining Company was still doing business because it owned property, notwithstanding cessation of all mining and other activities more than twenty years ago.

ARIZONA MINING INDUSTRY HUMS

Mines and Smelters Working Total of 19,000 Men

Additional 2500 Employed in Prospecting Activities

Combined Monthly Pay Roll Fixed at $3,375,000

PHOENIX, Jan. 12. (Exclusive)—Arizona's mines and smelters are employing 19,000 men, according to an estimate by Tom C. Foster, State mine inspector. This is to be compared with about 14,000 at the end of 1928.

In addition, about 2500 men are employed on prospecting or development work on small mines. With wage schedules 15 per cent higher than in 1928, combined pay rolls now are estimated at $3,375,000 a month, about $1,000,000 more than twelve months ago.

Thirty-two men—three more than in the previous year, died in mine accidents during 1929, but this is considered an excellent record, compared with figures from other States in the industry. Serious and lesser injuries numbered 674.

Mines listed as "producing" number 177. Mainly within such mining organizations, improvements now under way are to cost fully $10,000,000. The major items are: Calumet and Arizona Mining Company, $1,600,000 in the smelter at Douglas and about $1,000,000 for shaft and power additions at the Warren mines, with about $3,000,000 for mill and mine development on the New Cornelia subsidiary at Ajo; Phelps Dodge Corporation, $1,000,000 for smelter enlargement at Douglas; Miami Copper Company, $2,500,000 for enlargement of its mill at Miami; Inspiration Consolidated Copper Company, $850,000 for enlargement of the Miami leaching plant and power plant; United Verde Copper Company, $350,000 for what is to be the most powerful underground hoist in the world.

In addition, large improvement work is under way on the Magma property at Superior, the Christmas, near Hayden, and on the Sheldon smelter and mill at Humboldt.

VANADIUM MILL VOTED SUCCESS

Operation of O'Brien Plant at Globe Efficient

Magnet Used in Drawing Off Other Ores in Mass

Emsco Asbestos Prepares to Make Cleaner Fiber

GLOBE (Ariz.) Jan. 12. (Exclusive)—The O'Brien mill in Globe is reported to have been quite successful in its separation of vanadate of lead from other vein material. Much aid in the process has been given by use of a magnet that does not affect the vanadium, but which draws out iron and tungsten and other metallic particles.

Ore is brought by truck from the Bywater Dripping Springs property, owned by Will Peters and George Wilson of Globe, and from the mine of the Apache Vanadium Company at Radium. From the latter property some lead-silver ore has been shipped to the El Paso smelter.

A full carload of concentrate recently was shipped by the local plant to works in Niagra Falls to be refined into ferro-vanadium, used for hardening steel. New equipment is being added at the Radium mine to secure a much larger production.

The Emsco Asbestos Company is completing its milling plant, which will partially clean the fiber before shipment to a secondary plant at Downey, Cal. Shipments already have been made, with statement that the product is of unusually high quality. It is used mainly in the manufacture of brake lining.

About 100 tons a day are being handled in the mill of the Regal Asbestos Company at Rice. Nearly 100 men are employed in the mines and reduction plant. The company is a New York one.

Associated Telephone Utilities Company

Fifteen-Year 5½% Convertible Gold Debentures, Series C

Dated May 1, 1929. Due May 1, 1944.

Coupon debentures, $1000 and $500 denominations, registerable as to principal. Interest payable semi-annually May 1 and November 1 at the office of Continental Illinois Bank and Trust Company in Chicago or at the office of the Bankers Trust Company in New York. Redeemable at any time at the option of the Company, in whole or in part, on 30 days' published notice at 105 up to and including April 30, 1939, and thereafter at 1% less for each succeeding year or portion thereof, plus accrued interest in all cases. The Company agrees to reimburse, if requested within sixty days after payment, the Pennsylvania, Connecticut and California four mills tax and the Massachusetts income tax up to 6%. Interest payable without deduction for the normal federal income tax up to 2%. Continental Illinois Bank and Trust Company of Chicago, Trustee.

Mr. Marshall E. Sampsell, President of the Company, summarizes his letter as follows:

Business: The Associated Telephone Utilities Company, incorporated in Delaware in 1926, will upon completion of this financing, control through stock ownership or otherwise, groups of telephone properties serving a total population in excess of 3,110,000. These properties operate in 1,246 communities in the states of California, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Michigan, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, New Mexico, New York, Ohio, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Texas, Washington, Wisconsin and Wyoming. They include 397,428 stations and constitute one of the largest groups of independent telephone properties in the United States. Through interconnections with the lines of the Bell Telephone Companies, the long distance toll lines of the Bell System are available to all subscribers. Of the total gross operating revenues, approximately 22.4% is derived from toll business.

Earnings: Consolidated earnings (including the earnings of all properties to be presently controlled) for the years ended December 31, 1927, December 31, 1928 and October 31, 1929, after giving effect to present financing, were as follows:

Gross earnings	$11,347,013.61	$12,159,645.94	$13,072,737.14
Operating expenses and taxes	6,417,589.24	6,577,457.53	6,809,633.88
Net earnings before depreciation	$ 4,929,424.37	$ 5,582,188.41	$ 6,263,103.26
Operating companies annual bond interest and preferred stock dividend requirements			$ 2,023,553.30
Earnings accruing to minority common stock interest			73,269.54
Balance			$ 4,166,280.22
Annual interest on entire funded debt of Associated Telephone Utilities Company (including this issue)			854,035.00
Balance available for reserves, federal taxes and dividends			$ 3,312,245.22

Consolidated net earnings, as above set forth, for the year ended October 31, 1929 were more than 4.8 times the interest requirements on all the outstanding debentures of the Company (including this issue).

Equity: These debentures, totalling $15,576,000 of all series take precedence as to assets and earnings over 45,035 shares of no par value Prior Preferred Stock, 50,000 shares of no par value preferred stock and 580,975 shares of no par value Common Stock. These securities, junior to the debentures, have a present market value in excess of $21,000,000. The replacement value of the operating properties, less depreciation, is substantially in excess of all funded indebtedness and preferred stocks of the operating companies and all funded indebtedness, Prior Preferred and Preferred Stock of this Company.

Conversion: Each $1,000 debenture, with all unmatured coupons attached, is convertible at the holder's option into Common Stock on the following terms: To and including May 1, 1932, into 33 shares of Common Stock; and thereafter to and including May 1, 1935, into 30 shares of Common Stock. Each $500 debenture is likewise convertible into Common Stock on the same proportionate basis. After May 1, 1935, all conversion rights cease.

Price 99 and Interest, to yield 5.60%

These debentures are offered for delivery when, as and if issued and accepted by us and subject to approval of counsel. The books and accounts of the corporation and its subsidiaries are audited annually by Arthur Andersen & Co., Certified Public Accountants, Chicago.

NEW EDUCATION LAW EXPLAINED

Superintendent of Public Instruction Speaks

Continuation School Men Hear Outline of Plan

In Effect Next June, Will Enter Part-Time Work

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 11.—Effect of the new part-time education law which becomes effective next July and the steps that must be taken to prepare properly for the needs of boys and girls who will come under its provisions were discussed yesterday at a meeting of continuation school men from all parts of California called by Vierling Kersey, State Superintendent of Public Instruction. Mr. Kersey led in the discussion. Other speakers were: Dr. Edwin A. Lee, director of the division of vocational education at the University of California; F. C. Webber, principal of the Metropolitan High School in Los Angeles; Dr. Emily Palmer, director of the division of research and service at the University of California, and John Carroll, principal of the Parkside School in Sacramento.

"Under the new law boys and girls under 18 years of age who are employed must attend continuation high school for fifteen hours a week and shall be given educational and vocational consel and guidance.

INSTRUCTION DEFINED

Defining the type of instruction that shall be given, Kersey said that teaching must involve fundamentals and must be related to every job. They must be given the basic elements of culture, and the benefits of reading, advantages of knowing music, and the value of life. Teachers must be specially trained for this type of work and courses will be offered at the University of California at Los Angeles and at Berkeley.

Kersey explained the complications that will be created through the new system such as determining to what extent the help given about the home constitutes "employment." "It is evident that the program must be one of activities and not confined to academic work," he said.

"History shows that there are periods of education and we are now definitely entering on a period that historians will call the adjustment period," Dr. Lee said. "The old guidance looms large in the educational philosophy of today. Education is now accepted as the process of adjusting the individual to the life he will inevitably enter. The continuation high school has been more of an element in making this adjustment than any other agencies. It is the great experiment of our generation and in the next ten years you will lay the foundation on which the education in all schools will be built.

BORDER CHOICE PREDICTED

Describing the reduction in the number of subjects on high-school curriculums and the course of study from 1909 and the domination of the University of California, Kersey said that in the immediate future the elective system will be extended, but with a sounder rather than a more limited choice.

"In the immediate future social adjustment in our high schools will be more the measure of accomplishment. In twenty years I venture to say the high-school report card will be abolished and within five years high-school education will be readily available for every boy and girl depending on their ability. The measure of success in the high school will be based on what we can predict for the student in the future years ahead, rather than by present academic measurements.

"The four so-called extra objectives in the challenging education include learning how to think, development of a dynamic contageous personality, teaching boys and girls how to do many things and enable them to develop the power to live in the arts of life such as music, drama and mass athletics."

HUBBARD PRESIDES

Supt. C. S. Hubbard presided at the luncheon session and Nicholas Ricciardi, chief of the division of secondary education, at the morning session. Frank Bouelle, city superintendent of schools at Los Angeles, Assistant Superintendent W. V. Trigg of that city, and Dr. Frank W. Thomas, president of the Fresno State College, were among those present.

FATHER AND DAUGHTER IN TEXAS TRAGEDY DIE

HOUSTON (Tex.) Jan. 12. (AP)—Tom Turner and his 12-year-old daughter Edna, whom he shot, before turning the pistol upon himself, died within two hours of each other in a hospital here today. Friday afternoon Turner went to the school his daughter and his son, Arthur, attended, invited them to an automobile ride and carried them to the home of his estranged wife, where he fired bullets into their heads. Then he shot himself.

FORT WORKERS STRIKE

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 12. (AP)—Port workers today declared a forty-eight-hour general strike in protest against the killing of one of their number by shots asserted to have been fired by nonunion workers. Six unions will join in the strike.

FOREST LEADER APPOINTED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12. (AP)—The Forest Service announced today that Ernest J. Andrews of Michigan, veteran forester recently in charge of that State's conservation department, land protection division, has been appointed regional project leader for the Pacific-Northwest.

HINDU LECTURES TONIGHT

Bhakti Ghoswal, Hindu philosopher, will give a lecture tonight on "Know What Prevents You from Attaining Success," which is the fourth of a series begun Saturday evening with "Secret Youth of the Universe," at the Walker Auditorium, 730 South Grand avenue.

FALL KILLS OFFICIAL

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 12. (AP)—Joseph M. Hackett, 67 years of age, storekeeper at Rocklin for sixteen years, was found dead in his home today, a deep gash in his forehead. Authorities believe he stumbled and his head striking a corner of a table.

STONE AGE RACE FILMED

Rockefeller Institute Party Gets Pictures and Data on Primitives in Remote Australia

SYDNEY (Australia) Jan. 12. (AP)—In remote Australia, untouched by civilization, man still exists in the Stone Age. A few years more and the opportunity he presents for scientific study probably will have gone.

Under the auspices of the Rockefeller Institute and at the invitation of the Australian Scientific Research Association a party headed by Dr. Porteus, professor of racial physics of the University of Hawaii, Dr. Paul Withington of Honolulu and Ralph King, a photographer, have, by penetrating inland from the far northwest coast of the continent, obtained more than 25,000 feet of extraordinarily valuable films and a mass of data.

SHY AND HOSTILE

The natives were shy and hostile, and several times spears were thrown at the party, but no serious opposition was met. Great difficulty was encountered in getting into contact with the natives, but films of high scientific value were obtained, mainly at Osborne Island. There the party succeeded in winning over a native through whom they gradually won the confidence of the inhabitants, who had taken to the bush, but who drifted back in bunches and dropped their weapons as a sign of friendship.

Mr. King, who has been on many expeditions and who has studied the customs of the natives of Tibet, Africa, China and Peru, says never before was he so fascinated and often he became so interested that he forgot to operate his camera.

The expedition also made a large collection of native birds, animals, and reptiles for scientific purposes.

MISHAP HALTS WORK

In Western Queensland the expedition came to an unfortunate conclusion when Dr. Withington's hand was poisoned by a piece of rusty wire. Under the greatest difficulties he was rushed by air and rail 2500 miles to Sydney for special treatment. His life was saved, but he was on the point of death several times en route.

FIRE IN MINE TRAPS PAIR HOPELESSLY

Blaze Turns Diggings Far Back in Kentucky Hills Into Tomb

HENDERSON (Ky.) Jan. 12. (AP) Far back in the Kentucky hills, Aaron Bridwell, 33 years of age, and Dorris Woods, 38, today were sealed tight in a blazing mine—a mine that will be their tomb.

The two men were working 300 feet back in a slope mine, one that goes into a hillside, late yesterday when fire broke out in the entrance, trapping them. Gasoline from an engine pulling the mine car became ignited, spread, and in a few minutes the mine entrance was a blazing inferno.

At midnight G. P. Powell, Evansville, United States Mine Bureau inspector, announced there was no chance for the men to be alive and ordered the mine sealed to smother the fire. The sealing of the mine was completed today. Inspector Powell said it probably would be at least four or five weeks before the mine could be opened, as the fire was expected to burn that long.

Scale of Prices for Protection Quoted at Trial

HAMMOND (Ind.) Jan. 12. (Exclusive)—Bootleggers and dive keepers were quoted a scale of prices which they had to pay for protection if they wished to enter the booze, gambling or vice rackets in East Chicago and Indiana Harbor according to testimony before Federal Judge Slick here.

The evidence was presented by the government, which is trying to convict twenty-eight men and women, including Mayor Hale and Chief of Police Regan of the two towns, of conspiracy to violate the prohibition law.

Survey of Living Costs Launched

NEW YORK, Jan. 12. (AP)—Leifur Magnusson, United States representative of the international labor office, announced tonight that a study of the cost of living in relation to wages, sponsored by the Labor Office at Geneva, has been started in Detroit.

Magnusson said that agents of the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics and J. W. Nixon, chief statistician of the International Labor Office, last week began a "first-hand survey of the purchasing power" of Ford Motor Company employees' wages. This survey, he said, will be used as the basis for the entire investigation.

Dr. Cook Prison Plea Up Today

LEAVENWORTH (Kan.) Jan. 12. (AP)—Dr. Frederick A. Cook, Arctic explorer and oil promoter, is among those whose cases will come before the prison parole board at its sessions beginning tomorrow.

Dr. Cook has served nearly five years of a sentence of fourteen years and nine months, imposed upon him in Federal Court at Fort Worth, Tex., for fraudulent use of the mails in connection with oil-promotion activities.

STEEL MANUFACTURER DIES

COATESVILLE (Pa.) Jan. 12. (AP) Braham Francis Huston, 77 years of age, steel manufacturer and banker, died today of heart disease. He was chairman of the board of the Lukens Steel Company.

NOTED SURGEON DIES

CLEVELAND, Jan. 12. (AP)—Dr. Carl A. Hamann, 62 years of age, fellow of the American College of Surgeons and ranked as one of the outstanding surgeons in the United States, died at Charity Hospital here early today of heart disease.

Two Texans Die in Plane Crash

AMARILLO (Tex.) Jan. 12. (AP)—Emmett Myers, pilot, and L. P. Wheeler, airplane salesman, both of Amarillo, were killed here today when their ship crashed. The cause was not learned.

The ship was one of six giving flying exhibitions over the city. When it was circling about three miles from the English Airport, to which both victims were attached, it went into a nose dive from about 1500 feet, spectators acid. The dive then turned to a spin in which the plane crashed.

Myers leaves his widow and four children.

Jury Convicts Federal Agent

MILWAUKEE, Jan. 12. (AP)—Ben G. Finke, prohibition agent of St. Paul, who formerly was an investigator here, today was found guilty on one of five bribery counts by a Federal jury.

The jury found that he had permitted a truckload of alcohol to pass through Wes Allis, a suburb, on November 8, 1929, for a consideration of $10,000, paid him by Joe Pessin and Ralph West. He now is liable to a fine of $10,000 or a five-year term in Leavenworth prison.

THREE SMOTHER TO DEATH IN AUTO CRASH

OSSEO (Minn.) Jan. 12. (AP)—Three persons killed late last night in their automobile while en route to a dance were smothered to death, the County Coroner said today. They became tangled up in robes and blankets when the car turned over after it had skidded off a snow-covered road near here. The Coroner said they suffered no broken bones or other injuries serious enough to cause death. The victims were Bernard Kuklok, 23 years of age; his sister, Pauline, 22, and Marguerite Siedenkrans, 16, all of here. The driver was Arthur Schimelpfenig, a farm hand living near here.

BAR OFFICIAL ELECTED

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 12. (AP)—Delgar Trowbridge of San Francisco, a member of the Industrial Accident Commission, was elected chairman of the State Bar Committee of Bar Examiners last night.

CROWN GEMS IN HUGE CAGE

Russian Collection Excites Foreigners' Curiosity; Jewels Valued at $264,000,000

MOSCOW, Jan. 10. (AP)—For better safekeeping Russia's $264,000,000 collection of crown jewels, probably the finest array of gems ever assembled, has been placed in a huge steel cage in the state bank, in a great coffer resembling a steel-barred cell in an American prison.

The dazzling gems, which date from the time of the extravagant Catherine the Great to the last Czar, are placed in plush-lined leather cases on long tables within the cage, where they may be viewed by foreign visitors.

VISITORS ADMITTED

Upon presentation of proper credentials visitors are admitted to the cage to see this extraordinary display of diamonds, rubies, pearls and emeralds, much the same as they would be allowed to see a prisoner in a cell. No object in soviet Russia today, except it be the body of Vladimir Ilyitch Lenin, which lies in state in a wooden tomb in Red Square, attracts the attention and excites the curiosity of visitors quite so much as the crown jewels.

It is by no means easy to obtain a permit to see this gorgeous assemblage in the collection of which the emperors and empresses of Russia of centuries past ransacked the diamond marts of two hemispheres. Special guards within the steel-barred jewel cage keep a vigilant eye on the precious treasure, which forms a part of the government's gold reserve for the issue of paper money.

The principal gem in the great collection is the magnificent crown worn by Catherine the Great at her coronation in 1762, which is valued by the soviet government at $24,000,000. Eager to see how it feels to wear a royal crown, many American visitors to the state bank have tried to put this crown on their heads, but were prevented by soviet guards.

ORLOFF GEM ATTRACTS

Other Americans have been attracted by the huge Orloff diamond, which is as large as a bisected egg, and weighs 196 carats. This stone was presented by Count Orloff, one of Catherine the Great's lovers, as a birthday remembrance to his sovereign.

Ever since the 1917 revolution the soviet government nas been trying to dispose of the crown jewels for cash, or to exchange them for tractors, locomotives or other pressingly needed articles. As the government, however, has placed a high antiquarian valuation on the gems, very few foreigners have offered to buy any of them.

American experts who have examined the jewels declare the soviet government never will succeed in selling the treasure on a basis of historic or antiquarian valuation. They insist the fact the gems once belonged to the Russian royal family who were murdered and, therefore, have historic interest, only militates against their value, and that the only equitable valuation is one based upon the sheer weight of the jewels in carats and appraised at current market prices.

COAST OIL PRICE QUIZ OPEN TODAY

Bay City Federal Jury Calls for Books of Many California Companies

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 12. (Exclusive)—Investigation of asserted price-fixing agreements between the major oil companies operating in six western States will start tomorrow before the Federal grand jury, which has been ordered to hold daily sessions. Asst. Atty.-Gen. Amen, due to reach San Francisco tomorrow, will conduct the hearings.

Secretaries of thirty-three oil companies of California, together with agents and representatives of the companies in Washington, Oregon, Utah, Arizona and New Mexico, have been subpoenaed to appear and bring a long list of records specifically named in the "praecipes" signed by Federal Judge St. Sure.

The investigation was ordered by Atty.-Gen. Mitchell, to whom charges of price fixing and other violations of the antitrust acts were made.

NYE RECITES AIM OF WILD JACKASSES

Parable of Balaam and Steed Used in Address in New York City

NEW YORK, Jan. 12. (AP)—The parable of Balaam and his jackass was used tonight by Senator Nye of North Dakota at the Labor Temple here to answer the description of the rebel western Republicans of the party in the Senate as "the sons of the wild jackass."

Senator Nye related how the angel of the Lord was sent to head off Balaam, riding on his jackass to put a curse on the children of Israel, and how Balaam failed to see the angel, although the jackass did. Blind to the warning, Balaam smote the animal when it finally fell down and refused to advance against the angel.

"Of course," said the North Dakotan, "the story has a happy ending. Balaam's eyes finally were opened by the Lord, and he saw the angel and perceived his great error. Not before he had wrongfully punished his jackass, true, but before he had gone too far on the way which was perverse to his Lord.

"It is too late for tame jackass party bosses to open their eyes and perceive that they are riding their party to certain disaster regardless of the braying and the urging and advising of their wild jackass brothers?

"The jackasses have been striving, we think, to make their party and their government responsive to the will and the interest of those people who pay the bill of being governed and who help constitute the party and, because of this balky attitude, our blind, political Balaams lash at us with their tongues."

Mexico Saloon Curb in Effect on Wednesday

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 12. (Exclusive)—After next Wednesday, according to an official notice today, no more licenses for saloons or places selling liquor will be issued in the Federal District. The district includes Mexico City. The same law will be enforced in several other Mexican States.

The district government hopes in this way gradualy to close down resorts for the sale of intoxicating liquor.

IMMIGRATION LAW PROTESTED

California Committee Says Loopholes Numerous

Provisions Held Lacking for Deportations

Restrictions Evaded by More Than 2,000,000

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 12. (AP)—The California joint immigration committee today forwarded a formal communication to the Immigration Committee of the House of Representatives in which it charged "the immigration restriction act is not being enforced and cannot be enforced because of the absence of provisions for the apprehension, punishment and deportation of violators."

The Blease Act providing punishment for illegal entry, the letter to the House committee said, is of comparatively little value in the absence of machinery to apprehend and deport those who are guilty. Enactment of legislation for the purposes indicated was urged.

MILLIONS EVADE LAW

The statement declared that since 1921 the United States has acquired approximately 2,000,000 deportable aliens and is adding to the number at the rate of about 200,000 a year, while only 26,000 are expelled.

It is suggested that "any plan to restrict immigration through ports of entry under existing conditions will simply increase the number of surreptitious entries whose character generally would be less desirable than that of those subject to consular inspection and visa." Such restrictive measures would be valueless, the California committee points out, without the suggested legislation for apprehension and deportation of violators of the law.

Quoting an official of the Carnegie Institution of Washington, the committee said that while the Federal government is spending less than $2,000,000 per year on the immigration service, the several States are spending approximately $27,000,000 per year for maintenance of alien inadequates our deportation service does not remove. An annual deportation appropriation of not less than $10,000,000 was recommended.

Members of the joint committee are Atty.-Gen. U. S. Webb, Edward J. Lynch, James D. Phelan, V. S. McClatchy, James K. Fisk, Paul Scharrenberg and George R. Harrison.

CHAIN STORE CURB URGED BY TEXANS

Legislators Would Force Investment in State of Third of Earnings

AUSTIN (Tex.) Jan. 12. (Exclusive)—If a movement which is now on foot by a group of members of the Legislature is successful, Gov. Dan Moody will submit to that body, when it meets in special session the 20th inst., one or more measures affecting chain stores owned by out-of-Texas corporations.

One of the proposed bills will require that all such corporations shall invest 33 per cent of their Texas earnings in Texas securities. This proposed law will be patterned after the famous Robertson Insurance Act which requires all outside life insurance companies to invest 75 per cent of their earnings on Texas business in securities of this State. This law resulted in twenty-one of the leading life insurance companies withdrawing from Texas many years ago. Their places have been taken by domestic companies.

It is asserted by the proponents of the chain store investment bill that these stores are rapidly driving smaller independent stores out of business in every town of the State. They are also seriously affecting many wholesale houses in Texas, it is asserted.

ADDITIONAL DAIRY INSPECTOR ENGAGED

TULARE, Jan. 12.—Acting on a recent recommendation of the local Chamber of Commerce, an additional dairy inspector has been employed at the testing station of the Los Angeles Board of Health here, according to announcement. Stephen E. Sackstaver is the new inspector. The staff of the testing station now numbers four and reflects growth of the dairy industry in this section. Charles R. White is technician in charge of the station. Thomas Beddo, R. C. Harrison and Sackstaver are the inspectors. With employment of the new inspector, extension of research and field work will now be possible, according to White.

DAIRYMAN DENIES HE HIT WOMAN IN EYE

HANFORD, Jan. 12.—Charged with disturbing the peace, Manuel Elario, Kings county dairyman, told Judge H. H. Warnock, before whom he was taken, that "It is not so." He is accused of striking Mrs. John V. Machado in the eye with his fist. Undersheriff J. E. Sparks asserts that Elario and John Machado, who are partners in the dairy business, were engaged in a fistic battle and that Elario struck Mrs. Machado, who was a spectator, in the eye. Elario entered

WATER SUPPLY WARNING GIVEN

Mulholland Cites Need for Further Conservation

Recent Rains and Snow Far from Filling Demands

Possibility for New Sources Also Told by Engineer

The recent rains and heavy snowfall in the mountains will be of great value to Los Angeles and vicinity, but the people must not jump to the conclusion that this has solved the water-supply problem in Southern California. This caution issued yesterday by Chief Engineer Van Norman of the Municipal Water Bureau.

"One rainstorm or snowstorm, even though unusually heavy, will not solve our water-supply problem," Mr. Norman stated. "It has made a good start. We hope that the storms will continue to let us have more rain for many months to come. We need it all—and more. We must not be lulled into a false security by a few inches of rain, as recently are using more water each year in this section.

NEED OF CONSERVATION

"We are not cautioned to be just as careful as ever in the conservation of water. At best, the local rainfall probably will not exceed the annual precipitation. A normal fall of rainfall is far short of the annual consumption by Los Angeles. On an average from two to five feet of water are used locally. Estimates show that in one city block an amount of water eighty-six feet deep is used in the period of a year.

"We must not only prevent waste of the water we have, but must be alert to develop new resources. We must not lose sight of the fact that we are living in a coastal region and must do all we can to acquire more waterbearing lands and tap regions which at present are only available.

EVERY DROP NECESSARY

"We must conserve and put to its highest use every drop of water that falls in this portion of the State. Remember, the average rainfall in Southern California is only 15.24 inches. Thus, it readily may be assumed that if we get even our usual rainfall we still shall fall far short of our consumptive use.

"Southern California—and Los Angeles in particular—faces the task of developing additional water from many sources. If we could save every drop of water that comes to us annually, we would not have enough to meet our present needs and less much future requirements.

"The earnest request of the Water Bureau is that every citizen cooperate to prevent waste of water and lend earnest support to the city in its effort to develop additional supplies."

SUPERVISORS TO CONSIDER BUYING SITE

Property in Big Tujunga Canyon Viewed as Future Location for Dam

The Board of County Supervisors may well consider the purchase of 40 acres in Big Tujunga Canyon, known as Hansen's Lodge, for a possible future dam site.

The property, which is owned by the Historical Museum of San Fernando, is near the site of the proposed dam site approved last year by the State Engineer.

Before the site it is necessary to have a road right of way through Hansen's property. For this purpose, less than a mile long, Dr. Hansen asks $15,000, and he offers to sell the entire property for $60,000, pointing out that it could be used as a county recreation park and it is needed as a possible dam site.

It is said the new dam will be begun by the contracting firm of Edwards, Wilday & Dixon, low bidders, as soon as the contract is signed by the road commissioners. Wright said the contract probably will be signed today.

PAIR SET FOR STAY IN ISOLATION

Long Winter Vigil in Mountain Wilds Planned for Science

Bleak Prospect Viewed Enthusiastically

HOWLING winds and the weird sounds made by cold and lonesome birds and animals will serve to break the solitude in which Mr. and Mrs. Homer T. Hutchison are to live for the next three months. During this period they will keep vigil as observers in a small astronomical station on the top of Pleasant View Ridge in the San Gabriel Mountains. Last week they completed stocking their cabin with food and necessities and have started their task of making observations which may result in the location of the proposed 200-inch telescope to be built by the California Institute of Technology in Southern California.

The scientists of the institute are testing a number of locations for the proposed giant reflecting telescope, but in order to obtain data on the Pleasant View Ridge site, Mr. and Mrs. Hutchison agreed to spend the winter in a lonely cabin there, behind the barrier of deep snow in the mountains.

PREPARATIONS DESCRIBED

Last night Mr. Hutchison told of his preparations for living in comfort through the winter and how he and his wife have devised many expedients for amusement. The conversation was carried on through a radio-telephone from his cabin to the home of E. C. Nichols in Pasadena, who is connected with the Mt. Wilson observatory.

"We had our first taste of winter here the 4th inst.," Mr. Hutchison said over the radiophone. About midnight a howling storm blew up and, although we did not have any snow, we have a very heavy coat of ice over the trees and ground from a sleet storm. The temperature is about 20 deg. above zero and there is a forty-mile wind blowing. The wires of our radio antenna are covered with a coat of ice about an inch through and I am glad I was able to get a good supply of firewood stored by the cabin to last us through."

Mr. Hutchison said he does not think the time will hang heavily on his hands for: "I have lots of work to do here. With all this wind here, I have rigged up a number of windmills and connected them with the generator for my radiophone set and use the wind instead of our little engine whenever we can to save gasoline.

"Then I have to make observations through the night and keep a record of the temperature, rainfall, etc. We have the regular equipment of a United States Weather Bureau office here, in addition to a small telescope." He explained that he makes frequent observations of Polaris, the North Star, and charts the visibility of the heavens from his sights at the star.

With plenty of mechanical work,

SAN GABRIEL CONTRACTS TOPIC TODAY

Supervisors Will Take Steps to Settle Claims Arising in Dam Project

Steps toward a settlement between the county and the contractors over the cancellation of the San Gabriel Dam contracts will be taken at a meeting of the Board of Supervisors today. The project was abandoned recently when it was declared that earth faults at the site would always constitute a menace to the safety of the dam.

At today's meeting the board will hear the claims of the contractors and it is expected a committee will be appointed to bring about an adjustment.

The adjustment also will take into consideration a situation complained of by the Municipal League. The league complained that when the sureties were served notice of the cancellation of the contract the Board of Supervisors did not specifically point out that they were released from any liability for acts performed subsequent to the cancellation, nor was a demand made for the return of the unearned portion of the premium, or the broker's commission.

Supervisor Graves explained that it is not customary to demand the return of the unearned premium until a settlement had been reached with the contractors.

Pontoon From Seaplane Stirs Fear of Wreck

Finding of a pontoon from a seaplane on the beach at Laguna Beach caused the Sheriff's office of Orange county to start an investigation as to whether there had been a plane disaster in the vicinity yesterday. The pontoon was found in front of the home of Dr. J. L. Beebe.

Markings on the pontoon did not indicate whether it was from a government plane or one privately owned. It did, however, have the trade mark of the Curtiss Airplane Motor Company, with the contract markings, "Sgg-3-Contract 66561-No. 4-211 pounds."

Sheriff Jernigan was notified and plans to turn the pontoon over to the Curtiss company today. According to Dr. Beebe, the pontoon shows no indications that it had been torn from a plane and the theory is advanced that it had become detached and lost.

Neilan Named in Lien for Tax

Marshall Neilan, motion-picture producer and director, is named in an income-tax lien on file.

The government, represented by Collector of Internal Revenue Welch, seeks $462.55 additional taxes for 1927.

NEW THEATER FOR WILSHIRE

Apartment, Hotel and Film House Development at Beverly Drive Will Cost $2,500,000

Erection and operation of a $2,500,000 motion-picture theater, apartment and hotel development at the northwest corner of Wilshire Boulevard and Beverly Drive were announced yesterday by Harold B. Franklin, president of Fox West Coast Theaters. Construction is to be started within the next sixty days and is to be completed early in 1931. The development will cover 287 feet on Beverly Drive and 185 feet on Wilshire Boulevard. Gore Brothers, Inc., Sol Lesser and Mike Rosenberg will build and own the structure.

Lessees of the theater will be the West Coast-Hollywood Theaters, Inc., a subsidiary of Fox West Coast Theaters. The policy will be to show talking pictures from Fox, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Paramount and other producers.

Balch & Stansbury of Los Angeles have been retained as architects. Plans will call for a 2500-seat theater of California Spanish architecture, luxuriously appointed and equipped with Western Electric talking-picture apparatus, and a $25,000 Wurlitzer organ. The stage, complete and capacious for presentations, will have a proscenium with a fifty-foot spread to allow for the new Fox Grandeur screen, the first theater to be constructed especially for this innovation.

In addition to the theater there will be seventeen stories facing on Wilshire Boulevard and Beverly Drive, also a residential building containing 250 rooms and apartments, rising six stories with a nine-story tower on the corner.

WINTER SPORTS FETE FIXED FOR WEEK-END

With thousands of Southern Californians awaiting the first opportunity to frolic in the heavy blanket of snow that now covers the ranges of the Southland, final preparations will be completed this week for handling record-breaking crowds at the first winter sports carnival of the season at Camp Seeley, Los Angeles municipal mountain playground, next Saturday and Sunday.

Tobogganing, skiing, ice skating, snowshoeing, sleighing and all of the other popular sports of winter will be on the program at the playground in the San Bernardino Mountains, which is under a covering of three to five feet of snow. Exhibitions in ski jumping, ice hockey, snowshoe racing, and other events will be included in the carnival, the City Playground Department announced.

Recent completion of several new toboggan slides, ski courses and other winter equipment has put the camp in shape for the various events of the two-day program. In addition to the daytime sports, campfire entertainment, novelty stunts, dancing and other diversions will occupy the interest of week-end visitors on Saturday evening. Some of the best snow sports athletes of Southern California will take part in the contests and exhibitions.

For the remainder of this week huge snow plows will be at work clearing the roads to Camp Seeley, so that no trouble may be had in reaching the playground. The camp is in the mountains, fourteen miles north of San Bernardino, and may be reached via Waterman Canyon and the "high-gear" road, from which excellent lateral highways lead to Seeley.

Now that there is plenty of snow in this part of the State, plans for conducting other winter carnivals following that at Camp Seeley are being pushed by the Southern California Winter Sports Association, a branch of the California State Chamber of Commerce, which is fostering winter activities at public mountain playgrounds this season. The two-day event at Seeley is to be the first of its kind in history to be given by the city of Los Angeles.

JUDGES PRAISE DRY LAW'S BOON

Bench Speaks at Prohibition Anniversary Meet

Ten Years Too Soon to Tell Effect, Says Bishop

Liquor Today Would Swamp Court, Schmidt Holds

The tenth anniversary of the advent of the prohibition era was fittingly celebrated yesterday afternoon at the First Methodist Church when Superior Court judges urged the enforcement of law and the continuance of the fight. They pointed out that the duty of the citizenship is to see that all laws on the statute books were enforced. Chester Rowell, who was to have been the principal speaker, was unable to be present.

The celebration was under the auspices of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, the Church Federation, Church Brotherhood, Anti-Saloon League and the Woman's Law Enforcement League. While the Eighteenth Amendment became a law on January 16, yesterday being the nearest Sunday to that date was the day of celebration throughout the nation.

"GIVE IT TIME"

Superior Judge Bishop was the first speaker.

"We should not be impatient with but ten years' trial; it is still a matter of education," he said.

Superior Judge Guerin declared that an effort should be made to get the big bootleggers rather than the small offender and thus rip the business at its source.

"Any law on our statute books must be enforced," said Judge Fleming, "but we must not lose sight of the fact that we must use education in combatting the indifference and apathy of the public." Judge William Haslett also declared it to be a matter of education.

SALOONMEN SCORED

Judge Emmet H. Wilson spoke against tampering with the amendment. "No liquor dealer ever observed the law in the old days. They were constantly selling liquor to minors and breaking the opening and closing ordinances. If they are allowed to sell light wine and beer, as they ask, they will be selling strong stuff with it."

Judge Marshall McComb told the audience that he did not believe that the difficulty is with the law or with the officials but with the citizens themselves.

Judge Ruben S. Schmidt declared that the personal conduct of the drys is vital in the fight. He also declared that drinking has decreased as compared with old days.

CHAOS VISUALIZED

"With the wide-open saloon you would see scores of drunks within a block on many occasions—now you seldom see a drunken man. If you would put booze back where every one could get it with the huge number of automobiles we now have you could not get enough judges to try the damage suits that would follow. Let us keep prohibition."

Dist.-Atty. Fitts will be the chief speaker at another celebration of the prohibition anniversary to be held Saturday next, by the local branch of the Order of Good Templars. Dr. Albin Peterson, Grand Chief Templar of the Grand Lodge of California, will preside. The meeting will be held at Good Templars' Hall, 1225 West Jefferson street. Councilman Randall also will speak.

Lindbergh's New Plane Inclosure Job Being Rushed

While Col. Lindbergh offered suggestions for its construction, engineers yesterday were busy on a head cabin addition to the new Lockheed-Sirius monoplane of Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh at the Lockheed factory.

No structural changes are being made in the ship, but since ordering it last summer and their recent winter trip west from New York, the Lindberghs decided they want a transparent streamline dome over the two open cockpits of the Sirius. The novel top will protect them from icy temperatures aloft, but will be built so that sliding panels can be opened for summer flying.

It is understood that the Lindberghs plan to use the plane for their inspection tour of T.A.T.-Maddux Airlines to San Francisco, and will start as soon as work is completed at the factory, probably before the end of the week.

TWIN KOREAN GIRLS ARRIVE AT PORT

Anne and Lila Lee

The port has seen many multiple sets of humans, but its records show 7-year-old Anne and Lila Lee, to be the first American-born Korean twins entering here. They came in from Honolulu yesterday on the Lasco liner Calawali, with their mother and nurse, bound for Bingham, Utah, where their father is a wealthy hotel owner.

American slang and jazz dances afford no obstacles for Anne and Lila, who are as occidental as orientals can be.

BLUE LAWS SPONSORING DISCLAIMED

Mayor Porter Wants Main Street Shows Closed But Denies Intolerance

Mayor Porter yesterday issued a statement in which he declared that the so-called Main-street "honky tonk" shows are a disgrace and that he is in full accord with the plans of the Police Commission and the police department to close them up, but that this action is not to be understood as instituting a blue law regime. He declared that we live in an age when tolerance is a requisite, and he does not favor imposition of blue laws.

His statement is as follows:

"Activities by the police department, with regard to the closing of the 'honky tonk' shows on Main street, has nothing to do with any blue law program.

"The so-called 'honky tonk' shows have been a disgrace to this city, and it will be my purpose as Mayor, to work in full accord with the police department, and with the plans of the Police Commission to close these shows as rapidly as possible.

"When I was elected Mayor I stated to the people of this city that I did not favor the so-called blue law rule, which closes everything on Sundays. We are living in a modern age and conditions are such that we must be tolerant, when it comes to the interpretation of our city ordinances. I am not in favor of what we understand to be a rigid rule for everybody.

"It is not necessary to enumerate what I believe to be right or wrong, but I emphatically state that I do not favor the so-called blue laws."

RAIN GAUGE PERMIT ASKED

The Park Commission has referred to Supt. Shearer the request of the County Flood Control District for permission to install three or four rain gauges in the recently burned area in Griffith Park for the purpose of ascertaining the actual rainfall in the district. Shearer will instruct the applicant to go ahead.

EQUIPMENT FUND PROVIDED

The City Council has approved the request of Chief Police Surgeon Dodge for a transfer of $6000 for the purchase of equipment for the new Hollywood branch Receiving Hospital, which soon will be completed.

DRUNKEN DRIVER ROUND-UP MADE

Twenty Motorists Subjected to Sobriety Tests

Police in Crusade to Curb Growing Traffic Evil

Three Women Among Those Taken to Hospital

Twenty suspected drunken drivers, among them three women, were arrested in a week-end crusade by police against a traffic hazard which, Receiving Hospital records show, is increasing constantly.

All were taken to the Georgia-street Receiving Hospital, where they were subjected to sobriety tests by police surgeons and most of them were pronounced intoxicated by the medical examiner. The others, hospital reports indicate, had been drinking, but were not under the influence of liquor at the time they were examined.

When Pauline Ernst, 23 years of age, 1021 South Fresno street, was arrested by Officers Wooly and Fire while driving on Central avenue, between Ninth and Tenth streets, she was boisterously drunk, according to the officers, and scarcely able to cling to the steering wheel. When taken to the hospital she again became noisy and violent. She was pronounced drunk by Dr. Spear, and was booked on a charge of drunk driving.

Others held for investigation gave their names and addresses as Willie Flowers, 32, negro, 257 North Occidental street; Don Benedict, 29, 941 West Forty-first street; Mack McCormack, 36, 5718 Angeles Mesa Drive; Arthur Peterson, 39, 2224 South Western avenue; Marian A. Wheeler, 20, 326 North Place; Crump Atkinson, 22, Wilmington; G. C. Lyness, 24, 1935½ North Arapahoe street; George Gourdin, 27, 3731 Maple avenue; Gerald E. Mays, 39, 1045 West Thirty-sixth Place, and Joseph Goodwin, 22, 4458 Willowbrook avenue.

Efforts of the police to curb drunk-driving have been severely handicapped, they complain, because of the necessary lapse of time between the arrest and the sobriety examination. Many drivers, grossly intoxicated when taken into custody, have sobered up sufficiently by the time they are examined so that it is impossible to obtain convictions, it is pointed out. The result is the rapid increase in the number of drunken drivers.

CLEW OBTAINED TO HIT-RUN DRIVER

The first tangible clew to the identity of the hit-and-run driver whose machine early Saturday morning struck and probably fatally injured Mrs. Elizabeth Price, 40 years of age, at Eighteenth and San Pedro streets, was received by police yesterday.

A witness whose attention was attracted to the case by newspaper accounts informed detectives that the woman was struck by a large black, or dark-colored coupe, which sped north on San Pedro street after running over Mrs. Price. It was impossible to obtain the license number of the car, the informant said, owing to the darkness and the speed at which it was traveling.

The victim was knocked two-thirds of the distance across the street, the witness declared, and landed in a water-filled gutter where she was found by Thomas Bond, 358 East Fifty-seventh street, who chanced to pass in his car and took the unconscious woman to the Georgia-street Receiving Hospital. Her skull was fractured, according to police surgeons, and she probably was injured internally, as well as suffering from extreme exposure. She was taken to General Hospital, where her condition is reported as critical.

Detectives also learned that the woman has a son who is believed to be stationed at Fort MacArthur. They are endeavoring to get in communication with him or other relatives.

The victim's correct address is 2430 Trinity Place.

Struck last night by an automobile driven by L. H. Walker of 3306 Griffith avenue, at Fifth street and Central avenue, Roy Harris, 44, whose address is the Towne Hotel, received a possible fracture of the skull and severe cuts and bruises. He was taken to Georgia-street Receiving Hospital and after emergency treatment there which failed to bring him back to consciousness, he was transferred to General Hospital, where it is said that his condition is serious.

The Lancer

by Harry Carr

ONLY five hours out from Los Angeles, you can find the frontier as it was in California of 1850.

You ride out to the gateway of Coachella Valley—on the road from which you turn off to Palm Springs; only you turn the other way and go up through Morongo Valley.

It is just as in the old days—settlers rescuing the wilderness . . . little raw board cabins in the desert . . . skinned-off patches from which the desert has been scratched to plow up the virgin soil . . . mail coming through whenever a neighbor gets an inspiration to bring it—month-old newspaper eagerly grabbed . . . wildcats and deer . . . old mines with the shafts turned into wells—the Joshua trees and the pinon pines growing together in unusual proximity.

HIGH-BROW PIONEERS

The difference is in the character of some of the pioneers.

We visited with one family where the children cry every time they have to come into the city. The father of the family travels around in worn-down shoes and a hickory shirt; but his backgrounds reach back to a prosperous law practice in a Southern California city. He went out on a little vacation for his health—and never intends to go back.

His outdoor bed looks out on the snow-clad peaks of San Gorgonio and San Jacinto and his picture gallery is the snow clouds clinging to the peaks where nestles an eternal glacier.

A DESERT MYSTERY

They are building a new county road through that region. It has romantic possibility.

Many years ago, the Indians used to come in from Long Valley with nuggets of gold that they said they found clinging to the plant roots.

Government interference and various epidemics resulted in moving the tribes to a reservation in Northern California. For other health reasons all but one of the Indians died. There was left, as the sole survivor, an old blind Indian. Sightless, he longed to return to the old homeland of his tribe.

He agreed that if they would bring him back, he would show them where the Indians found the gold.

THE LOST MINE

They brought him back; but a washout had changed the character of the canyon. He tried to feel around for familiar landmarks; but could not find the old gold ledge.

The natives are excited over the possibility that the road builders may perhaps scratch up this old gold mine.

TREASURE-SEEKERS

Two young Swedes came into the district six or seven years ago looking for the lost gold mine. They didn't find it; but they did find what is said to be the second largest onyx deposit in the world.

TOO MUCH LUXURY

This part of the desert seems destined in a very short time to become one of the great playgrounds of the world. Beautiful houses are building all over the desert. It seems to me it spoils the charm of a desert vacation. I'd rather have an adobe hut with the water jug hanging on a tree and the ants in the soup.

CITY'S PURSE WELL FILLED

Los Angeles Starts Year With Million a Week Pin Money in Pocket for Needs

City Treasurer Powell got out his pencil last week and figured that Miss Los Angeles probably is the wealthiest young woman west of Chicago. In fact, on the last day of the year she had a balance of $32,452,869.85, compared to a balance of $40,509,607.38 at the end of 1928. Mr. Powell calculates that if this sum of money were all in new $1 bills, laid end to end they would extend from here to somewhere else and back again.

Every year the city earned interest of $1,233,941 for money deposited in banks. This is applied to the budget expenditures.

Clearings of the City Treasurer's office reached $180,539,577. In addition to this the office handled $21,920,000 in the street-bond division and sold municipal improvement district bonds amounting to $2,153,000. There were 40,038 new street bonds issued, aggregating $15,752,873, of which about $8,000,000 was

YOUNG TO NAME RIVER DELEGATE

Appointment to be Made Here This Week

Governor Arrives at Local Office Tomorrow

Speeches and Conferences on Schedule

The additional or "outside" member of the California Colorado River Commission, which will represent this State's interests at the forthcoming California-Nevada-Arizona conference on the 20th inst., will be named by Gov. Young in Los Angeles early this week. This announcement was made at the executive's local offices, where it was said Gov. Young will arrive tomorrow morning for a number of conferences with State officials and for speaking engagements.

The appointment of an additional member of the commission will be in compliance with the suggestion made some time ago by Secretary of the Interior Wilbur that each of the three States participating in the tri-State conference, send an "outside" member along with its commissioners to the conference.

ADDRESSES SCHEDULED

Gov. Young, it was said, will remain in Los Angeles until Saturday night, returning at that time to Sacramento. His schedule of activities while here includes an address at the young men's division of the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce in that city tomorrow night. He will go to Long Beach early tomorrow afternoon.

The Governor will be present at Pasadena Wednesday when the prizes and trophies are awarded by the Pasadena Tournament of Roses committee to the winners of the New Year's Day parade events. The awards will be made at the Hotel Maryland. On the same day he is scheduled to address the League of Veterans in Los Angeles.

CONFERENCES SLATED

Another trip to Pasadena will be made by the Governor on Thursday when he will speak at the gathering of the Boy Scouts of that city at the Hotel Vista del Arroyo.

Two addresses are scheduled for Friday, one at a luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis Club at Altadena, and in the evening at a meeting of the Pomona Chamber of Commerce at Pomona.

Several conferences with various city and State officials also are scheduled during the week, it was said at his local offices. It was indicated that appointment of a new member of the California Code Commission, to succeed Attorney Surr of San Bernardino, who could not serve, may be made before the Governor's departure for Sacramento.

Wife of Flyer Wins Divorce

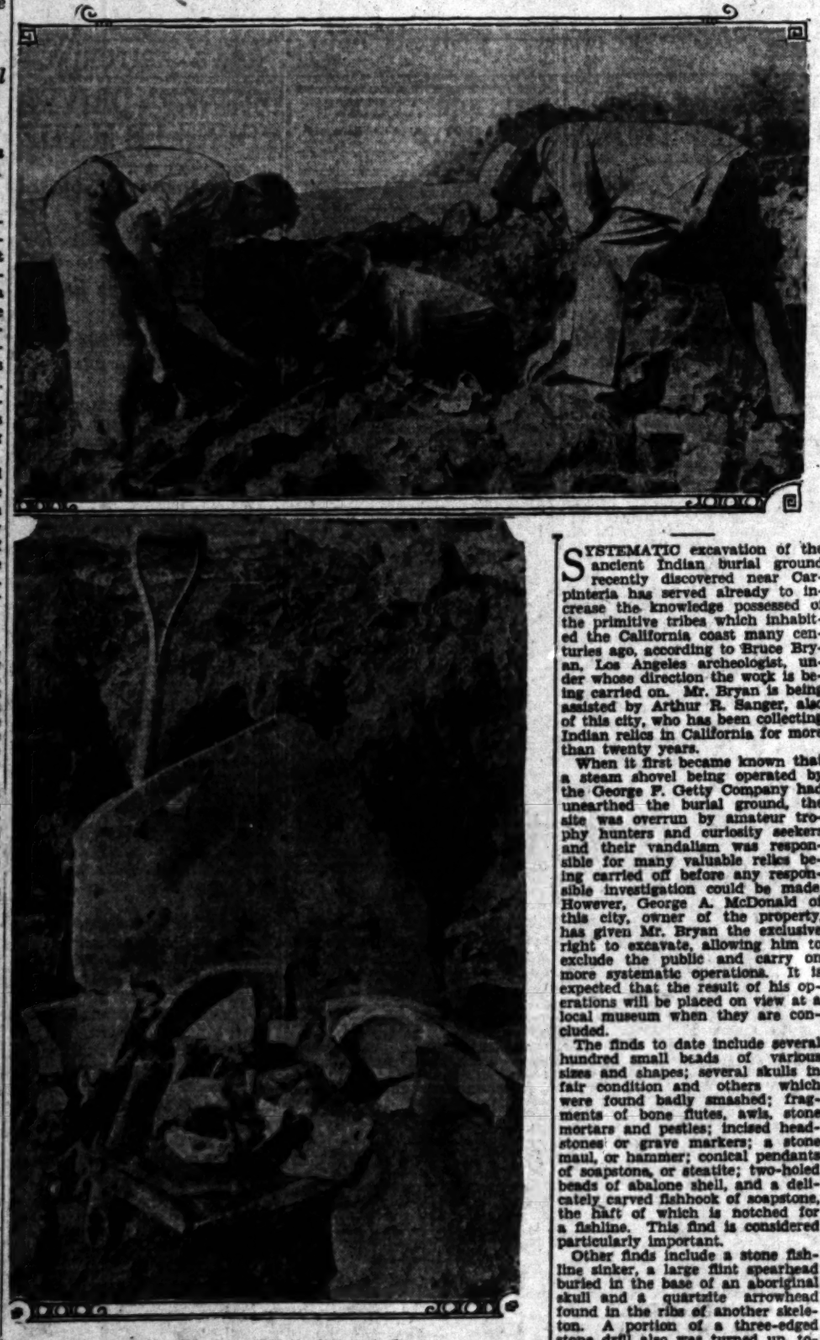
The divorce of Mrs. Cathleen McLaughlin Quinn, wife of Capt. Orlo H. Quinn, Army flyer, is on file in Superior Judge McComb's court. Mrs. Quinn testified her husband failed to support her.

Quinn did not appear in court, but was represented by Attorney C. O. Bacon, who submitted a property settlement on behalf of his client, which was approved for Mrs. Quinn by Attorney Roger Marchetti.

Mrs. Sarah McLaughlin, Mrs. Quinn's sister, corroborated the plaintiff's testimony that Mrs. Quinn was supported by the charity of friends and relatives. Mrs. Quinn was given custody of her 3-year-old daughter, Patricia.

GRAVES YIELD MORE TRIBAL SECRETS

Ancient Indian Burial Ground Excavation Systematic



Relics Discovered Tell of Coast's Past

SYSTEMATIC excavation of the ancient Indian burial ground recently discovered near Carpinteria has served already to increase the knowledge possessed of the primitive tribes which inhabited the California coast many centuries ago, according to Bruce Bryan, Los Angeles archeologist, under whose direction the work is being carried on. Mr. Bryan is being assisted by Arthur R. Sanger, also of this city, who has been collecting Indian relics in California for more than twenty years.

When it first became known that a steam shovel being operated by the George F. Getty Company had unearthed the burial ground, the site was overrun by amateur trophy hunters and curiosity seekers and their vandalism was responsible for many valuable relics being carried off before any responsible investigation could be made. However, George A. McDonald of this city, owner of the property, has given Mr. Bryan the exclusive right to excavate, allowing him to exclude the public and carry on more systematic operations. It is expected that the result of his operations will be placed on view at a local museum when they are concluded.

The finds to date include several hundred small beads of various sizes and shapes; several skulls in fair condition and others which were found badly smashed; fragments of bone flutes, awls, stone mortars and pestles; incised headstones or grave markers; a stone maul, or hammer; conical pendants of soapstone, or steatite; two-holed beads of abalone shell, and a delicately carved fishhook of soapstone, the haft of which is notched for a fishline. This find is considered particularly important.

Other finds include a stone fishline sinker, a large flint spearhead buried in the base of an aboriginal skull and a quartzite arrowhead found in the ribs of another skeleton. A portion of a three-edged stone drill also was turned up, together with many pieces of steatite evidencing commerce with the channel islands.

From the shellwork, beads and soapstone artifacts unearthed it is evident that the people who are buried in this region were contemporaneous with the ancient channel islanders, who are noted for the delicacy of their shell carvings and inlay work. And from the number of bodies found which showed evidences of violent deaths by spear, arrow or club, it is apparent that some warfare existed between this tribe and others on the mainland or islands.

In almost all of the graves numerous fragments of deeply incised mortar rims have been found, but none of the pieces will fit together. This breakage is in strict accordance with the primitive idea of "killing" a deceased person's personal appurtenances and implements. It was reasoned that the "spirits" of the utensils thus were set free to accompany the dead person into the next world, where he would be able to utilize them again. And apparently the aborigines foresaw that their graves would be disturbed and, by destroying the key pieces, removed all chance of fitting together the fragments of the utensils. It is believed the key pieces were thrown into the ocean.

Aside from the numerous beads, not much in the way of jewelry relics has been found. This, it is believed, merely confirms the hypothesis that the ancient tribe inhabiting this region was unusually poor, if not actually poverty-stricken. No traces of habitations or living shelters have been unearthed as yet.

There is a great deal of work to be done yet, Mr. Bryan believes, as it is evident that the remains continue for many yards on either side of the present cut. The value of the site as a genuine tribal burying ground rather than an emergency burial ground located there after a great battle or sudden epidemic of disease is indicated by the fact that the skeletons disinterred evidently were buried with great care, in the conventional flexed position and with all their artifacts and utensils inclosed with them.

IMPROVEMENT SOUGHT

Harvey W. Webber heads a group of property owners who have petitioned the City Council to institute proceedings for the improvement of Eighty-eighth Place from Normandie to Halldale avenues. The improvement asked for consists of concrete pavement. The petition was referred to the City Engineer and the Public Works Committee.

SEAL RESPONSE URGED

Louis M. Cole, chairman of the finance committee of the Los Angeles Tuberculosis Association, urges an immediate response to the Christmas seal clean-up campaign being conducted by the association. Cole said that unless sufficient funds are raised, the association will be unable to carry out its 1930 health program.

Traffic Culprit Ordered to Jail

Ten days in jail was the sentence imposed on George Kirscher, 239 South Fremont avenue, by Municipal Judge Valentine for "forgetting" about five traffic tags received by him during recent months. Deputy City Prosecutor Reynolds reported that Kirscher deliberately ignored the citations and was arrested only after a three months' search by police warrant officers.

"Two dollars each is the usual fine," Judge Valentine commented, "but since you have shown no respect for our courts or police a jail term will make you understand that the law is made to be obeyed, not flouted. Ten days."

NEW STREET FUND ASKED

City Attorney Werner has asked the City Council to set aside $5295, to be transmitted to County Clerk Lampton, for the acquisition of property for the opening and laying out of a new street to be known as Macapa Drive in Hollywood.

RESEARCH PARTY GOING TO ANCIENT INDIAN CAVE

A cave near Las Vegas, Nev., believed to have been inhabited by Indians in 1500 B. C., will be explored by the annual research expedition of the Southwest Museum which will leave the city tomorrow. The director of the expedition, Mr. Raymond Harrington, last winter discovered in this cave darts and other remains which indicate that the human skeletons buried there belonged to a people of an early culture who made baskets, but had not yet learned to make pottery. The cave also contains bones of animals which, Harrington said, seem to have existed 25,000 years ago when saber-tooth tigers and imperial elephants ruled this land.

The discovery of human remains of an early basket-making culture, 1500 B. C., and animals of the Pleistocene period, 25,000 years ago, in the same cave suggested to the museum that it may contain important material for the museum's archeologists. Therefore Mr. Harrington selected the case for future exploration in preference to the ancient Indian ruins in the Moapa Valley, Nevada, which were the scene of last year's work.

Mesa House, in Moapa Valley, built in 500 A. D. by Indians in a high stage of Pueblan culture, was excavated by the museum last winter. Mr. Harrington's report, an analysis of this ruin, has just been completed for publication.

Mr. Harrington will keep his staff in the field for three months, the remainder of the year being required for study of the specimens uncovered and writing a report of the discoveries.

MILITARY BURIAL FOR WAR NURSE

British Veterans Accord Full Honors to Woman at Funeral Today

Full military honors will be accorded Mrs. Agnes Davis Sullivan by British War Veterans at funeral services which will be conducted for her today at 2 p.m. at the Hardin funeral home, Inglewood, and at services at the grave in Inglewood Park Cemetery. Mrs. Sullivan died Friday night following a lengthy illness. Funeral arrangements are in charge of J. B. Creasey, executive officer of British Overseas War Veterans.

For war service Mrs. Sullivan was awarded the silver War Medal given by the British government for service in England, the bronze Service Badge given by the Canadian government for service at the front, the Mons Star, 1914-1915, with ribbon, given by the British government for the establishment of a hospital unit in the theater of war prior to December, 1915.

Mrs. Sullivan went into service on September 22, 1914, at Quebec, and was mobilized with the first group sent abroad by the Canadian government. She volunteered her services to the United States Army during the influenza epidemic following the war and in the autumn of 1918 spent three months speaking throughout the New England States for the American Liberty Loan. Returning to Canada, she was made acting matron of the Whitby Military Convalescent Hospital.

In 1920 she came to California to become the wife of Thomas Sullivan, a Londoner, living at Redondo Beach, who survives here. During her residence in Los Angeles she was an active worker in the Los Angeles British War Veterans' Association. The Sullivan home is at 333 Nectarine street, Inglewood.

FITTS WILL QUIZ HEFNER AS TO STORY

Asserted Acquaintance With Taylor Murder Case Doubted by Investigators

Otis Hefner, paroled Folsom convict, who recently again gained publicity through a reassertion that he knows who killed William Desmond Taylor, will be brought to Los Angeles today and taken before Dist.-Atty. Fitts to tell his story this morning. He was met in San Francisco yesterday by Ed King, veteran investigator of the District Attorney's office, who is bringing him here.

Hefner, who admitted his addiction to narcotics, willingly accompanied King. Hefner's recent story differs from the first one he told, according to word received by Fitts. In previous stories he asserted that a woman had a hand in the murder of the film director. Later he asserted that Taylor had been killed because of a feud between the director and a drug ring. The ex-convict's story was to the effect that Taylor was giving information to the police about members of the asserted drug ring.

Hefner also asserted that he accompanied Edward Sands, Taylor's valet, to the director's home on the night of the murder. Trace of Sands has been lost since the day before the murder. Hefner asserted that he last heard of Sands in Mexico. When shown the only known picture of the missing valet Hefner asserted that it was not Sands, but a photograph of a prisoner in Folsom prison.

Although investigators place little credence in Hefner's story, Dist.-Atty. Fitts said he will sift every detail of it. Hefner, he asserted, is in custody voluntarily. After his story is heard it is probable he will be returned to prison as a parole violator, it is asserted.

TAX EXPERT SCHEDULED TO GIVE UP

Miss Berger Expected to Surrender for Starting of Term in Eastern Prison

While several indictments still are pending against J. Marjorie Berger, income-tax adviser, she is expected to give herself up today to begin serving a sentence of two years and six months at the Federal women's prison at Alderson, W. Va. Miss Berger was convicted by a jury in United States District Judge Henning's court of aiding in the making of a false and fraudulent income-tax return for Dorothy Mackaill, motion-picture actress. After her sentence she was granted a stay of execution of judgment for thirty days, ending today.

Indications are that counsel for Miss Berger will ask for an additional stay in order to complete an appeal to the United States Circuit Court.

observations and records to keep, coupled with the tasks of cutting wood and melting ice and snow for water, Hutchison believes he will be fairly busy, but with Mrs. Hutchison, he declared it required a degree of bravery.

WIFE ENTHUSIASTIC

"I love it," she declared enthusiastically over the radiophone. "I am just as much interested in Homer's work as he is and then I keep busy with the cooking and the cabin. You ought to see this place now. When we arrived it was just a bare little cabin, but I have put up some curtains and done a little painting inside and it is a cozy little home now.

"Of course we get a great deal of pleasure out of the radio. We not only tune in on all of the good programs on the regular broadcasts, but with our little short-wave set we can talk with radio amateurs all over the Pacific Coast and through the Middle West. We are quite friendly with a number of amateur operators we never have seen and probably never will.

GLORIOUS COUNTRY

"And then the country up here is simply glorious. In the day time we see a lot of blue jays, woodpeckers, wild pigeons and the funny little chipmunks are all over the place. At night though there are a lot of queer noises that must be from some large animals. My husband has seen several wildcats and has found the tracks of mountain lions and hopes to kill a lion before we leave in the spring. He went out the other night and banged away at something but didn't hit it so we don't know what it was. There are lots of deer up here, for we see their trails everywhere and suppose the mountain lions follow them up the ridges.

"I am learning to be a good cook, so my husband says, and he swears by my pumpkin pies. We have loaded up the cabin with all sorts of canned food and I know we will have plenty to eat.

Mr. Hutchison closed the interview with a request that the Times radio station KHJ ask Wesley R. Tourtelotte to play a series of three special organ numbers on one of his mignight concerts.

The young couple are recent arrivals from Kansas. They were students at the Kansas Agricultural College at Manhattan, Kan. Mr. Hutchison is 25 years of age and his wife 24.

for opening-and-widening proceedings.

Under the new State law Powell has put in a card-index system on delinquent street-improvement bonds, which he furnishes to the County Tax Collector, so the latter can place notices in his tax bills. The result of this system, Mr. Powell believes, will be of material benefit to property owners in reminding them of their delinquencies and thus restricting the operations of the lien sharks.

RAIL PORTER'S STORY SAVES HIM FROM JAIL

"He tipped me right liberal and I was jus' carryin' his suitcase off the train for him. I didn't know what was in it," Henry King, Pullman porter, told Municipal Judge Curtis when he appeared on a liquor possession charge. The suitcase contained seventeen pints of whisky, according to Detective Lieutenant Caldwell, who told the court King was arrested on the 8th inst. at the Southern Pacific station by officers investigating reports of bootlegging among train attaches.

Although King pleaded guilty to the possession charge, Judge Curtis suspended a 100-day jail term on account of his explanation that the suitcase belonged to a passenger.

DATES ARRANGED FOR TITULAR SWIMS

Dates for the men's and women's national indoor swimming and diving championships have been set, according to word received yesterday by Leslie A. Henry, Southern Pacific A.A.U. president. The women's meet will be held at Miami, Fla., March 13, 14, 15, next, while the men's championships will be decided at Chicago, April 2, 3, 4. In the women's meet the L.A.A.C. team looms strong with Georgia Coleman and Josephine McKim as the leaders. These two stars were the outstanding performers in the outdoor championships last summer.

The local A.A.U. swimming season will get under way when the water-polo championship will be decided in a three-day tournament at the Los Angeles Athletic Club, February 6, 7, 8.

CONDEMNATION COSTS SET

City Attorney Werner has notified the City Council that if the members wish to proceed with the extension of Tujunga avenue from its present terminus to San Fernando Road at Radford street, a warrant for $116,426, to pay condemnation costs, must be deposited with County Clerk Lampton. The notice was referred to the Street Opening and Widening Committee.

Why Men
apparently well, often
"Break"
at 40
JUST as the turning point towards achievement comes in average life, at 40, so too comes the turning point in health. The age when wear and tear of life begins to take its toll.
Doctors now trace the cause, in many cases, to a previous ailment... kidney breakdown. Over half of men and women are affected. Many without knowledge, for there are no warning symptoms.
Medical science now gives the cause: 75% of poisonous waste from the system is excreted by kidneys, much in too concentrated form. Overburdened, delicate kidney cells break down. Congestion occurs, throwing poisons back into the system. And "self-poisoning" thus causes many serious ills.
To men and women before and after 40, doctors now advise 6 glasses of Puritas mineral-free water daily. It dilutes poisonous waste, absorbs and carries it off, without leaving mineral deposits. Thus eases the burden of kidneys and protects their normal functioning.
Puritas water, scientifically distilled and aerated, is mineral-free, impurity free, water in its purest state. Although its taste is different at first, each drink becomes increasingly enjoyable. Order Puritas today.

Title to the Gaylord Apartments, constructed under the "own-your-own" co-operative plan, has passed to a nonco-operative corporation as the result of a decree and judgment recently entered by Superior Judge Gates.

Litigation resulting in this outcome has been before the court for more than a year. In 1928 E. A. Fennell, one of the original "own-your-own" lessees, sued for an accounting. On application of Attorney C. A. Doody the court appointed R. E. Allen receiver, and the house was operated in receivership for several months.

During the receivership Albert Pick & Co. of Cleveland had the building sold under foreclosure of a junior trust deed, which had been given to secure a debt incurred for furnishing. Attorney H. A. Title to the Gaylord Apartments, operated under the "own-your-own" co-operative plan, has passed to a co-operative corporation as the result of a decree and judgment recently entered by Superior Judge Allen.

Litigation resulting in this outcome has been before the court for more than a year. In 1928 E. A. Hensel, one of the original "own-your-own" lessees, sued for an accounting. On application of Attorney C. A. Doody the court appointed R. H. Allen receiver, and the house was operated in receivership for several months.

During the receivership Albert Pick & Co. of Cleveland had the building sold under foreclosure of a prior trust deed, which had been given to secure a debt incurred for remodeling. Attorney H. A. Goldman, counsel for the Building Materials Board of Trade, promptly moved to set aside that sale. In the meantime, bonds secured by the trust deed of trust fell into default.

Allen, the receiver, and George B. Winter, his attorney, in negotiations with Attorneys Doody and Goldman, and counsel for the Lennox Holding Corporation, who had bought the house at the foreclosure sale, devised a plan of settlement. They petitioned Judge Gates for an order directing Allen to turn the property over to the Lennox company for $35,000 and a $180,000 deed of trust on a parcel of Berkeley real estate. Judge Gates approved the settlement and directed distribution of the proceeds to the creditors of the venture and the "own-your-own" lessees, cancellation of the co-operative leases and surrender of the property to the Lennox company.

ACTRESS LOSER IN CONTEST

Dollie Jarvis Not to Receive Bulk of Grandmother's Estate as Provided in Latter's Will

Natalie Mercedes Jarvis, who is known in motion pictures as Dollie Jarvis, will not receive the bulk of the $20,000 estate left by her grandmother, the late Mrs. Natalie H. Kleeman, for under a court ruling handed down by Superior Judge Yankwich her will is invalid. The document was contested by Dr. George Eugene Kleeman of Oakland, son of the deceased.

After hearing the evidence in the trial of the action Judge Yankwich took the case under submission He holds that the will is void for the reason that Mrs. Kleeman, who was 80 years of age at the time of her death on April 10, 1929, was physically incapacitated to make a will and also for the reason that she did not understand the English language sufficiently to know what the document was when it was read to her before signing it.

The will gave the grand-daughter, Natalie Mercedes Jarvis, the accumulated income of a trust fund in an Oakland bank, all of her furniture and jewelry and one-half of the remainder of the estate, less $1000, given equally to two daughters, Mrs. Estelle Jarvis and Miss Elva Kleeman. George Kleeman, Jr., son of the Oakland doctor, was bequeathed the remainder of the estate.

"I especially omit my son, George Eugene Kleeman, M.D., for the reason that he already has received considerable money out of the trust agreement which he induced me to enter into," Mrs. Kleeman states in one paragraph of her will.

Attorney Joseph L. Palmer represented the contestant in the court fight to break the will. Most of the property involved is located in Alameda county.

Heater Blast Kills Student

Burned severely over her entire body, Florence E. Moore, 15-year-old high-school girl, died yesterday in Glendale Sanatorium as the result of a terrific explosion of gas in the bathroom of her home at 3422 Madera avenue, Glendale. Besides injuring the girl fatally the blas blew out a side of the house.

The explosion occurred when Miss Moore attempted to light a gas heater, preparatory to bathing. Unaware the gas had been escaping for some time and filling the room with its fumes, the girl struck a match. From a room in another part of the house her parents rushed to the stricken girl and hurried her to the sanatorium, where she died on arrival. The house did hot take fire.

ARCHITECT AWARDED JUDGMENT

Produce Man Must Pay $1300 on Plans Despite Failure to Build House

E. B. Rivers, produce man, must pay Marbury Somervell, architect, $1300, according to a decision of Superior Judge Yankwich.

Somervell sued Rivers for $2880, asserted to be due for architectural services performed by the firm of Somervell & Putnam in preparing plans for a home Rivers intended to build in the Bontanic Garden addition. No bids ever were accepted by Rivers and the house was not built.

Rivers resisted the suit on the grounds that he already had paid Somervell $2000 for plans which he could not use because the lowest bid exceeded by $12,500 the maximum amount he desired to spend on his house.

In giving a judgment for the architect Judge Yankwich laid down the following principles:

"If the lowest bid is not accepted because it exceeds the amount which the owner proposed to spend and the house is not built the architect is not entitled to the agreed percentage on such a bid.

"However, the architect is entitled, notwithstanding the abandonment of the project, to the agreed percentage on the maximum cost which the owner intended to spend and within the limits of which he wanted the architect to keep."

SENTENCES TOTAL TEN FOR WEEK

Nine Men and One Woman Given Terms in Prisons by Superior Court Judges

Ten persons were sentenced to State prisons during the last week by Superior Court judges, according to the weekly report of W. T. Aggeler, presiding judge of the criminal division of Superior Court.

Of this number, six were sentenced for robbery and one defendant was sentenced under each of the charges of bigamy, issuing checks without sufficient funds, driving an automobile without consent of the owner and forgery.

The list of prisoners, the crimes of which they were convicted and the sentences imposed follow:

Samuel Oxman, San Quentin, first degree robbery, five years to life, two counts to run concurrently.
John Wilson, San Quentin, first degree robbery, five years to life, two counts to run concurrently.
George H. Pierce, San Quentin, bigamy, one to ten years, and a fine of $1.
Margaret Dunlop, San Quentin, issuing check without sufficient funds, one to fourteen years.
Louis Hill, San Quentin, second degree robbery, one year to life.
Gilbert Salas, San Quentin, second degree robbery, one year to life.
Robert W. Swet, Folsom, driving automobile without consent of the owner (admitting two prior convictions,) not less than five years.
Virgil Stowell, San Quentin, first degree robbery, five years to life.
Loren S. Higbee, San Quentin, first degree robbery, five years to life.
Harry F. Law, San Quentin, forgery, one to fourteen years (two counts.)

Routing Change Request Denied to Bus Company

An application by the California Parlor Car Tours, Inc., for a change of routing in Los Angeles starting from a terminal located at 330 West Fifth street has been denied by the Board of Public Utilities and Transportation until the company gets its terminal off the streets in compliance with the bus laws of the city.

The company has changed its address from 1201 South Olive street to 330 West Fifth street and pointed out that it is impractical to maintain more than one address, because visitors become confused over two addresses.

The board has in effect a ruling which prevents stages or busses maintaining a terminal on the streets of the city.

The route sought by the company for one operation is from the Fifth-street address to Broadway, thence to Eighth, to Alvarado, to Seventh, to Parkview, to Wilshire Boulevard, to Rossmore, to Vine, to Hollywood Boulevard, to Cahuenga avenue to Ventura Boulevard and to San Francisco; also one from Fifth to the Malibu Highway by Oxnard and Ventura, tying with the inland route, by way of Fifth street, Eighth, Alvarado, Seventh, Parkview, Wilshire, Rossmore, Vine, Hollywood Boulevard, to Sunset Boulevard, through Beverly Hills via Beverly Boulevard to the Malibu Highway.

Former Teller to be Arraigned

Thomas Houston Reynolds, former teller of the branch of the Bank of Italy at El Centro, is scheduled to appear today before United States District Judge McCormick for arraignment on a charge of misapplication of bank funds.

It is charged that the defendant was $635 short in his accounts.

Iraq is taking up scientific agricultural development.

ERASURES BRING FREEDOM

Because Attorney A. B. Rose noticed an erasure in the shorthand notes of a Pasadena police stenographic reporter he was able to raise a doubt in the minds of a jury regarding the validity of the confession that was transcribed, and two defendants accused as burglars were acquitted in Superior Judge Lambert's court.

The reporter, Norman S. Firth, took down the purported confession of David Lawlor and Louis Perry, arrested August 28, 1929, by two Pasadena detectives near a shoe factory which had been entered and from which a quantity of valuable leather had been removed.

Attorney Rose argued that inasmuch as the stenographer could not remember the original notes before they were corrected, the report could not be regarded as an exact transcript of what was said, and the defendants were acquitted. Dep. Dist.-Atty. Costello prosecuted.

PERMIT GRANTED FOR RESEDA DRAIN DITCH

Permission for the city engineering department to construct and maintain a ditch over a portion of the land comprising Reseda Park to carry away storm water has been granted by the Park Commission on recommendation of Landscape Engineer Hall, with the proviso that the park department will have the right to incorporate the area occupied by the ditch into a proposed open lagoon or lake to be developed on the park site.

NEW Modernized RADIO PHONOGRAPH

NEW RADIO-PHONOGRAPH COMBINATION

Telephone Engineering, Responsible for Radio's Development—Adds Perfected Record Reproduction —Also a New Low Console with Extra-Size Electro-Dynamic Speaker

ALL America knows the superb tonal quality of Stromberg-Carlson radio. Here is an instrument in which that matchless tone, given even greater beauty through refinements of design, is made available for the reproduction of modern phonographic records.

Now—you can hear records as they have never sounded before—all the gems of recorded music as though from the musicians themselves without the slightest indication of an intervening medium ....A brilliance of reproduction which was not thought possible even a few short months ago.

It is entirely logical that from Stromberg-Carlson Laboratories, which for 35 years have been perfecting voice transmission and reception, should come this new quality of electrical reproduction of records. For it is telephone laboratories that have developed the tone quality of radio to its present point.

Besides this Radio-Phonograph the new year brings still another Stromberg-Carlson accomplishment—a Receiver with every radio perfection of its companion, contained in an exquisite cabinet so compact as to delight the owner of a home where space is at a premium.

These instruments, together with models No. 641, No. 642 and No. 846 offer a wide range of choice in Stromberg-Carlson Screen Grid Receivers. An authorized dealer will arrange for a demonstration.

Today's Bible Text

Thou hast made known to me the ways of life; thou shalt make me full of joy with thy countenance.—Acts 11:28.

MORE HOMELIKE

In the rebuilding of the burned White House offices it is said that a system for washing, purifying and cooling the air will be provided. This is to make the big chief feel as much at home as possible. Herbert Hoover must miss his California ozone.

MERCURY MOVEMENT

The bottom must have fallen out of a thermometer in Montana. At any rate it registered 40 deg. below zero and then busted. There are some limitations, even to a thermometer, and the border climate can provide some of them.

LAUGHTER AS MEDICINE

A prominent physician insists that laughter is one of the best of heart stimulants. A jest that will invite a burst of real laughter is the best sort of medicine. All we need is plenty of people to laugh at and we may get well. There are several of them left.

THE POKER PARTY

Man spanked his wife for coming home late from a poker game. The lady had him arrested, but he explained to the court that the wife said she had to play poker to buy the baby shoes, but that she never brought home even a bit of bacon. So the husband was freed and the wife warned not to bet against a pat hand.

HAZARDS OF LIFE

The court decides that a man who enters a speakeasy does not encounter an extra hazard. Must be a funny judge. The patron not only runs the risk of bad liquor, but of being pinched by the cops or potted by some gangster. In fact, the last thing did happen to the man upon whom the case was founded. He was shot and killed by a bootlegger while visiting an illicit dealer. The insurance company having a policy on his life refused to pay on the ground that in entering the speakeasy he embarked on a hazardous adventure not contemplated in his contract. But the judge says the company must pay. The policy holder may be taking a big risk, but it is all in the day's run. Even a judge on the bench may be bombed by a racketeer. Entering a speakeasy may be no more hazardous than flying in an unlicensed plane or fighting in the Argonne.

SILK

Manufacturers in the United States import 35,000 tons of raw silk annually at a cost of $400,000,000. And Silk, a trade journal of the industry, is of the opinion that this article may be produced here in California at about half the present price.

A start has already been made. Within the last two or three years San Marcos in San Diego county has established a silk farm and manufacturing plant five miles northeast of Escondido. Cocoons are being grown and it is estimated that within twelve months silk hose, California-grown and California-made, will be worn.

A 320-acre mulberry orchard, with a quarter of a million trees, is being developed. An overhead sprinkling system has been installed and the growths stand 1200 to the acre. The leaves may be cut and fed to the worms every sixty days.

An insectary on the ground will grow 800,000 pounds of cocoons a season from 300,444 eggs each day. By growing silk according to American methods, it is estimated that half of the former seemingly essential steps are eliminated and 10,000 miles of transportation escaped.

New processes for silk culture up to the knitting have been devised by technical experts and the Golden State promises to furnish a perfect environment where intelligent operatives are available. Heretofore, 90 per cent of all the silk grown in Japan came to this country.

A year or two ago German manufacturers established a rayon silk factory in Tennessee. They used the fluff of cotton seeds as raw material. A new business was established on a vast scale and a new city sprang up like magic. Cornstalks have also risen to the dignity of doubling for silk.

POLICE BOARD CENSORSHIP

The Police Commission, seeking new fields to conquer, has picked on the theaters as the next object of its regulatory zeal. If its request to the City Council for arbitrary censorship is granted every performance of every sort given in Los Angeles by any person, group or organization, will be—or not—at the commission's pleasure. So broad are the powers the board craves that, under a strict legal interpretation of its proposed ordinance, it is doubtful whether a church might hold services without a permit or a concert be given by a Sunday-school. The board's resolution asks power over "all the theaters and other such places." Where is the line to be drawn?

It is true the commission modestly disclaims any intention of putting this power to more effect than to close up some of the Main-street honky-tonks when the show gets too raw. But why need it arm itself with a park of heavy artillery to annihilate a bedbug? The licensing ordinance it asks for would enable it to close a theater if it thought the comedian's jokes were old, and its action would be final.

In the hands of officials disposed to be venal, it is plain that such an ordinance could be used to force graft collection on an enormous scale. The licensing scheme could be made an instrument of legalized racketeering that would far outdistance anything that Chicago can be ashamed of.

All necessary censorship of the theaters—not to mention all "other such places"—by police authority is now legally and regularly provided for by existing statutes. These provisions have been tried and proved adequate; the halting of several risque plays and the closing of honky-tonks have been brought about in the recent past by these means.

Police censors have been tried out before, in other cities, but never with success. The average policeman is not qualified for so delicate a job. This is not particularly to his discredit; few men are, or even think they are. To pass expert judgment on a play, as on a book, a painting or a statue, demands technical ability and knowledge, a fine sense of the fitness of things, a keen vision and a wide experience in and knowledge of art, literature and public taste, as also a moral stamina and understanding that few possess. Also—and this is perhaps paramount—a progressive appreciation of the constant change in the public viewpoint. A censor must take all this into consideration and be governed thereby. His own personal likes and dislikes are too precarious a criterion.

Los Angeles, in the main, demands and secures clean theatricals. In a few instances where the line has been clearly overstepped, revision ensued from the first drastic legal objection. The power to secure this was inherent in the present statutes and was promptly effective. The clean-up of dubious honky-tonks has been achieved under the same laws and may be done again if necessary. The penalties fixed are sufficient to command respect, if invoked, and no showman is going to run counter to them, once he is given to understand that they will be enforced.

If local theaters need cleaning up—and it is by no means clear that they do, save in sporadic cases—public opinion itself will do the job—a box office is extremely sensitive to the likes and dislikes of its clientele. Dirt in the long run has never paid in a playhouse and never will; every community at heart is decent and clean and responds to those same virtues. If any suspected violation of good taste or morals breaks out, the courts have ample powers to deal with it, if the public does not.

Why, then, clothe an unskilled police board or its employees with arbitrary powers to say what plays or performances may be given, and which not? How shall it determine? What shall be the basis for its decisions? Such persons by the very nature of things are incompetent to judge impartially, and equally are prone to overzealous display of their own authority.

Los Angeles does not want, or need, theater censorship, nor does the Police Commission need any additional duties. It is far too heavily burdened, as it is, for the capacity of its present members. The greatest requirement of the city at the present time is common sense and a sense of proportion in its city government.

SKYSCRAPER EVILS

San Francisco, which encourages high building in her downtown business district, is now wrestling with the skyscraper problem as it affects traffic congestion both foot and vehicular. Extensive studies of the problem have just been planned by the San Francisco Traffic Survey Committee. Part of the plan of the committee is to recommend the staggering of the opening and closing hours of the two largest downtown groups—the office workers and the retail merchandising group.

Not long ago a count was made of all foot traffic into and out of seventy-nine large office buildings and twenty-five large stores each ten-minute period during the business day. A total of 617,600 persons was counted. On the basis of this count a report is being prepared dealing with peak traffic demands and making recommendations for desynchronizing the opening and closing hours of these two groups.

Although Los Angeles, with its height-limit restrictions, has built more wisely in its business area than San Francisco, it still has a problem of a somewhat similar nature, though it does not arise from a skyscraper source, as there are no tall buildings here save the City Hall. With our tremendous number of local motor vehicles and the admixture of thousands of cars driven in by tourists from outside the State, we would be in a pretty pickle had we as many twenty-story buildings as the Bay City. Traffic congestion is bad enough here as it is.

H. Gordon Selfridge, an American-born London merchant who twenty years ago turned the staid British notion of shopping topsy-turvy by setting the example of large department stores over there, stated in an interview in New York recently that the greatest problem that confronts London today is traffic congestion. He said that London has no desire to emulate New York in the erection of skyscrapers. Buildings in the British capital will go no higher. London is not so determined, as some large American cities, in concentrating a great number of persons within a small area. In this respect it shows horse sense.

THE GUGGENHEIM AWARD

In view of the frequent airplane disasters reported of late one turns with satisfaction to the news of the Guggenheim Fund safety contest award of $100,000 which went to the maker of an American plane, the Curtiss Tanager. This award was the result of severe tests as to the mechanism of airplane control. The Tanager took all the tests and is said to have made good in each of them, even defeating the much-vaunted British Handley plane, which was eliminated from the contest when it failed to make the minimum gliding speed of thirty-eight miles an hour. Doubts also were expressed as to whether the British entry had satisfied the tests as to general stability and quick recovery from violent disturbance.

The Tanager appears to be as close an approach to the foolproof plane as any that have yet been constructed, with the possible exception of the autogiro, which was not entered in the contest for the reason that it lacked proper adjustments, now being made for its entry in another competition. The winner of the contest was provided with stabilizers and other mechanical devices permitting it to come to a stop within 100 feet of the point where it first touched the ground after gliding for three minutes at thirty-eight miles an hour.

In the test made to demonstrate that it could right itself after disturbances from wind gusts the Tanager flew for five minutes at speeds of forty to 100 miles an hour with the pilot's hands off the controls. It overcame the hazard of nose dive and uncontrollable stall with stabilization by slots and flaps and was highly successful in the tests made to avoid crashes in restricted spaces with bad approaches.

Year by year improvements are being made in the airplane. The Tanager seems fairly safe, but perhaps the autogiro or some other flying device may prove itself to be still safer. For the preservation of human life and in the best interests of aviation it is to be hoped that it will be only a short time before a plane that will neutralize all present common hazards of the air may be perfected.

THE MONEY CHANGERS

San Francisco is indicating a lot of warranted pride in the new Stock Exchange Building, which is one of the classiest investment temples in this broad land. It is a $3,000,000 plant and looks like a large portion of perfection. Not only in architecture but in interior decoration and arrangement it may be mentioned as a model for the next generation. But the San Francisco Exchange does the biggest business in the country next to New York and Chicago and, therefore, this splurge is not only excusable but essential.

EVERY now and then we "gentlemen of the press" rub our eyes and look about in a dazed way to try to see what is going on. For frequently ladies of the press show us better ways of doing things.

That's how we felt the other day when we met Miss Nanon Herren of Topeka, Kan., editor of the Topeka Legal News. Miss Herren is spending the winter in Beverly Hills—which is just what we would wish to do if we were editor of the Topeka Legal News, but probably wouldn't be able to do. Miss Herren also writes plays, a thing we would like to do if we could find the time. And just after the World War ended, she was one of the four women selected by the national Federation of Women's Clubs to go over to France in educational work, and was the only woman in the American teaching staff at the University of Beaunne, where she taught English to doughboys. She goes back to Kansas now and then to receive some signal compliment from the Governor or the Supreme Court judges or somebody like that, but most of the time, it appears, she receives her income from her flourishing paper by mail.

If Miss Herren would only start a school of journalism here, we know a number of old, seasoned newspaper men who would like to learn her secret.

Tourists Love It

"Anyhow," cheerily writes J. C., "1930 started out as a promising year for the flood-insurance companies."

Southern Californians have been getting more moisture since then, but to the average tourist, December was just the kind of winter he comes to find. Though usually our winter rains come intermittently and never seriously interfere with outdoor pleasures, a December in which every day you are tempted by bright sunshine to go humming away to some mountain or desert or beach or old mission does not come every year. The unusual dryness of the first half of our winter is going to be the biggest advertisement abroad that Southern California has had in a long time.

Oldest Los Angeles Directory?

Leeside: I noticed in a recent Times article on the new directory of Los Angeles, in which it was said that the oldest directory in possession of the directory company was the one for 1883, when the population was estimated at 25,000.

I own a Los Angeles directory of date of 1878. It was the property of my father, Sam Kutz, one of the old-timers, who was for several years a deputy county clerk and who will be remembered by old-timers as "Cupid" Kutz, as he was in charge of the marriage license bureau for years. Later he was deputy to Judge Curtis D. Wilbur, juvenile judge. This directory lists 3240 names, showing quite an increase by 1883. Spanish names predominate in this 1878 directory, but there are thirty-one Smiths, one Smyth, twenty Johnsons, nineteen Browns and fourteen Joneses.

The Governor at that time was William Irwin, the Mayor F. A. MacDougall. Six Masonic, four Odd Fellows, two Red Men, one Knights of Pythias lodges are listed, as are four temperance societies, one Turnverein and four benevolent societies.—F. B. Kutz, Long Beach.

Man's Last Stronghold

Lee: You frequently call attention to the fact that the girls are doing everything and crowding the men out of everything nowadays. But you seem to have overlooked the fact that the biggest prize fight we had last month was between Goldie Hess and Baby Sal.—Fuller Prunz.

Now she has her rights, and more:
But I note she keeps on weeping,
Just as in the days of yore.
ADAM SINNICK.

New Year Wish

Leeside: Times headline says: "New Year's Shot Costs His Finger." Let us devoutly hope it was the celebrant's trigger finger.—Ernest Dubb.

Paid in Full

The sun will rise at six fifteen, they said,
Behind Jacinto's shoulder, north of east,
To see it you must early leave your bed.

The climb to Wilson's summit was at least
Excuse for resting long in dreamless sleep;
For I had used shank's mare, no other beast.

Before the dawn, in darkness, from the deep
Refreshing rest in mountain air, I rose
And waited for the sun his tryst to keep.

The King's approach was gracious, so I chose
To ask a recompense for sleep. He told Me not to go, nor sleep to close—
And paid me for my loss in purest gold!
GARDNER WADE EARLE.

ON THE LINKS

Nearly 400 golfers were trying to get into the Los Angeles open tournament. It is, perhaps, the greatest alignment that has marked any American event in the game. This territory is admittedly the finest golfing arena in the world. There is no use in trying to be modest about it. We have the clubs to prove it.

FLYING FAST

An air-mail pilot flies from Kansas City to Chicago in two hours and twenty minutes, which is the liveliest journey yet indulged between the two towns. It means a distance of better than 454 miles, which is quite a saucy little hop. The pilot must have had one of those Kansas zephyrs at his shoulder.

LOOKING BACKWARD
By James J. Montague

Our forefathers never had swift rolling cars
That sped down the highway like mad,
They didn't smoke three for a dollar cigars,
There were not any such to be had.
With a great deal of labor and little of ease
Their barren existence was spent,
Their trouser legs frequently bagged at the knees
And yet they were calmly content.

Our forefathers couldn't soar up in the sky
In a five-hundred-horsepower plane,
Nor travel, as fast as an eagle can fly,
In a vestibule passenger train.
When they went upon journeys they used the canals
And lifted and lowered through locks,
The rigs that they used when they took out their gals
Were drawn by a horse or an ox.

No "movies" or "talkies" our forefathers taught
How to dance or to dress or to pet,
No tunes to their lowly thatched houses were brought
By the aid of the radio set.
No cocktails assisted their hearts to elate
When worn by the hard daily grind,
If whisky they drank, they partook of it straight,
Yet they never complained or repined.

Our forefathers never bewailed their hard lot
Though they lived amid struggle and strife
And, though I'm not sure, it is likely as not
That they got quite a kick out of life.
Their method of living was placid and mild
And devoid of the worry and fuss,
Which is rapidly driving us modern folk wild;
But it certainly wouldn't suit us!

GOSSIP OR GARBAGE

BY EUGENE BROWN

Of course it had to come up. We were talking about grand juries and other bric-a-brac and the Old Resident bluntly insisted that he would rather run a morgue than trail for a full season with the official quizzers.

He said he had tried both jobs and liked the morgue best.

This was on the dead, he explained, with a grin.

"The dead ones are not making any fuss about it," he volunteered, "but the grand jury room is haunted by ghouls who are trying to harry somebody or embroider their nests at the cost of somebody else's comfort and happiness. They get almost as much scandal as you can over the preacher's radio."

"The heck you can!" exclaimed I, with sarsasm. "I'll bet you a good nickel cigar that the broadcasting dominie can spread more garbage in an hour than the grand jurors can sift in a month."

"You make me laugh," interrupted the Perfect Stranger. "Back in my town if we had a clerical gossip like that we'd paint his pelt a bright yellow and chain him in a drug-store window to listen to his own bleatings."

"Yes you would!" snorted the pioneer. "You come from one of those witch-burning towns where they still have a ducking stool. That kind of treatment would tickle our preacher to death. He would be turning handsprings in his window to show off his decorations. He would see himself as a real martyr and, believe me, this bird loves his martyrdom as a drunkard loves his cup."

"Well, he is a near-martyr, anyhow," protested I. "Didn't the underworld send him a postal card bidding him beware?"

"Underworld my eye!" sneered the veteran. "This radio roarer gives the underworld the best laugh it has had in seven years. The sports call up the preacher on the phone to say 'Boo' and immediately the crusader rushes to his beloved mike and tells the world that the tenderloin is plotting his life. He tells fearsome tales of fresh conspiracies against the Big Three—meaning himself, the Mayor and the District Attorney. These, he admits, are the three musketeers of righteousness. But if he can dig up a threat or something that smells like one he loves it. He really ought to be sending bombs to himself—and maybe he does."

"All the same we'd put a muffler on him if we had him in our town," persisted the Perfect Stranger.

"You try pinning a muzzle on Bob Shuler and see what happens to you," retorted the Old Resident. "You'll have your fingers bitten off. Los Angeles is more liberal than your people are. Here we open the windows and invite the crowd to hear him rave."

"You were talking a few minutes ago about the grand jury getting a lot of slander," suggested I. "Why on earth did the jurors jump on the preacher for dividing up? Isn't there enough for both?"

"I'll say there is," responded the old man. "But the jury objects to the way it is handled. They try to cover what they uncover as much as they can, but the dominie opens the shutter and barks his broadside into the wide, wide world. He don't care who he musses up in the doing and let the quips fall where they may."

"At that it does begin to look as if the preacher was already on the unfair list of the Scandalmongers' Union for working overtime," said I.

"You might almost say so," chuckled the veteran. "Did you notice how the foreman of the grand jury said in his special report that the broadcasting minister was one of the most unfair public characters he had ever known and that he used methods and tactics that decent sportsmen had long since repudiated and condemned."

"That ought to be enough," volunteered the Perfect Stranger. "Why didn't they shut him off?"

"Oh, he's one of the landmarks of the town," responded the pioneer. "He and Bull Montana and Jack Dempsey and a few more specimens are handy to point out to curious visitors or to help entertain company. Now that we have a Porter instead of a Cryer at the City Hall the preacher is supposed to be the town crier, the village gossip and the civic announcer, all rolled into one."

"What are you expected to do about it?" inquired the Perfect Stranger.

"Practically nothing," offered I. "Maybe we are learning to like it. We are like some of the soldiers who came back from France. Some of them were lonesome for their cooties for quite a while."

"Say not so," chirped the Old Resident. "The head of the grand jury added in his report that as a real force against the activities of the underworld Shuler is a huge joke. Now the joke is to find out who the joke is on."

"Maybe it is on me," declared the Perfect Stranger. "I was here last and I don't see it yet."

"We don't expect you to," declared the old-timer, "but maybe we can draw you a diagram. You see, we don't admit it, but as a matter of fact we have here what you might call a Peter Pan government. It never did grow up. The city may swell mightily, but the administration has always been a Boy Scout affair. It must have its back-firing and horse play. The town craves its little sensations and it is a part of the daily program to drag the police heads across the griddle and take a shot at them. They are not supposed to mind. Somebody has to be fed to the lions every day. Offhand, you might say that the local government is made up of crusaders who couldn't get jobs as errand boys for Big Business, but they get all steamed up and run around trying to look as important as the drum major of the Marine Band."

"Do you mean to insinuate that they are not important?" interrupted I, harshly.

"You've tasted near-beer, haven't you?" retorted the veteran. "Anyhow, it takes a talkative political preacher to spread the gossip of the town in the way to give it a little kick. If any of his victims show resentment or attempt to strike back he rushes to the front porch and clamors for the police and fire departments to come and pull 'em off. He may defy the world. He may breathe threatenings and slaughter, but if anybody takes him up he pleads temperament and innocent intentions. He will insist that he is being persecuted although the ozone is cluttered up with his own hapless victims. As a martyr he is a cross between Ajax and St. Vitus, but he still loves his martyrdom. Still and all he seems to fit into the life of the big village—a place where they oust a great construction engineer to give the job to one who is known to be an expert on the disposal of garbage. This engineer and the radio roarer should have a lovely time in going over the municipal garbage together. This should be teamwork of the finest pattern. They may not add greatly to the tone or dignity of the community, but a lot of citizens wish to know that their garbage is handled so as to give it its greatest possible zest. It is incense to their nostrils."

"I can't see it yet," exclaimed the Perfect Stranger, shaking his head dumbly.

"You wouldn't," retorted the pioneer, pityingly. "But you can smell it and if you take off your ear muffs you may presently hear it."

"I don't even understand," pleaded the Stranger.

"Of course not," said the veteran. "You are from New England and can't fathom our wild but simple life. But you mustn't think it is as bad as it smells."

"No, indeedy," chortled I. "Remember your Camembert cheese."

DAWN IN THE HEART

The rain ceased falling as the dawn drew near;
A baby star peeped from its bed of blue;
The ragged clouds went racing toward the north;
The sun smiled down upon a world made new.

Then from a walnut tree upon the hill
I heard a happy lark begin to sing;
And I am sure, the way he carolled on,
The blessed bird imagined it was spring!

O gentle bird, you do not mark the year
By hour and minute, month and week and day!
It is midwinter by man's calendar—
But in your heart it is the month of May.

WHERE CAN I LEARN
Auto Machine Work?

BY LOUISE L. TEMPLE

[Prepared in co-operation with the Los Angeles evening high schools. Questions concerning free evening classes will be answered if stamped addressed envelope is inclosed. Address Louise L. Temple, care of The Times.]

A class composed exclusively of men in the auto machine trade has been organized at the Frank Wiggins Trade Evening High School, 216 West Venice Boulevard. The work of the course includes the use of modern tools for the reconditioning of engine cylinders and valve seats, line reaming main bearings and truing brake drums. There is also practice in the operation of engine lathes.

The shop is equipped with all of the modern machinery and tools which pertain to the automobile phase of machine shop and each student gets a chance to perfect himself in turn with the various equipment.

The class meets on Monday and Wednesday and Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 7 to 9 p.m. All men in the auto machine trade are eligible to join and the only expense is $1 enrollment fee. At present there are several vacancies in the class and the first applicants will be admitted without the usual wait.

LOST DOLLARS

The most rudimentary intelligence should be able to grasp the fact that every fire represents an irretrievable and unnecessary economic and social waste. A dollar spent in purchasing a commodity multiplies itself many fold. It is never inactive and the entire nation is benefited by its service. A dollar lost because of fire can never be replaced. It has gone out of circulation and a black mark is placed against our record of prosperity. It is a common fallacy to believe that insurance "pays" for a fire. As a matter of face, insurance can do nothing to offset the loss. It can merely recompense the few with funds collected from the nation at large. For every dollar paid in losses an insurance company must take in at least a dollar in premiums. Our gigantic record of fire waste belies our intelligence as a nation. Part of the income of every citizen is, directly or indirectly, destroyed by fire. Every fire, whether it consumes a great factory or a doghouse, acts as a drag on progress.—[Exchange.

WEIRD PRACTICES CHARGED TO WOMAN

May Otis Blackburn

Mrs. Blackburn was in the nature of voluntary donations to the organization. Attorney Thomas W. Cochran is defending the woman.

Collins to Talk to Contractors

James F. Collins, State registrar of contractors, has been authorized by Gov. Young to go to New Orleans to address the annual convention of the Association of General Contractors of America on the working of the new California contractors' registration law.

Widespread interest in the law, which became effective August 14, 1929, has been indicated all over the United States, it is said, and the topic will be one of the important features of the contractors' convention, which opens in the Louisiana city late this month.

TEACHER'S TESTIMONY ATTACKED

Bolton Witness Will be Recalled for Questioning on Death Threat

The second week of the trial of John Dewey Bolton, Jr., former dance-hall operator, charged with the murder of his wife, Lucille, will get under way today in Superior Judge Wilson's court with the defense seeking to have stricken from the record testimony that eighteen months ago Bolton threatened he would kill Mrs. Bolton.

The disputed testimony was given Friday by Mrs. Ruby W. Abbott, a school-teacher, who will be recalled to the stand for further examination this morning.

Mrs. Abbott testified she had a conversation with Bolton in June, 1928, before he and his wife were married. She quoted Bolton as saying, "That girl is crazy about me, but I hate her nerve and if I ever marry her I'll kill her."

Defense Attorney Newton J. Kendall objected to the testimony on the ground it was too remote to have a bearing on the case and moved that it be stricken from the record. Judge Wilson took the motion under submission until this morning, to give him time to review legal questions presented by the prosecution and defense.

The State charges Bolton shot his wife November 9, 1929, while they were in their automobile on the Roosevelt Highway north of Santa Monica. As a motive for the asserted murder, the prosecution has sought to establish that Bolton was desirous of collecting $10,000 insurance on Mrs. Bolton's life.

At the time of the shooting Bolton told police and deputy sheriffs he and his wife had been held up by bandits, one of whom killed his wife and wounded him after Mrs. Bolton had recognized the bandit. Defense Attorney Kendall states he will offer this theory of the shooting in an effort to clear Bolton.

Dep. Dist.-Attys. Crail and Curran, prosecuting, charge Bolton wounded himself after killing his wife in order to withdraw suspicion from himself.

It is expected the State will conclude its case tomorrow.

INDIVIDUAL CALLED KEY TO PERMANENT PEACE

Dr. Von KleinSmid Declares Each Person Must Help Wipe Out War Causes

Voicing the hope and belief that the efforts of peoples and nations to bring about universal and lasting peace will result in the dawn of a new age for war-stricken humanity, Dr. R. B. Von KleinSmid, president of the University of Southern California, in his address at Temple Baptist Church yesterday emphasized the duty of each individual within every nation to so think, speak and act that the kingdom of heaven will be established on earth.

Speaking on "Internationalism and Christian Ideals," Dr. Von KleinSmid spoke in part as follows:

"Some persons speak and act as though 'international relations' were something that one could put on and take off at will, like a piece of armor, while the truth is, a person as well as a nation is born into 'international relations.' One is born a member of a family; one finds himself at birth a citizen of a nation. These are not relationships elected at will. In like manner does a nation discover itself to be one of a group of nations. Wish or whim has nothing to do with it; it remains only for the nation to determine the character of these relationships. They may be cold and distant, unsympathetic and antagonistic, or they may be warm and friendly, kindly and helpful. It is our contention that a Christian nation can be nothing else than kindly and helpful. Race or color, creed or politics—no one of these is the determining factor. 'God hath made of one blood all nations of men for to dwell on all the face of the earth.'"

TEMPTATIONS OF JESUS DISCUSSED BY PASTOR

Dr. H. C. Culbertson, co-pastor of All Souls' Congregational Church, preached yesterday on "Temptations of Jesus." He said in part:

"It has been thought by many persons that in His own experience Jesus learned the wondrous truth of God's forgiveness, and what it means to be born anew as a son of God. Even if this be not so, and if He never yielded to the lure of wrong, yet amid His tragic years He must have come to know the sublime greatness of forgiving those who had wrought evil against Him, and learned the sympathy which makes us most like our Father God. Symbolically we are told of the crisis of temptation which came to Him after baptism, when He realized that He was called of God to be a Messiah-deliverer, and after tremendous struggle, chose, not the pathways of imperial conquest and sceptered reign, but the slow, infinitely patient task of winning individual men and women to live the heavenly life."

LEARNING TO LOVE GOD NOT EASY, SAYS PASTOR

"Through boyhood and college days I tried hard to learn to love God, because I had been taught that such was my duty," said Dr. Sheldon Shepard in his sermon yesterday at First Universalist Church.

"Finally, I lost God and my earnest attempt to love Him," said Dr. Shepard. "Then, later, I began to fall in love with the beauty of life. One can do that when he loses his theology. The wonder of friendship, the majesty of human progress, the holiness of love, the tenderness of sympathy, the songs of birds, the sublimity of mountains, the blaze of sunset and the illimitable grandeur of a million solar systems—these filled me with awe, admiration, love. At every flash of new knowledge and added truth, I feel the thrill of love. And this life I love, this is God's creation, God's plan, God's presence."

TRUTH ALWAYS TOLD BY MOTHER NATURE

Declaring that the character of Mother Nature is as spotless as the reputation of George Washington, Dr. Bruce Brown, in his sermon at South Park Christian Church yesterday, said that nature never tells a falsehood or breaks faith with her children.

"Nature never creates an instinct without providing for its gratification," said Dr. Brown. "Nature never creates in the bird the instinct that prompts it to fly away from the North when the storms of winter are coming without creating at the same time a land of sunshine and flowers. Stronger than the instinct in any bird is that in the heart of man, unfailing, unfaltering, that out beyond the storms and darkness of this life there must be a summer land of light and love. Surely the power that never deceives the bird will not deceive man. Surely the goodness that provides for the wants of our bodies will not forget the longings of our souls. There must be, there is, beyond pain an parting and death, that home where God shall be our father and we shall be His children and He shall wipe away all tears from our eyes."

MEN TOLD TO TRUST JESUS AS CAPTAIN

"Nothing is of more importance, in a sea voyage, than the integrity of the captain of the ship," said Adjt. Frank Howell in his sermon yesterday at Salvation Army Temple.

"The life and welfare of every passenger are in the captain's care," said the speaker. "He can make a safe voyage or he can sink the ship. In the voyage of life, it is important that a good captain be chosen. There is only one captain who can lead us safely. He stilled the storm on Galilee. He bade the waves be still. When we take voyage on His good ship Salvation, we may rest assured the end will be in a safe harbor. With the Holy Spirit as compass, with Jesus as Captain, the ship Salvation on the high seas of life will reach a safe rest in the harbor of heaven."

RABBI PAYS RESPECTS TO OLD TRADITIONS

Pleading for more conservatism in philosophical and religious thought, Rabbi E. F. Magnin told his congregation at B'nai B'rith yesterday that many persons are forsaking the religions in which they have been reared, only to discover that the new gods which they enshrine possess feet of clay.

"After all, many of the so-called new ideals in ethics and religion were advocated centuries ago and were rejected by the human race because they were found impractical and, in some instances, harmful," said Dr. Magnin. "Life is not theory. Human beings must take into consideration psychological facts as well as abstract logic. Age does not necessarily confer the stamp of truth or perfection upon any institution, but when practices and teachings have been handed down for centuries that have preserved a people and helped them to maintain a high standard of living, it stands to reason that they should not be too quickly abandoned."

COMFORTING WORDS OF JESUS RECALLED

Communion services were conducted yesterday in all Christian Science churches, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston. "Sacrament" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon, and the Golden Text consisted of the words of Jesus from John 14:21, "He that hath my commandments, and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me; and he that loveth me shall be loved of my Father, and I will love him, and will manifest myself to him."

One of the Scripture selections in the Lesson-Sermon contained these comforting words of the Master. "Let not your heart be troubled: ye believe in God, believe also in me. . . . I go to prepare a place for you. . . . And whither I go ye know and the way ye know. . . . I am the way, the truth, and the life: no man cometh unto the Father, but by me."

RADIO CHEATS WINTER'S GRIP

Play-Hungry Masses Told Where Fun Awaits

Amusement and News Taken to Snowbound Folk

Resort Camps and Lonely Cabins Brightened

The Times Forum, KHJ, 10:30 a.m., presents Glenn Hood, and others. World Wide News at 12:30; 4:30 and 10 p.m.

BY JOHN S. DAGGETT

"Can we make it?" was the question of the winter sport-loving devotees last Saturday as they closed their desks in the city and hungered for a week-end in the snow-clad mountains. Mother and the kiddies rummaged for mittens, sweaters and winter clothing, while dad "tooled" up the family blimp—and—learned about road conditions from radio. "Camp Fun reports snow-plows have cleared the road—come on up," were the words radio told dad; so today they return tired, but happy, from a week-end of snow-men and toboggan tumbles.

Then, too, think of the thousands in mountain camp retreats and cabins where the outer world, and news of it, depended upon a telephone line—and that line "dead" with its weight of snow. To those folk, radio plowed through the air to spread before them music, song and friendship. Radio is truly a "friend to man," eluding the grasp of winter's tentacles to take the lonely, snowbound adventurer to its heart, heaping before him happiness.

Resort camps throughout the mountains of Southern California were in many cases marooned until the advent of radio. But with their speakers singing and laughing; with their road-informed guests flooding in, winter has become something to welcome. And so, the host that greets you from the humblest rustic cabin to the largest resort is radio.

DIAL POINTS TODAY

KHJ at 4:30 this afternoon will present the second national-wide broadcast to originate in Los Angeles, "Voices from Filmland." Cecil De Mille will tell the history of the idea of one of his latest feature pictures. A courtroom scene from this film will be enacted for radio. Earl Burtnett's orchestra, the Don Lee Filmland Orchestra directed by Raymond Paige, and Sam Wineland and his orchestra will supply the orchestral numbers. Lawrence Gray and Charles Bickford, film stars, also are on the program. A KHJ arrangement of "China Boy" will be a feature of this half-hour. At 8 tonight KHJ will receive KFRC's "Blue Monday Jamboree." The Jamboreadors will be "at sea" during the 8 to 10 weekly barrage of fun. A distinct musical novelty for the second hour will be a medley from "Sunnyside Up" for a brass sextet. Many other comedy and musical novelties are promised.

KFI will present Kathleen Norris, well-known author, at 2:30 this afternoon, while a real Spanish ensemble, the Rondalla Usandizaga, will entertain with Spanish music at 6 this evening. At 7 tonight the Rochester Civic Orchestra will be heard in Wagner's "Siegfried" over KFI. At 9 tonight an N.B.C. chain broadcast will bring Franklyn Baur, tenor; Vaughan De Leath, contralto, and a concert orchestra in a song recital.

PLAYLET OVER KNX

KNX will present a radio playlet at 7:30 tonight, "The Lost Melody," a story of a French violinist. At 8 p.m. the KNX Ensemble will play the overture "Semiramide" by Rossini and other selections, while the Rounders and The Three of Us, girls' trio, will go on at 9. Johnny Hamp and his orchestra will be heard for the first time over KNX at 11 tonight in real dance music.

KMTR presents as one of its highlights Loren Powell and his symphony orchestra in a half hour of delightful classical music at 7:30 tonight. At 8 p.m. the Kelly Kolegians will play compositions of Victor Herbert and popular waltzes. From 9 to 9:30 this evening Harry Geise's "The Man in the Moon" musical number will offer unusual treatment of a moonbeam's journeyings.

A RADIO QUARREL

KFWB at noon will show Cecil and Sally on the verge of what might be called their first quarrel. Ray Martinez's Concert Ensemble, with Emma Kimmel, soprano, will present a selection from Victor Herbert's "Babes in Toyland," etc., at 8 o'clock. At 8:30 p.m. the Oakland vs. Los Angeles ice hockey game will be broadcast, while George Olsen and his orchestra will present an Irving Berlin program at 10.

KEJK will broadcast as a feature each week day, including today, Max Fisher and his orchestra from 1 to 2 p.m.

In the interest of the biblical play to be given by the National Council of Jewish Women, Lillian Burkhart Goldsmith, local clubwoman and actress, and Ruth Comfort Mitchell, playwright and novelist, will speak over KFWB on Monday and Tuesday nights at 7 p.m. The play "Hear, O Israel" will be presented at the Shrine Auditorium Wednesday evening.

Assessed Lot Owners Obtain Seizure Writ

Protesting property owners in the vicinity of Beverly Boulevard between Alexandria and Western avenues have obtained a temporary restraining order to prevent the city selling property assessed at approximately $1,000,000, upon which a lien would have become operative Saturday if the injunction had not been granted.

Out of 550 affected property owners, 485 protested against the widening of Beverly Boulevard between Western and Alexandria, but the City Council ordered the improvement anyway. The work has never been done, however.

Hearing to make the injunction permanent will be heard by Superior Judge Gates this week.

Ad Campaign on Grapefruit in Full Swing

The 1930 Sunkist grapefruit advertising campaign by the California Fruit Growers' Exchange is now under way and will extend throughout winter and spring months, according to announcement of W. B. Geissinger, advertising manager of the exchange.

A sixteen weeks' newspaper-and-radio campaign, featuring the superior qualities of Sunkist grapefruit began early in January. Newspapers in leading cities of the Pacific Coast and intermountain regions will carry display ads, and an extensive street-car advertising campaign, dealer service and demonstration program will be carried out.

The second of the series of sixteen broadcasts over the Pacific Coast network of the National Broadcasting Company, originating in Los Angeles from Station KFI, will go on the air Wednesday evening at 8:45 p.m., lasting until 9:15. This program will be broadcast every Wednesday evening at this time and features the fourteen-piece Sunkist Serenaders, with James Burroughs, tenor, singing Spanish and popular songs.

Jail Sentence for Ear Slasher

For trimming his bulldog puppy's ears with a razor, J. J. Coleman, 1116 North Gordon street, must spend ten days in jail.

The sentence was imposed by Municipal Judge Curtis after Coleman pleaded guilty to cruelty to an animal, in extenuation declaring that if the dog's ears are not clipped they will be torn in fights when he grows older.

"That may be all right," Judge Curtis commented, "but you trimmed them so short that it's nothing but mutilation."

Coleman gave notice of appeal from the sentence, on which the court set bond of $500.

Art Club Will Discuss Poet

This evening's forum at the California Art Club, Barnsdall Park, will be devoted to a discussion of Walt Whitman. Admirers of the poet are particularly invited to attend.

The program starts at 8 o'clock. There is no admission charge.

RODZINSKI PRESENTS RUSSIANS

Two Works Given Lively Reading at Philharmonic Afternoon Concert

Correctness and a modicum of adequacy rather than the necessary verve and exquisite sparkle marked and marred the Mozart A major concerto as played by George Stewart McManus in the Philharmonic Orchestra's popular concert given yesterday afternoon under the urgent baton of Dr. Artur Rodzinski.

An audience of more than tolerable size refused to be absented by the skyey dampness and were rewarded with a program built of two lively works from the Russian "national" group, the Mozart gem, and a popular symphony by a Russian admirer of Mozart—the turbulent Pourt of Tchaikowsky.

This familiar of every concert season won the largest response of the program. Rodzinski, who is personally no great admirer of Tschaikowsky, gave a reading which largely emphasized the stress and brilliance, notably of the "summing up" in the final movement.

The sentimental and regretful elements, so often made much of in the work, were largely obscured. Rapidity of tempo destroyed some of the ominous majesty of the trumpets' "fate" theme which cuts so savagely into the first and last movements.

The same haste was notably apparent in the fluent overture to Glinka's "Russlan and Ludmilla," which ran a colorful course at rates which were breathtaking—and rather pleasantly so. Glinka here seemed like a Russian Carl Maria Weber, with reference to the latter's refreshing "Oberon" and "Freishuts" overtures.

More highly flavored and with irresistible, swaying rhythms the very Slavic "Dances" from Borodin's "Prince Igor" were as finely sensational as in previous performances.

The last two movements of the Mozart Concerto — andante and presto—surpassed the first in intrinsic appeal. Dr. Rodzinski did a finished piece of accompanying. Mr. McManus is head of the music department at U.C.L.A. and a well-known pedagogue.

Thursday evening and Friday afternoon the orchestra will be heard in a program including Olga Steeb, Los Angeles pianist, and Hulda Lashanska, soprano, as soloists.

Fabia Drake Charms With Performance

BY MURIEL BABCOCK

Another alice of Mr. Will Shakespeare's comedy, to-wit: "Twelfth Night," was performed by ye Stratford-Upon-Avon players Saturday afternoon.

Perhaps not as delectable a piece of humor as those which have preceded it at the Belasco, the play was received in fine manner by a capacity matinee crowd which chuckled merrily at the various quips, sallies and situations and broke into applause whenever there was the least excuse.

"Twelfth Night," as you may recall—most Shakespeare students do—is the rather filmsily plotted play in which Viola, a fair maiden, disguises herself in man's garb, to be the nearer her true love, Orsino, Duke of Ilyria. This leads to all sorts of complications. The lady, whom the Duke woos thinks she prefers this masquerader. Viola's brother, whom she believes dead, comes upon the scene and in turn is mistaken for Viola.

There's some great comedy in which that fine pair of actors, Roy Byford and Kenneth Wicksteed, in the person of two old reprobates, Sir Tobias Belch and Sir Andrew Aguecheek, participate. Particularly enjoyable is the scene at midnight in the house of Olivia when, in their cups, they create a joyful disturbance. In another comic role is that excellent performer, Wilfrid Walter.

The honors of Saturday afternoon must be heaped upon the shoulders of Miss Fabria Drake as Viola. Miss Drake gave a delightful performance. She has a lovely voice, a captivating personality and was altogether charming throughout the five acts and, goodness knows how many scenes.

"Twelfth Night" will be repeated Friday evening.

Barbara Kent Will Take Bow

Barbara Kent, leading lady in "Welcome Danger," Harold Lloyd's first "talkie," which comes to the Uptown Theater screen tonight for a four-day showing, will make a personal appearance tonight. "Welcome Danger" has been acclaimed as one of Lloyd's most hilarious fun features, and Miss Kent has a prominent role in the production. In addition, the cast also includes a number of other prominent players. On the same program the Uptown is offering Fox Movietone News and several talkie shorts.

'Evidence' Next on Tower Bill

"Evidence," a Warner Brothers' picture starring Pauline Frederick, will be shown at the Tower Theater starting Wednesday. As a stage play, "Evidence" was recognized as a dramatic denunciation of circumstantial evidence. The screen presentation is said to be as forceful as its predecessor.

MARILYN MILLER DEBUT ENTICES

Twinkling Steps of Stage Star Delight Throng

"Sally" Effective in Song, Dance and Comedy

Color Photography Reveals New Notes of Beauty

BY EDWIN SCHALLERT

Hail a new star, and a bright one! Marilyn Miller flashes onto the screen as one of the finds of the season! And "Sally," in which she makes her debut, is a picture! One of the best of its kind, and a kind that almost anyone will enjoy!

"Sally" started its glowing reign just a little before midnight Saturday at Warner Brothers Hollywood Theater. The premiere was not of the usual "special" type at advanced prices, but was nevertheless given with reserved seats, and drew a packed house.

The first showing generated a continuous enthusiasm. There was especially long applause after the number, "A Wild, Wild Rose," hit song par excellence, while throughout the production Miss Miller's dancing seemed to be an unqualified success.

And indeed her stepping should be a success. Absolutely marvelous is the art and abandon with which she is able to dance for the films. A distinct achievement, too, is the camera's capturing of her fleet trippings and twinklings, when she is literally flying across the gorgeous sets.

A SUNSHINE PRESENCE

"Sally" is a richly embellished picture, and Miss Miller is a personality of charm. Sunshine seems absolutely to emanate from her presence. There are few girls who have ever come to the screen who are so blithe, luminous and graceful as she.

In a way, perhaps, she reminds of Norma Shearer. She discloses a similar refinement of being. She would appear to hold a relationship to the music picture that Miss Shearer has long held to to the dramatic or comedy—the ability to invest such a picture with a wholesome personal brightness, entirely free from the vampish taint, the conventional lure of sex.

There is as much radiance in many of Miss Miller's acted scenes, incidentally, as there is in her danced scenes. Especially natural and pleasing in her work in the restaurant episode at the start of the picture, and later on in her meeting with the man she loves in the Greenwich Village cafe.

As a photographic type she falls only a little short of sheer perfection. The impression she makes when highly animated is ideal. In the more static poses she is singularly free, it would seem, from camera consciousness. Few stars just entering the filmy domain have met the requirements so well in these particular respects.

JOE BROWN COMEDIES

To be sure, "Sally" is not a one-sided picture. While Miss Miller dominates, there is plenty to be said for the comedy antics of Joe E. Brown, who is cast in the role that the rubbery-legged Leon Errol played on the stage. Brown walks on steady pins, and thus accomplishes, it is pleasant to relate, a distinctive impersonation. His utterance of amusing lines, and his ever comical face, yield almost constant laughter.

Uproarious, particularly for its buffoonery, is the scene where he attempts to assist the crotchety Jack Duffy up a ladder to a cafe table in a tree. Duffy, in a senile portrayal, is almost as funny during these moments as Brown himself, and gives a performance that is one of the high spots. Ford Sterling, characteristically, and T. Roy Barnes help to supply even more hilarity.

Of a more serious order is Alexander Gray's work in the hero role, and especially worthy is his singing. There have been comparatively few voices to equal his so far on the screen. He sings intelligently and well.

Other players including Maude Turner Gordon, E. J. Ratcliffe and Nore Lane are well cast. Pert Kelton looks to be an interesting screen type, though the part she plays is of negligible import. And, curiously enough, she is supposed to be featured in this film.

EXQUISITE COLOR EFFECT

Beautiful, indeed, are the ensembles at the close of the picture. Here is color photography used for some of the rarest pastel effects. An exquisite series of pictorial impressions have been worked out in the staging of the numbers of Albertina Rasch dancers, and for this no doubt credit goes both to the direction of John Francis Dillon, and to Larry Ceballos. However costuming, photography and everything seems to have been blended for the utmost ocular appeal in these scenes, and after "Sally" it may be said that any musical picture not made in color will probably appear flat.

A word might be said for the story of "Sally"—but then what use? The Cinderella of Cinderellas is what the heroine of this picture is, and the adaptation by Waldemar Young on the whole, follows the original very closely.

But even if you are prejudiced against Cinderella and her ways, be sure to see this very alluring film.

Blossom Room to Honor Film Cast

Many of Hollywood's leading cinema lights will be present tonight when the cast of "Show of Shows," now playing at Warner Brothers' Downtown Theater, is honored in the Blossom Room of the Roosevelt Hotel. Among players from the film who will be honored guests on the occasion are Frank Fay, Betty Compson, Lila Lee, Myrna Loy, Loretta Young, Marion Byron and Grant Withers.

Featured on the special program of entertainment is a Larry Ceballos revue. George Olsen and his orchestra will introduce unique musical interpretations.

ACTRESS REWARDED

Helen Kaiser has been given a new contract by Radio Pictures. This move by executives of R.-K.-O. assures Radio Pictures of services for a long term of the blond young miss who was featured last season in New York with Will Rogers in "Three Cheers."

THRILLS OF THE HUNT DEPICTED

Colorful Adventures of Commander Dyott Shown at Biltmore Theater

BY JOHN SCOTT

Through the medium of the cinema an absorbing tale of the jungles of India was unfolded last night at the Biltmore Theater. "Hunting Tigers in India," it was called, and it attracted a large and brilliant audience, although those who usually attend gaily decorated in spangles this time came for sheer enjoyment, traveling somewhat incognito.

And for sheer pleasure, "Hunting Tigers in India" is recommended to the most exacting. With no plot, and no love scenes, this film presents drama filled to the brim with excitement, courage and scenic beauty. It is the successful effort of Commander G. M. Dyott of the British Naval Air Service, in conjunction with the A. S. Vernay Expedition for the American Museum of National History.

Besides proffering a thorough study in the native life of India, both country and urban, "Hunting Tigers" follows the exploits of the expedition in the deepest jungles, in quest of the lord of the animals, the tiger. Incidental scenes show many different species of Indian wild life, in their native haunts, mainly deer, elephants and rhinoceros.

Commander Dyott, in typical English style and voice, explains the various steps of the journey and search. This is all done through the medium of the talking screen.

During the presentation some extremely interesting sidelights on customs and rituals of the Indians are screened, with thousands of natives employed as willing but unknowing extras. The religious ceremonies are awe-inspiring. The scenes show literally thousands of native men, women and children atoning for their sins by self-torture and their ascent to the cave which contains the water which is supposed to wash away their troubles. Each community sends representatives for this purpose.

The tiger hunt itself is thrilling in the extreme sense of the word. Elephants beat through the dense undergrowth and force the tigers out into the open where they are photographed with the motion-picture camera and eventually shot. There is a sequence guaranteed to bring shivers to the most phlegmatic individual. This is when a tiger leaps at one of the elephants which carries the hunter, and is brought down only after his claws have ripped the elephant's trunk.

Besides the feature, the Biltmore is also showing a vivid motion picture, titled "Today—and Yesterday." This film illustrates the cycle of progress in the last twenty-five years. Personalities of this period are shown on the screen in events which record their fame. The United States and England share in this interesting and novel recapitulation.

United Artists to Show Norma Talmadge Film

Norma Talmadge's latest and perhaps most ambitious screen effort, "New York Nights," her first all-talking production, will open at the United Artists' Theater Saturday. "Taming of the Shrew," co-starring Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks, will complete its engagement Friday.

A fast-paced drama of Broadway, "New York Nights," is rich in romance and power and provides Miss Talmadge with a role said to be one of the most colorful in her career. The film, based on the stage success, "Tin Pan Alley," by Hugh Stanislaus Strange, was directed by Lewis Mileston. Featured in support of Miss Talmadge are Gilbert Roland, John Wray, Lilyan Tashman, Mary Doran and Roscoe Karns.

'Hell's Heroes' Starts Soon at Million Dollar

"Hell's Heroes," adapted from Peter B. Kyne's story, "Three God Fathers," will have its local premiere at the Million Dollar Theater Wednesday. The picture, which has the Mojave Desert as its locale, stars Charles Bickford, Raymond Hatton, Fred Kohler and Fritzie Ridgeway.

Answering the cry of the public for "something different" in talking pictures, it is said that "Hell's Heroes" has no dancing daughters, petting papas, painted chorus, or even a theme song. The merits of the picture are solely the theme of the plot and its enactment.

"IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE" REAL HIT

Robert McWade and Patsy Ruth Miller Featured in Playhouse Farce

BY PHILIP K. SCHEUER

Acting upon the suggestion "It Pays to Advertise," the Hollywood Playhouse yesterday proclaimed to all and sundry its opening performance of this comedy by Rio Cooper Megrue and Walter Hackett. And an audience that, unmindful of the rain sweeping the streets outside, filled the auditorium, found the suggestion contagious and most helpful; for they left the theater crying, "here's a hit!"

Well, this "farcical fact," which stars Robert McWade and has a supplementary attraction in Patsy Ruth Miller of the films, is happy enough entertainment for anybody. It has been modernized and polished until it is as timely as today's newspaper, and the philosophy it expounds is one readily recognizable to the patrons of Henry Duffy enterprises. I may mention, too, that it is a better piece of writing than those which have recently occupied the much-trafficked Playhouse boards; and that Mr. McWade and one Byron Hawkins (who is not a detective, but an actor—and pretty good one,) as well as most of the others, have a way of getting a great deal out of their lines and business.

The story concerns the efforts of Rodney Martin, son of the soap king, to "make good" along the same lines as his father. For chief aide and abetter he has the energetic Ambrose Peale, whose faith in the power of publicity leads to the exploitations of "13 Soap—Unlucky for Dirt," in a big way. The third member of the company is Mary Grayson, ex-secretary to Cyrus Martin and sweetheart of his son.

Everything moves swimmingly until the firm's funds are exhausted. Then calamity in many guises falls upon "13 Soap;" a check for $2500 comes bouncing right back into the ornate and optimistic offices of the company; the Comtesse De Beaurien, considered an eccentric but bona-fide investor, turns out to be the source of another choisr; the creditors are clamoring for their money—and, as if all this were not enough, the soap king's last-minute offer to take over the business is withdrawn as suddenly. It is only when an order comes from Marshall Field, in Chicago, for 50,000 cakes of "13 Soap" that matters take on a brighter tinge; and then some one recollects that, in the resistless tide of enthusiasm to get their produce before the world, the energetic trio have carelessly neglected to manufacture so much as a single cake of the cleansing stuff.

What happens from here on may be left to the imagination, or witnessed in actual unfoldment in the Playhouse precincts.

Miss Miller, who has made occasional excursions to the footlight realm before, is an efficient heroine. Marie Meyers's presentment of the countess, while it would never fool a count, pleased the more democratic theatergoers yesterday. Robert Keith scored in the minor part of Ellery Clark, a dilettante; and others were John Mackenzie, Lowden Adams and Bram Noseen.

The library set is noteworthy.

Tragedy Stirs Large Crowd at Belasco

BY P. K. S.

The three weird sisters stirred their caldron with hellish effect on Saturday night at the Belasco Theater. "Double, double toil and trouble," they croaked, capering singularly before their boiling pot; and double toil and trouble it was. Trouble for Macbeth, who aspired to be King of all Scotland; trouble for Lady Macbeth, who set her viper's tongue to her husband's task; trouble for Duncan, the then King, and Banquo, his general; trouble for Macduff, a nobleman of heart and title. Shakespeare was unstinting of his tragedy here; "Macbeth," a magnificent play, was magnificently performed by the Stratford players.

Such applause as has seldom rocked the Belasco, I daresay, since it first threw wide its doors, rushed out toward the stage at the climaxes of three great moments. It was a reward, first, for Wilfrid Walter, in his terror at the unnatural spectacle of dead Banquo at the banquet; second, for Fabia Drake, when, as Lady Macbeth, she walked the castle corridors with incarnadined hands and soul; and, third, for George Hayes as the heroic Macduff, hard upon his reception of the news of his wife and babes, "savagely slaughter'd." One spectator, indeed, quite overcome by the weeping of this strong man and his shouted challenge to the fiend of Scotland, let loose from the bellows of his lungs a "Bravo!" that would have terrified had it come at a less tumultuous time of the evening, but which, when it echoed across the theater, seemed quite in harmony with the proceedings.

"MacBeth," you will appreciate, was acted to the hilt. What Mr. Walter's portrayal of the arch villain lacked in the subtler shades of psychological change, it made up in colors which ran red. As his lady, Miss Drake, missed not a trick; she was like a snake which, scotched, still struck in feeble agony. And the Macduff of Mr. Hayes was almost better than it had any right to be.

In the supporting cast, Oliver Crombit played Duncan, and Eric Maxon, Banquo. R. Eric Lee was Malcolm. The witches were Kenneth Wicksteed, Jack Bligh and Goeffrey Wilkinson. I know not when we four shall meet again—in thunder, lightning, or in rain—but for my own part, I had rather not be there.

Tonight, the Stratfordians will perform the rarer "Richard the Second."

NEWCOMER PLAYS LEAD

Marion Schilling, who is playing the feminine lead in Tiffany's "Cyclone Hickey," in which James Gleason has the principal role, with Johnny Walker, Paul Hurst, Lillian Elliott and others in the cast, is one of the youngest leading women in pictures. She has had less than a year's screen experience, all in talking pictures, however. She graduated from Central High School, St. Louis, Mo., in the class of 1928. During school vacations she played in stock.

AGRICULTURE'S TIDE AT FLOOD

California Farms Return to Peak Production

Valuation of 1929 Crops Up to $553,249,000

Tonnage Smaller But Prices Higher Than Before

BY DR. GEORGE P. CLEMENTS
Manager Agricultural Department Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce

After a decade of fluctuating agricultural income, California last year approached the high standard established during the World War with a total farm return of $553,249,000, according to preliminary figures just released by the Federal-State Co-operative Crop Reporting Service, Sacramento. This total, which includes the value of all important crops, is the highest income received by California farmers since 1919 and exceeds the 1928 total by more than $43,000,000.

An analysis of the 1929 crop record in California brings to light some interesting trends in the agricultural progress of the Golden State.

FRUIT SHORT, PRICE HIGH

It was found that fruit crops, with the exception of citrus, were far below normal in yield, due to heavy frosts early in the spring, but in spite of the short crop the income for this class of crops was the highest on record, $261,454,000. Citrus income dropped somewhat from the past four-year level but deciduous fruits and grapes were higher, both in unit value and total income. Walnuts brought $12,480,000, exceeding the 1928 income by $2,000,000.

The return for field crops was the highest since 1920, totaling $201,268,000. Crops in this classification are increasing in importance, particularly cotton, which assumed fifth place in value in the California crop scheme with a return of $20,540,000 for lint and $2,986,000 for seed. Tame hay, which includes alfalfa and grain straw, brought the greatest income of any crop in California last year. The crop was valued at $84,919,000, which exceeded the return for oranges by $5,000,000. Bean prices were very satisfactory and the crop brought more than $25,000,000 to the State.

TRUCK BREAKS RECORD

Truck crops also broke all income records in 1929, returning growers $80,499,000, as compared with $74,858,000 in 1928. Crops in this classification have shown a surprising gain during the past decade, in fact, it is the only group which has shown a consistent yearly increase in both total and unit income. In 1919 vegetables produced in California were valued at $33,411,000. Last year lettuce was the fourth crop in value in California with a farm value of $22,990,000. Cantaloupes returned $13,242,000.

The ten leading crops in farm value in California last year were: Tame hay, $84,919,000; oranges, $79,345,000; beans, $25,121,000; lettuce, $22,990,000; cotton, $20,858,000; raisins and raisin grapes, $20,790,000; barley, $20,554,000; lemons $20,540,000; prunes, $19,776,000, and peaches, $18,283,000.

MILLION-DOLLAR CROP

Emphasizing the wide diversity in agricultural production in California and its effect on the stability of farm enterprise, the report shows that forty-five crops brought above $1,000,000 each to the State last year; that twenty-two crops were valued at more than $5,000,000 each; twelve commodities returned $10,000,000, and eight $20,000,000 each. This income was spread over the entire twelve months of the year, resulting in a sustained buying power in the agricultural areas.

The deciduous fruit and grape industries, which have been having some distribution difficulties during the past years, gained strength during 1929. Federal Farm Board aid to the raisin industry was no doubt a stabilizing influence in the grape industry. Yields of grapes were far below normal last year and the average price for all grapes was $26.52, as compared with $14 in 1928.

FROST CUTS VOLUME

Peach and pear growers received 50 per cent more for their crops last year than they did in 1928. This income, however, did not spread to all growers; some districts did not have crops in 1929 due to frost. California harvested the smallest crop of prunes since 1920 but the tonnage price was practically double that of 1928. Apricots were the only fruit in larger production than the previous year but, due to scarcity of other fruits, the price also was higher than that of 1928. All dried and canned fruit lines sold well, and it is expected that stocks will be cleaned up before the next crop.

Worth-while gains were made in total agriculture income last year, but it most be remembered that the higher unit return received for most crops last year was largely due to a smaller volume of production. This fact seems to indicate that the greatly increased production since 1920, particularly of deciduous fruits and grapes, has not been a real asset to agriculture, but has caused price depression because demand has not kept pace with production.

PRODUCTION DOUBLES

In 1919 California had 938,400 acres in bearing fruits and grapes which produced 2,651,050 tons valued at $241,628,000. Last year there were 1,709,000 acres in production and the tonnage produced totaled around 4,000,000, valued at $261,454,000. So in spite of the fact that both acreage and production has virtually doubled in the past decade total income has not shown a proportionate increase.

Last year Jack Frost stepped in to adjust production to demand, resulting in higher price levels on most fruits and bringing home the fact that the difficulties experienced during the past few years by fruit and grape growers is due only to the large volume of production.

The situation in the deciduous fruit and grape industries showed decided improvement during the past season, however, and with increasing efficiency in merchandising these industries are on the road to complete stabilization.

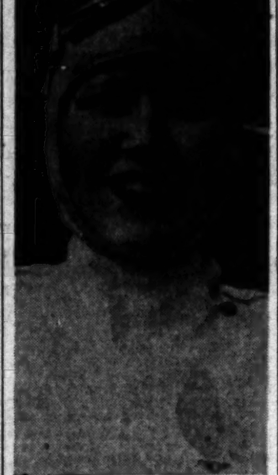
SPORTSWOMAN TO PRESIDE AT DINNER



Marjorie Crawford

Famous aviators may be guests of honor at the second annual banquet and dance of the National Aeronautical League the 25th inst. at the Palomar Tennis Club, with Miss Marjorie Crawford, sportswoman, hostess. The National Cartoonists' Club will be represented. There also may be in attendance several motion-picture stars.

Capt. Robert Nolan, commander of a fleet of planes maintained by the league, will take off tomorrow morning with a squadron of three planes on a tour of Southern California in the interest of the forthcoming banquet.

Hal Forrest, aviator and comic strip artist, who is president of the national group, has arranged a program for the evening.

MORE DATA SOUGHT ON DEPOT PLAN

Proposed Bus Terminal Slated for Further Study by Utilities Board

Further details of a proposed plan to use the old police and fire station in Hollywood as a bus terminal for all lines in that section is sought by the Board of Public Utilities and Transportation, which has approved a preliminary report made by the motor vehicle inspection division.

The plan was presented to the board by J. Peters, operator of the bus terminal on Hollywood Boulevard, between Las Palmas and Highland avenues, where the service is being discontinued by Peters because of complaints by residents in the vicinity and because the variety of busses in Hollywood makes it impossible to operate some of the equipment through the terminal.

Peters's proposal embraces a much larger program than the one he is discontinuing. He seeks approval of a venture by which the traveling public would have the benefit of a central exchange from any one point to any and all other lines, in addition to providing a loading depot where local and cross-country bus passengers could change cars.

His argument is that by placing such an exchange on private property it would relieve much of the congestion on busy corners, now a cause for complaint. He has taken the matter up with several of the principal stage lines and reports most of them favorable to the plan. He also asks for permission allowing the Original Stage Line to use the proposed depot, on which he has obtained options for a fifteen-year lease, as a starter.

The report by the motor vehicle division states that while the police division is moving out of its half of the structure into new quarters, the fire department will use its half until its new station is completed, which will be several months hence. It is contended that extensive alterations will have to be made to the structure, although it has been found that the building and location is suited generally for the project advanced by Peters.

Couple Given Year on Small Theft Charges

Three years in jail, of which two years were suspended, was the sentence imposed on Arthur Mankins, engineer for a downtown department-store, and Opal Long, his sweetheart, following their plea of guilty to six counts of petty theft each before Municipal Judge Bullock.

Police reported that Mankins and Mrs. Long had formed a ring among employees of the store's distributing department which had stolen more than $2000 worth of goods during the short time it was operating before store officials discovered it. Goods stolen were disposed of in eastern cities, according to the report.

MASONIC CLUB WILL SEE MISSION PLAY

Through the courtesy of John Steven McGroarty, who has extended an invitation to its members their wives and friends, The Times Masonic Club will hold a theater party at the Mission Playhouse in San Gabriel next Saturday night, to see the Mission Play. It will be preceded by a reception on the stage when the cast will be assembled and introduced by Mr. McGroarty to the visitors.

He will make a brief address of welcome to the Masonic visitors, to be followed by a brief response by President James McBride of the club.

HORNSBY'S CASE NOW NEAR JURY

Trial May be Concluded Wednesday in Case of Man Accused of Gunplay

Trial of Mose W. Hornsby, real-estate operator, is scheduled to reach the halfway mark today in Superior Judge Fricke's court, where Hornsby is being prosecuted on three counts of assault with a deadly weapon with intent to commit murder.

The charges were preferred following Hornsby's asserted gunplay October 20, 1929, in the apartment of his estranged wife, Denise, at 5523 Lexington avenue.

The State asserts Hornsby went to his wife's residence to effect a reconciliation, and, failing in this, ran amuck with a pistol, wounding his 19-year-old stepson Jean, and Henry Dickson, a neighbor who responded to Mrs. Hornsby's calls for aid. Hornsby also is said to have fired on Mrs. Nora Dickson, mother of Henry Dickson.

The three principal witnesses for the State already have told their versions of the shooting escapade to the jury and it was reported Friday Dep. Dist.-Atty. Menzies will rest his case today. Whether the State again will attempt to examine Mrs. Hornsby is a question that has not been decided. When first called to the stand last week, the defense blocked Mrs. Hornsby's testimony on the ground she is the wife of the defendant and therefore cannot testify against him.

Hornsby, according to documents found in his possession at the time of his arrest, met his wife in France during the World War. Among the documents was one purporting to be his last will and testament, in which he cut off his wife and stepson with bequests of $1 each, leaving the balance of his estate to his relatives.

It is expected the case will go to the jury about Wednesday.

Salary Boost Authorized for Club Manager

The salary of $150 a month received by Hubert Whitehead, manager of the Men's Club at 221 South Main street, has been increased to $200 monthly, effective next Thursday, on recommendation of Supt Hjelte to the Playground and Recreation Commission. Whitehead formerly was recreation director for the Department of Water and Power.

The commission discontinued the positions of bath attendant and swimming-pool cashier and created that of swimming-pool matron to take charge of girls' and women's dressing-rooms at the municipal pools at a salary of 50 cents an hour. Civil-service tests are to be held for the position. The matron of each pool will be in charge of service counters, record towels and bathing suits and act as cashier when required.

The commission created the position of permanent beach guard with intermittent employment as required, at 67½ cents an hour, instead of employing assistant directors for such work. The plan is to build up a list of guards for busy days at the beach.

The sum of $8336 has been appropriated by the commission for 250 dozen swimming suits and 500 dozen towels for the Venice bathhouse.

Horowitz Rites Will be Today

Funeral services will be conducted at Glasband & Groman mortuary, 901 West Washington street, at 1 p.m. today for Samuel Horowitz, attorney, who died unexpectedly Saturday at his home, 2001 Browning Boulevard, after an illness of two months. He was 33 years of age. Rabbi Edelson of Rodef Sholen Congregation will officiate at the ceremonies which will be under auspices of Ionic Lodge, No. 520, F. & A. M., of which Horowitz was a member. While on his deathbed he was installed as master of Ionic Lodge. Interment will be in Beth Israel Cemetery.

CROOMS TO PLEAD TODAY

Accused of forgery of a government compensation check, Willie P. Crooms, indicted on Friday by the Federal grand jury, will be arraigned today before United States District Judge James. He also will be allowed to enter his plea. The check was for a small amount.

ADVICE

by DR. FRANK McCOY

Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

PALENESS MAY NOT MEAN ANEMIA

There once was a time when any young girl who was both thin and pale was certain that she had anemia. But now we know that not all thin people are anemic and not all pale people are suffering from this disease. The day of taking pink pills for pale people is over. As a matter of fact, the type of anemia which used to be frequently found among young girls, called "green sickness," has nearly disappeared in America. Curiously enough, the best cure for green sickness is to eat plenty of green vegetables.

It is impossible to determine whether anemia is present or not by merely looking at the patient. The only way to tell is to examine some of the blood under a microscope. When blood is healthy it has over 5,000,000 red blood cells and about 7500 white blood cells per cubic millimeter, and the blood should have a definite amount of redness caused by the hemoglobin in the red blood corpuscles. The redness of the hemoglobin is caused by iron pigments. You can realize how important this hemoglobin is to the health when you understand that it carries the oxygen from the lungs to all parts of the body. When the percentage of hemoglobin falls below 90 the body cannot obtain enough oxygen.

A lot of people think that since hemoglobin is made from an iron compound, all that is necessary to increase the amount of hemoglobin is to eat more iron. As a matter of fact, foods which contain iron are very numerous and most of them are common foods found in an ordinary diet. In those who do not have enough hemoglobin it seems that something has happened to the body's ability to use the iron that is present in the food. Only about .002 of an ounce of iron is required by the body daily, and as iron is abundant in lettuce, spinach, orange juice, milk, bran flakes, eggs, dried apricots, prunes, beef, almonds, figs, dates, raisins and nearly all fruits and vegetables, you will see that the average diet contains a sufficient amount of this vauable mineral.

The body's ability to assimilate the iron in food can be greatly increased by a fruit fast accompanied by such health-building measures as fresh air, sun baths and exercise. If one follows this method a great improvement in both the number of red blood cells and the color of hemoglobin can be noticed. In fact, the various forms of anemia, including pernicious and secondary, usually yield in a spectacular manner to a simple common-sense form of treatment. Sometimes the rate of recovery is almost unbelievable. For example, with an orange juice fast it is often possible to see an immediate improvement in the red blood cells. It seems that the toxins which were responsible for the anemic condition are absorbed and eliminated, and as the blood becomes cleaner and healthier it is able to increase both in the number of red blood cells and the percentage of color. I have yet to see a case where this improvement did not take place.

In cases of secondary anemia, where there is a larger number of white blood cells than there should be, these are usually reduced to normal during the fast, and at the same time the red blood cells are increasing, thus bringing about a normal balance.

Chef Wyman's Recipes

Every Tuesday and Friday at 2 o'clock Mrs. A. L. Wyman will conduct a free class and demonstration of good cookery in the lecture room of the Southwest Building, 130 South Broadway.

BANANA FRITTERS

Place in a measuring cup, one tablespoonful of oil, and fill the cup with lukewarm water, pour this into a bowl, add the well-beaten yolk of one egg and beat in enough sifted flour, that has been sifted with half a teaspoonful of baking powder to make a soft smooth batter, add a few grains of salt, and add the stiffly beaten whites of the egg, peel six firm, ripe bananas, split in halves, and cut the halves in two, place in a bowl, and cover with two tablespoonfuls of sugar, and four tablespoonfuls of orange juice, let them stand one hour, drain, dip in the batter, and fry a nice brown, in deep hot shortening. Drain and sprinkle with powdered sugar.

SHRIMP AND POTATO SALAD

Take one cupful of shrimps, place them in a bowl of cold water, and allow them to stand for half an hour. Drain and break them in small pieces, add to the shrimp two cupfuls of cold boiled potatoes, cut in dice, three tablespoonfuls of capers, one small onion finely chopped, one finely chopped hard boiled egg, mix all together, make a dressing by beating into one cupful of cream, one-fourth of a teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of sugar, one teaspoonful of paprika, and three tablespoonfuls of Tarragon vinegar, serve on lettuce leaves. Garnish with ripe olives and radishes.

APPLE AMBER

To one pound of peeled and chopped apples, add one-third of a cupful of finely ground suet, one-fourth of a cupful of sugar, one-half a cupful of flour, and one cupful of bread crumbs, mix well, and add a teaspoonful of grated nutmeg, one teaspoonful of grated lemon rind, one-fourth of a cupful of lemon juice, and three well-beaten eggs, beat well, pour the mixture in a well-buttered mold, set on a rack in a pan of hot water, and boil for one and one-half hours. Serve hot with a lemon butter sauce.

OYSTER COCKTAIL

Remove the stem ends, seeds, and veins from the required number of bell peppers, cover with cold water, and let stand overnight in a cold place, drain and wipe dry, for six cocktails, mix two cupfuls of tomato ketchup with half a teaspoonful of salt, half a teaspoonful of paprika, two teaspoonfuls of Worcestershire sauce, a few drops of tobasco sauce, and two tablespoonfuls of Tarragon vinegar, fill the green pepper cups two-thirds full of well-drained California oysters, fill with the sauce, garnish with a slice of lemon, dusted with paprika, and serve at once on small plates covered with a cup of crisp lettuce.

Household Suggestions

Silks and Satins

Silken garments should be squeezed in the hands to remove dirt, using pure white soapsuds and lukewarm water. Never wash them on the board if you want them to last. They demand care in laundering.

Good for a Week

A sponge soaked in water and placed on the pot of the house plant will keep it fresh for a week while the owner is away from home. The plant will absorb all moisture necessary to keep it in good condition.

A Little Lavender

A few drops of oil of lavender in the bookcase will help greatly toward keeping the books free from mold. Leather bindings that have become moldy should be rubbed with a soft cloth dampened with ammonia and then wiped dry with a cloth or chamois.

Patch Upon Patch

If you will fasten a large safety pin on the outside of the patch bag and attach a small sample of everything that goes into the bag upon it, you will save yourself lots of time and exasperation in frantic searching. There seems to be nothing more loath to give up its contents than a patch bag.

Modes of the Moment

by Honore Booth

FASHION EXPERT OF HARPER'S BAZAAR

NEW YORK, Jan. 12. (Exclusive) As a utilitarian covering and warmth-providing garment, the evening wrap of today seldom fulfills its function. It is beautiful, fur-trimmed, decorative and brief.

There are, of course, occasional long wraps, but they may be said to be the exception that proves the rule. They are not the long wraps of yesteryear. Their cutting suggests the line of the gown they will be worn with, often trailing in the back or on the sides.

No Longer Independent

An interesting change is that the evening wrap has lost its independence. It may only match the slippers worn far below its short little hem, but it must relate to some part or all of the costume.

If it is not the same color as the dress beneath it, it should contrast to form a recognized color scheme of the season. This is a subtle ensemble idea. For example, a scarlet gown with an ermine wrap, a white gown with a scarlet wrap (white fox trimmed,) a wrap to match the flowers appliqued on the long skirt of an evening gown.

At the Play

A practical hint given me by one who knows about these things, is that nothing is quite so good for the theater in the evening as a cape. While other women are dragging themselves out of intricate sleeves and struggling like snared birds, you, in your cape, simply slip your arms free and are ahead of the whole game.

And nothing is smarter than a brief cape, say in velveteen, for warmer weather. It may be circular and very short, just to the waist, in fact, hip, or two thirds length.

White Fur in the Ascendency

White fur collars are like so many narcissi in spring. They are thick where smart clothes are to be seen. At the opening night of the opera there were rows of them over the back of seats, and they show no sign of diminishing. The fur, often fox, is set on the neck of the wrap to form a frame for the wearer's face.

Train Idea in Wraps

Whatever the length of the evening wrap, it is more likely than not to have a line which dips low in the back. A few have long points on the sides and some have hanging separate panels, making a compromise between the long and short wrap.

Lame, Velvet and Velveteen

Lames manage to be lovelier than ever before, and they are extremely smart for the very formal occasion. Velvets and velveteens are important, the latter especially so for southern wear.

When the Sandman Comes

by THORNTON W. BURGESS

THE BROKEN LIMB

'Tis the ones who succeed, and they only, who say
You will find with a will there is always a way.
—Old Mother Nature.

There is very little that Chatterer the Red Squirrel misses. Those bright eyes of his take note of everything. I know of no sharper eyes, unless possibly the eyes of Sammy Jay are sharper. So you may be sure that Chatterer notices every little thing. It happened that there had been a severe windstorm. All through the Green Forest twigs and small branches had been broken from the trees. The same thing had happened to some of the trees around Farmer Brown's house. You see, at the time of the wind there had been ice on the trees and this had made the twigs and limbs very brittle.

Now, over near the corn-crib was a maple tree. Some of the branches spread partly over the roof of the corn-crib, but they were high above it. During this windstorm one of these branches broke. It didn't break off clean. The bark and some long fibers held it from breaking off wholly. Thus it hung down and the tip of it as it hung this way was just a few feet above the roof of the corn-crib.

Chatterer had gone over early one morning to see if he could find any grains of corn around the corn-crib. Sometimes Farmer Brown's Boy would spill a few grains. Chatterer never failed to look up to see if by any chance that clothes-line had been put back from the top of the clothes-post to a corner of the corn-crib. Always he had a feeling of disappointment when he discovered that it hadn't been. Sometimes he would even climb up to the top of the clothes-post. On this particular morning Chatterer found no corn. He was just about to go back home when he discovered Black Pussy the Cat, and at the same time Black Pussy discovered him. The nearest place of safety was that tree with the broken limb. Chatterer scampered up this and from a comfortable seat in a crotch high up he looked down and scolded Black Pussy. Black Pussy didn't climb the tree. She knew from bitter experience that she couldn't get around in a tree as Chatterer could, so it would be useless to climb after him. Having nothing else to do, however, she sat down at the foot of the tree and glared up at Chatterer. She would keep him up there for a while, anyway.

After a while Chatterer grew tired of scolding Black Pussy.

After a while Chatterer grew tired of scolding Black Pussy. It is not Chatterer's nature to sit still very long at a time. He began to explore the tree. He climbed all over it. He went 'way up to the top. He went 'way out on the twigs of some of the big branches. He even sampled a winter bud or two. So it was that presently he discovered that broken limb. He didn't pay much attention to it at first. It didn't interest him particularly. And then he just happened to notice that that limb hung down over the corn-crib.

For a few moments Chatterer sat very still. There was an intent look in his bright eyes. Once or twice he scratched his nose thoughtfully. Now and then he jerked his tail slightly. All the time he was studying that broken branch. Pinally he shifted his position. He went out where he could look at it from a different direction. He leaned over and looked down on the roof of the corn-crib. He went back and examined the place where the broken limb was still attached to the tree. His eyes snapped with satisfaction when he saw that it would take considerable to break that limb wholly off. His weight on it wouldn't amount to anything. Carefully he crept down until he was 'way to the tip of that branch. Then he looked down on the roof of the corn-crib.

"I can do it," said Chatterer triumphantly. "I can do it."

Your Baby and Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Mrs. Eldred will be glad to answer all questions pertaining to babies and children. A stamped and self-addressed envelope, forwarded to this office will bring a personal reply.

This department offers leaflets on weaning and feeding the child from 6 weeks to 6 years, prenatal care and diet for the nursing mother, constipation, eczema, outfits for the new baby, sleeping, walking, teething, thumb sucking, ammoniacal urine, bed wetting, training in cleanly habits, periods of nursing, cod liver oil, orange juice, hives, worms, vomiting, refractory children, prune juice, lime water, rupture, styes and boils and cradle cap. Before asking a personal question about one of these subjects, it is better to send a self-addressed stamped envelope for the leaflet you need. If your particular problem is not covered in the above list, Mrs. Eldred will be glad to give you a personal reply.

GIVE ACTIVE CHILD AS MUCH FREEDOM AS POSSIBLE

Sometimes with all the right ideas on the subject of child care and discipline, and the best intentions in the world of keeping her temper and teaching the child to live in this world that is so fascinating to him, the mother bumps up against the snag of how she can live in comfort with an active, curious and, to her, mischievous child. The child who is "into everything" tests the patience of a saint and few of us belong in that category.

Mrs. S. P. has a solution which is helpful and usable. She says: "May I tell you how I have solved the problem of an extremely active two-year-old? I had a sand box with a four-foot chicken-wire inclosure, but that failed to hold her. She climbed out of it easily. That complicated my problem as it compelled me to keep her in the house much more than she should have been.

"I have only four rooms and with grandmother in one bedroom I had no place but the living-room for baby to play in. There were entirely too many things for her to get into, even though I had cleared away as many as possible. It was nothing unusual for me to find her on top of the mantle. I tried to keep chairs away but unfortunately they were movable, so that didn't help much.

"I was becoming naggy and nervous. A steady diet of youngster up on the mantel, into the bookcase or upon the radio was proving upsetting. Here is my remedy:

Unrestricted Freedom Proves Happy Solution

"I went into the bedroom and stripped the dresser (using one drawer for my toilet articles,) and I moved out everything destructible. There are a bed, dresser and crib left. I moved in all her toys and there she is turned loose. The mirror is usually a mass of fingerprints and toys are all over the floor, but we are all happier. My bedroom set is a painted one. Now I realize how fortunate that it wasn't the walnut or mahogany one I so desired. When baby is older this can be repainted and be none the worse."

Those mothers who have written me bemoaning the fact that baby uses the davenport as a race course, likes to sit on top of the gas stove and use all the furniture as ladders, might borrow this solution. Also it is well to provide the child of this age with things upon which to climb and hang so that the furniture may be spared. There are ladders similar to those used in nursery schools, or doorway "gyms" which can be used even in small homes. It is hard for anxious young housewives to view calmly the devastation of which active children are capable. Footprints on delicately colored coverings and saggy springs on stuffed furniture are hard to bear, but we replace furniture about every ten years with good care, and should view with a philosophic eye the ordinary usage to which children put furniture. After all, furniture should never be valued above the children.

Rum Repeater Gets Long Term

One of the heaviest jail sentences recently imposed on liquor charges was meted out by Municipal Judge Curtis to Frank Lopez, alias Jose Martinez, when he pleaded guilty to selling a pint of liquor to a police operative for $1 and also confessed to the ownership of twenty pints of moonshine found by Police Officers Frey and Hamrick concealed behind a loose board in the bathroom wall at 1233½ Kearney street.

Following his plea of guilty to sale and possession of the liquor, Detective Lieutenant Caldwell reported that Lopez had three prior convictions for selling liquor and four priors for possession. Judge Curtis imposed a fine of $2000 and a fifteen months' jail sentence.

Two to Speak at Luncheon

The Advertising Club will have a double-header tomorrow noon during the luncheon meeting in the Biltmore. The first speaker will take "The Biggest Factor in Industrial Relations in 1930" as his subject. He is Edwin D. White of the Equitable Assurance Society of the United States.

The second speaker will be Dr. Franklin Martin of Chicago, director-general of the American College of Surgeons, in a brief address on "Industrial Profits Through Hospitalization."

Alvin Kingsbacher, vice-chairman of the club's program committee, will preside.

Suit Over Franchise Continues

Gas Company Will Offer More Letters in Defense Against City's Charges

More letters and correspondence will be introduced today by the Los Angeles Gas and Electric Corporation when the trial of the city's injunction suit against the company is resumed before Judge Collier to prove there were working agreements between the corporation and the city since the former's franchise expired in 1916. The city is seeking to enjoin the company from furnishing power, other than light, to Los Angeles consumers, on the theory the company's franchise expired and was never renewed.

The light company in its defense of the action asserts that ever since the franchise expired the company has gone ahead making improvements costing millions of dollars; that power was furnished to various city departments and that the company went ahead operating with the city's full knowledge that its franchise had expired. They hold that as a result of this the city is now estopped from bringing any court action.

The suit has been divided into two phases for trial. One of them is the injunction phase and the other is for damages, that is a request for money for rental for use of the city's streets for power equipment. Should the injunction be granted the city would ask that the company be compelled to pay 2 per cent of its gross earnings for a period of four years. It is only the injunction feature of the action that is on trial now.

Quarantine Oversight Expensive

Fine of $150 Imposed for Failure to Heed Warning of Diphtheria Case

A quarantine sign means just what it says, Reo R. Hunsaker of 1218 Bonnie Beach street, discovered in Municipal Court. The discovery cost Hunsaker $150, imposed as a fine when he pleaded guilty to a charge of violating quarantine.

R. C. Peterson, city health inspector, reported that he observed Hunsaker twice enter and leave a house at 333 East One Hundred and Third street last Tuesday. The house was quarantined for diphtheria, Peterson declared. On the second occasion, after a chase of more than a mile along San Pedro street at a rate of sixty miles an hour, he succeeded in overhauling Hunsaker's automobile, forcing it to the curb.

Peterson placed Hunsaker under arrest, but not before the man had struck him in the eye, he told the court.

Zoologist Seeks Park Frog Eggs

Frog eggs are being sought by Bennet M. Allen, professor of zoology in the University of Southern California, he says, in a communication to the Municipal Board of Park Commissioners. Prof. Allen asks permission of the commission to collect the frog eggs from a pond in Fern Dell Park, Griffith Park, explaining that he seeks to experiment on the influence of glands upon growth.

LEGION FIESTA SLATED

A father-and-son meeting is scheduled for next Thursday by Los Angeles Post, No. 8, American Legion, at the Woodrow Wilson Hall, 1816 South Figueroa street, from 7:45 to 9:30 p.m. The meeting has been specially arranged for the benefit of boys and their fathers, mothers and friends.

to pass several weeks in the French capital, staying at the Chateau Frontenac.

Mrs. Edith Jayne was among those entertaining at the Savoy restaurant in London last week.

H. E. Albiez of Los Angeles and G. Nodge of Hollywood, are traveling in Egypt this winter. Arriving recently in Cairo, they registered at Shepherd's Hotel.

This year's drought following the hurricanes of last fall has caused serious financial troubles for sugar-plantation owners in Antigua.

Broken Home to be Mended

While Mrs. Zelda Brown is in the County Hospital, trying to cure a drug habit, her husband, Charles R. Brown, will have an opportunity to prepare for their future home, it was stated yesterday by Wallace W. Davis, their attorney, after a conference the day before with United States District Judge James.

Mrs. Brown pleaded guilty to the sale of narcotics and was sentenced to six months in jail, to be spent in the hospital. Her husband later pleaded guilty to possession of narcotics and was sentenced to fifteen months in prison, the sentence being suspended for three years. Brown was permitted to leave for the east in order to build up his financial affairs.

Pioneer Banker and Grocer of Los Angeles Dies

With the death of Edward W. Grannis, former president of the Citizens' Bank and of the Grocers' Association, Los Angeles, has lost another pioneer. Born in Gowanda, N. Y., in 1866, he came to this city in 1885, when the population was less than 30,000, and established a grocery business on West Washington street. He retired in 1913 to enter the real estate business.

Besides his widow, Mrs. Nellie I. T. Grannis, Mr. Grannis leaves two children, Edward W. Grannis, Jr., of Los Angeles, and Mrs. Virginia Morrison of Fresno.

Fraternity to Hold First of Banquet Series

Alpha Beta Phi, professional accounting fraternity at Southwestern University, will inaugurate the first of a series of business banquets tomorrow evening at Elks' Temple.

Two business leaders will speak. O. J. Pickering, asistant chief deputy of the Internal Revenue Department, will talk on the new income tax regulations, while A. B. Lerner of the State Corporation Commissioner's office will deal on the subject of accounting and its connection with the Corporation Commission.

Bernard Rose, dean of the school of commerce, and sponsor of the fraternity, will act as toastmaster.

Riley to Open Headquarters in City Today

Heralding the opening of his campaign in the Southland State Controller Ray L. Riley, Republican candidate for Governor, today will establish permanent headquarters in Los Angeles. Twelve hundred feet of floor space has been leased in the Pershing Square Building, Fifth and Hill streets, and this morning a corps of clerks will start work there.

From this office Riley's managers will direct activities of the campaign in the ten southern counties. The candidate, after an inspection of the quarters, this morning will leave for Long Beach where at noon he will address the Exchange Club.

The first woman's organization committed to the support of the controller was formed at Long Beach yesterday with Mrs. Ruby Barlow as president.

Island Party Hawaii Bound

Somewhat akin to the motorman who took a street-car ride on his day off are five women from Prince Edward Island who this week-end sailed from the local harbor for a vacation in the Hawaiian Islands.

So that they will feel at home on their holiday, the quintet made the long trip by water down the Atlantic Coast to Boston, across the country to Los Angeles and now are bound halfway across the Pacific to Hawaii where, secure again on an island, they will rest and play.

The party is composed of Mrs. L. A. Wright, Mrs. Ira J. Yeo and Misses Bertha Pennell, F. I. Horne and L. A. Horne.

...L AIDS ...GE SHOW

...come to Citrus ...osts Interest

...cal Effect Just ..." Manager Says

Colorful Exhibition Anticipated as Result

SAN BERNARDINO, Jan. 12.—With the citrus industry of California smiling gayly because of the recent heavy rain that covered the State, interest in the Twentieth National Orange Show, which will open here February 13, has taken a decided boom, according to Manager R. H. Mack, with exhibitors from all parts of the State making reservations for their choicest fruits, and with the sale of tickets for the show already nearing the 100,000 mark.

"The psychological effect which the rain during the past week has had on the growers of the State is simply amazing," stated Manager Mack, who further predicts that all the space in the orange show home will be sold out at least three weeks before the twentieth show opens.

The orange show officials report that the general optimism which the weather man has injected into the citrus industry during the past week promises to be no small factor in making the show this year more colorful than ever before. "It has even gone so far as to make it seem wise for us to plan for a crowd 25 per cent larger than the 278,000 locals and visitors from other States who attended the show last year," said Manager Mack. "Not only that, but it has been a factor in bringing a number of new features to the show this year."

UNIQUE FEATURE ADDED

One of the unique features that will be added to the show this year, this official states, which should spread the fame of the California orange to every State in the nation, is in connection with the prize fruit that will be entered in the world's champion orange-grower contest.

"Judging in the championship contest will be the main feature of the show on its opening day, February 13," states Manager Mack. "That night Gov. Young, who already will have officiated at the opening of the show, will present the medal to the grower who will be crowned as the world's champion orange grower for the coming year, among clicking cameras and blinding flashlights that will herald the event to the world in talking pictures and pictorial news stories.

"It is planned that every governor in the United States will receive a box of California's most golden oranges."

COMPETITION TO BE LIVELY

Earnest Mueller, another Etiwanda grower, who has a wide reputation for growing excellent fruit, now holds the diamond-studded medal for the best lemons that were exhibited last year. All of these growers and scores of others are in the race again, according to the show officials, which promises to make the competition more lively in all events than ever before.

In all, there will be about three-score classes of premiums for the orange show this year, Manager Mack states, each class having three prizes to the class. A prize of $500 will be awarded for the best feature display embracing a mechanical feature. And as was the case last year, the grand sweepstakes prize for oranges will be $300 cash. From these desirable heights, the prizes will range downward to $5, with certificates and trophies in all classes in addition to the cash awards, officials announce. At least 1000 growers will enter products in the show this year, it is estimated.

Several new departments have been added to the show this year with the cooking department, which has been in demand for a long time, among the most important, according to Manager Mack.

ANOTHER PIONEER DIES

LANCASTER, Jan. 12.—Funeral services were held for John C. Gibler, 78 years of age, who died on the ranch of his son, M. D. Gibler, at Redmand. Gibler was one of the early pioneers of the Middle West. He leaves three sons and a daughter.

SCIENCE IN DETECTIVE'S ROLE AGAIN

Microscope and Enlarging Camera Implicate Truck Driver in Postoffice Theft

ORANGE, Jan. 12.—If Edward McAdoo, young local truck driver, eventually finds the theft of a registered mail sack from the Orange postoffice pinned on him, he still can console himself with the thought that it required something more than ordinary detective ability to find him out.

McAdoo, arrested by Federal postal inspectors, was beyond the reach of ordinary police methods. But the twin eyes of criminal detection, the microscope and enlarging camera, are asserted to have seen through the theft and picked out a bit of raveling on the blade of McAdoo's pocket knife.

This, the inspectors declare, matches the raveling of the Mission mail sack, which had been ripped open by a keen blade before it was found, ransacked, in a used-car lot at Orange.

So science pointed the finger of suspicion at McAdoo and he was formally charged with the crime.

Ordinary police methods, however, have helped to some extent in building a chain of asserted circumstantial evidence around McAdoo, who was an employee of the G. M. Bay Transfer Company.

In investigating the disappearance of the mail sack from a truck at the Santa Fe station here, the officers were said to have learned that McAdoo had driven a truck to his home on the night of the theft, contrary to usual custom.

McAdoo explained that he had carried groceries home in his truck, but when officers questioned his wife they were told, they say, that she had brought home the groceries herself and McAdoo had, so far as she knew, brought nothing, according to officers.

May Have to Buy Roadway Rights to Tujunga Dam

NORTH HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 12. The county may be asked to buy a route to the Big Tujunga Dam site. Following a conference between a San Fernando Valley-wide committee and Supervisor Wright, it is understood now that the needed right of way to the site will be either leased for $15,000 or purchased. Definite action will be taken when the Board of Supervisors meets early this week.

Dr. Homer Hanson, who is the owner of the tract in the bottom of the canyon just below the dam, has already offered use of the land at a stated stipulation.

The right of way is needed to maintain a road to carry materials to the site when work on the huge dam begins.

Ventura Given Forest Receipts

VENTURA, Jan. 12.—A check for $1248.29, Ventura county's share of the $356,981.10 granted to California by the United States Forestry Department has been received by Harry Van De Linder, County Treasurer.

The sum granted to the State represents 25 per cent of the United States government's receipts from Federal forest lands in California during the year ending June 30, 1929.

The receipts represent money paid the government for timber and grazing fees.

RAINS CAUSE LAYING OFF OF FIRE RANGERS

NEWHALL, Jan. 12.—All the outside force of the Forestry Department has been laid off following the good soaking of the brushland by rain. Dispatcher Kennedy and Deputy Warden Daries will remain in charge and there will probably be a driver for the fire truck. All the National Forest guards have been laid off including the lookout on Oat Mountain, who during the recent dry period had his hands full in holding down his job. Ranger Ellis E. T. McClure and George Armstrong make up the winter force in charge of Angeles Forest.

FIRST WOMAN PUT ON CHAMBER BOARD

Mrs. Walter F. Malone

MONTEBELLO, January 12.—Mrs. Walter F. Malone is the first woman to be elected to the directorate of the local Chamber of Commerce and at the organization meeting was voted first vice-president.

Until two years ago women were not allowed memberships in the organization. At that time the business and professional women of the city petitioned the officers of the chamber to have the rules amended. After careful study of the constitution and by-laws it was found that only an unwritten law excluded women. So, since that time, many business and professional members of the sex have become affiliated with the chamber.

Before election a very active campaign was launched to put Mrs. Malone on the directorate, sponsored by the retiring president, W. F. Johnson. When questioned about the matter he said he felt that the women are entitled to at least one representative. Mrs. Malone is considered well qualified to serve the chamber as first vice-president as she has always been an active worker in civic affairs and at present is president of the Montebello Woman's Club.

Other officers elected are: N. C. Banks, president; I. W. Whaley, second vice-president; H. P. Moritz, treasurer, and Zola V. Cotton, secretary. The new officers will be inaugurated formally into office at the chamber's annual banquet Monday evening, when the gavel is turned over by F. W. Johnson, retiring president.

Alta Loma Club Elects Officers

ALTA LOMA, Jan. 12.—Alta Loma Community Club will have as its president for the new year Francis S. Wagner, who was elected at the annual dinner meeting at the club rooms in Lomita Drive. He will succeed E. M. Barkow. Other officers are Lester Bennett, vice-president, and Herbert T. Blake, secretary-treasurer.

The Community Club started five years ago as a volunteer fire department organization, but expanded to take in others of the community, and now has a membership of fifty-eight. Vincent Roth, County Auditor, addressed the group.

EDISON ANNOUNCES NEW VALLEY PLANS

NORTH HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 12. The Southern California Edison Company expects to spend $184,600 in the San Fernando Valley area in 1930, it is announced here today by Ray Whitson, district manager. In addition to this total, the pay roll of the company will be about $96,000 for the year, Whitson says. Most of the improvements will be in the extension of cables, the placing of new cables, and a general development of lines, to keep up with the gradual increase of homes in the valley section.

POLICE ASKED TO LOAN STILL

Phone Request Causes Chief to Plan Arrest, But It Was for a Play

UPLAND, Jan. 12.—"Please Mr. Chief, have you got a nice modern still I could borrow? I only want it for a week or so, and promise I will bring it back in good shape."

J. F. Sawyer, Chief of the local police department scented something new in the bootlegging industry when this request came to him via telephone. Thinking that anybody gullible enough to call up the Chief of Police to borrow a still might be gullible enough to call at the police station, Chief Sawyer invited the inquisitor to call.

It then developed that the person wanting the still only wanted to play at bootlegging. A group of footlight enthusiasts was practicing for a play in which a still was needed. So the director referred one of the players to the Chief.

BOY'S DEATH INVESTIGATED

Autopsy Ordered for Today on Body of Five-Year-Old Kenneth Rundle, Asserted Narcotics Victim

PASADENA, Jan. 12.—Information indicating that 5-year-old Kenneth Rundle may have died a victim of narcotics caused Daniel Beecher, chief of the District Attorney's trial department, to order that an autopsy be performed tomorrow morning at the C. P. Lamb Mortuary, 415 East Orange Grove avenue. Cremation services were halted yesterday, two hours before they were scheduled to have been held.

Dr. R. E. Ramsay, who attended the boy in his last illness, asserted today that pneumonia caused the child's death, and that no morphine was administered. The physician explained that the boy was subnormal and that such persons tend to have less resistance to disease. Dr. Ramsay, one of the best-known physicians in this city, declared that he had received no official explanation of the District Attorney's act in halting the cremation service, and that he knew of no unusual circumstances in the case.

Young Rundle, said to have been the son of Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Rundle of Camarillo, was attending a local school for subnormal children when taken ill. He died last Wednesday and the death certificate named pneumonia as the cause of death.

The services were halted when W. H. Holland, chief of the county probation department, reported he had received information that led him to believe the child may have been drugged.

Officials of the school branded this information as an idle rumor, and asserted the results of the autopsy tomorrow would bear out their conviction that the case did not warrant investigation.

C. P. Lamb, head of the Lamb Mortuary, said he possessed no information bearing on the case.

Asserted Pair of Bandits Both Held to Answer

HUNTINGTON PARK, Jan. 12.—Francis Fraetis, arrested on suspicion of burglary on two counts, and also two charges of robbery, and Lee Skaggs, arrested on one charge of robbery, were given preliminary hearings Saturday before Judge Edward H. Miller. Both were held to answer to Superior Court. Fraetis's aggregate bail being $10,500, and Skaggs's bail being $5000.

Both are charged with holding up Frank Hale, attendant at the J. G. Sedgwick gasoline station on New Year's Eve, obtaining $17. They were arrested a few hours later by local officers. Fraetis made two asserted written confessions, in the latter mentioning Skaggs. Skaggs also made an asserted written confession.

Fraetis is also charged with holding up Mrs. Gwendolyn Wells, in charge of the Halladay Grocery Store here on the evening of October 28, taking about $20; also of robbing the home of C. W. Losey in South Gate, December 13, taking two pillows, and the home of E. H. Blankenship, in South Gate, December 7, taking a wrist watch and an alarm clock.

Both young men had been roommates in an apartment-house in this city.

Woman Pioneer Goes to Reward

SAN BERNARDINO, Jan. 12.—Mrs. Fannie Okeson Stiles, the wife of Dr. W. H. Stiles, one of this city's pioneer residents, and herself widely known through Southern California was interred here yesterday. She had been ill for two months and died at the family home on Friday.

Born in Lexington, Ill., sixty-seven years ago, Mrs. Stiles lived there until a few years after her marriage to Dr. Stiles, who began his medical practice in that city. They moved to this city about forty-three years ago.

Mrs. Stiles was one of the charter members organizing the San Bernardino Woman's Club, and was a past president. She was active in the Presbyterian Church, of which she was a life-long member, and for fifteen years served as treasurer of the Riverside-San Bernardino Presbytery.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Stiles leaves a daughter, Miss Pauline Stiles, widely known writer, who is the authoress of "The Crooked Stick" and "Cloud by Day," who lives here, and one sister, Mrs. A. S. Esbaugh of Kankakee, Ill. A sister-in-law, Mrs. Luther Stiles of Long Beach, is at the family home now.

Funeral services for Mrs. Stiles were conducted from the residence. Rev. Otis D. Ironmonger, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, officiated.

ALL PHONE NUMBERS IN TOWN TO CHANGE

OWENSMOUTH, Jan. 12.—The new telephone central office here has been completed on Remmet avenue, and work has been started on the installation of the dial equipment, it is stated today by C. C. Campbell, manager for the Pacific Telephone Company in San Fernando Valley. The new equipment will cost about $25,000. When all work is completed, the new exchange will represent an investment of $50,000. All the present telephone numbers in the Owensmouth section are to be changed for the new numbers of the dial system. They will appear in the new phone directory to be issued in March.

TAX EXPERT TO TALK TO WOMEN

RESEDA, Jan. 12.—The Reseda Woman's Club will hold its reciprocity day program on the 14th inst. at Alton Hall, with James W. Mussatti, editor of the Tax Digest, official paper of the California Taxpayers' Association, as principal speaker. Scores of members of San Fernando Valley women's clubs are expected to attend the meeting.

C. L. Wheatland Made Defendant in Love Action

SANTA ANA, Jan. 11.—C. L. Wheatland, former head of the Balboa Palisades Club, who later figured in extensive litigation with the club over building contracts, was named in the role of love pirate as M. G. Phipps, former Newton (Iowa) man, has filed a divorce suit in Superior Court against his wife, Katherine Phipps of Whittier, with Wheatland as asserted corespondent.

Phipps asserts his wife is living with Wheatland at 1321 California avenue, Whittier. In addition to his charge of infidelity, Phipps also complains of desertion.

Mr. and Mrs. Phipps were married at Newton in 1921 and have a son, La Verne, 8 years of age, who figures in the court proceedings as the center of a fight for custody. Phipps wants possession of the boy, who is living with Mrs. Phipps, and charges in his court complaint, that unless a temporary custody order is issued at once, there is danger that Mrs. Phipps will remove the boy beyond jurisdiction of the court.

Phipps stated that he came from Iowa to California two years ago to try to locate his wife and son and that he found them at Whittier. Mrs. Phipps left there and he did not find her again until a month ago, this time at the California-street address.

A residence at 925 French street, this city, was named in the complaint as having been occupied at one time by Mrs. Phipps and Wheatland, according to Phipps.

Attorneys Nelson and Burns represent the plaintiff.

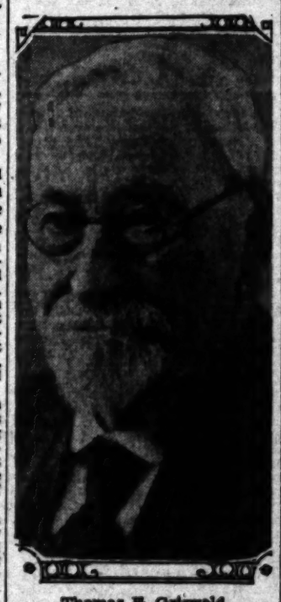
FLOODS OF MUD IN LAGUNA CARTED OFF

LAGUNA BEACH, Jan. 12.—Merchants and employees in the downtown district on Florence avenue had a busy time cleaning away eight inches of mud from the sidewalks and streets following the rainfall of 3.30 inches during the storm of the past few days. On several of the streets from one to six inches of mud and water accumulated. The service of all available trucks in the community was needed to carry the mud from the streets. Water rushed down Temple Hills, left barren last summer by brush and grass fires. Storm drains were inadequate to carry off the surplus water. Oldtimers remarked that they had never before witnessed such a deposit of earth on their streets.

NAMED FIRE CAPTAIN

RESEDA, Jan. 12.—E. L. Parker has been appointed captain of the Reseda Fire Department, the volunteer crew of which is supervised by the Los Angeles department. Parker succeeds W. L. Fletcher, who has resigned. A chemical apparatus wagon is part of the equipment here.

TRIBUTE PAID TO MASONIC PATRIARCH



Thomas F. Griswold

COVINA, Jan. 12.—Members of the Masonic fraternity in the Upper San Gabriel Valley paid tribute last night to Thomas F. Griswold in a ceremony during which he received the fifty-year gold button conferred upon veteran members of the order by the California Grand Lodge. The emblem was presented by J. L. Matthews, Past Master of Covina lodge, assisted by Past Masters Sidney H. Ashton and Malcolm J. McCarthy.

Griswold will be 92 years of age in March and has been a Mason fifty-nine years. He was made a Mason in Necedah, Wis., in June, 1870, and nine years later moved to California. He has been Master of Covina lodge three times, and is now Treasurer, and Past Commander of Covina Commandery, Knights Templer, and Past High Priest of Azusa Chapter, R.A.M.

Other features of last night's ceremonies were installation of officers of the lodge and the local commandery. Installing officers were Past Master W. J. Evans and Dr. C. W. Searcy. Officers inducted were: Charles F. Hasheider, Master; I. Worth Everett, Senior Warden; Earl P. Davis, Junior Warden; Thomas F. Griswold, Treasurer; Malcolm J. McCarthy, Secretary; W. P. Nye, Chaplain; J. D. Reed, Marshal; Robert W. Estep, Senior Deacon; Hal Cook, Junior Deacon; Eugene S. Christensen, Senior Steward; John F. Brackett, Junior Steward, and Samuel Lucas, Tyler.

Commandery officers were installed by Rowland Hudson of Puente, inspector for this Masonic district, and George Stone of Pasadena. The new staff consists of: James A. Stewart, Commander; Thomas Compton, Generalissimo; Peyton E. Calvert, Captain-General; Elmer G. Hotchkiss, Senior Warden; Robert M. Dodsworth, Junior Warden; Thomas F. Griswold, Treasurer; William Hoogendyk, Recorder; Thomas E. Foster, Prelate; Clark P. Malcho, Standard-bearer; Orville L. Strickland, Sword-bearer; Charles A. Ryan, Warder; Joseph C. Crickmore, Sentinel; Morris M. Morgan, First Guard; A. M. Glines, Second Guard, and Sidney H. Ashton, Third Guard.

Federal Judge From Hawaiian Islands Retires

SAN DIEGO, Jan. 12.—After thirty-three years of continuous service in Hawaii, which included more than twenty years as a member of the Hawaiian judiciary, former Federal Judge John Debolt has selected this city as the place in which he will spend "the contemplative years."

At the Hotel Clark, where he is living, he said that he had retired from public life and planned to make his home here. Until late last year, when he sailed for Los Angeles, he had not left the islands since 1896.

His judicial record there started in 1902, when he was appointed as the first judge of the first Circuit Court. In 1911 he began a three-year term on the Supreme Court bench, which he left to take up private practice. Another term on Circuit Court began in 1918 and continued until 1923, when he became United States District Judge. He retired from that bench into private life in 1928.

While on the Federal bench Judge Debolt made an extensive study of citizenship laws, and is the author of "Naturalization of Aliens and Their Duties as Citizens."

Another Delay in Building of Beach Library

REDONDO BEACH, Jan. 12.—A possible new delay in the proceedings on this city's proposed $50,000 Library Building, for which bids have already been asked, has been encountered in a petition signed by 936 property owners asking a special election to redetermine the library site.

The petition, which has been certified as sufficient by City Clerk C. C. Mangold, takes exception to the plan of building the library in the City Park site selected by popular vote at the time of the bond issue three years ago.

The delay marks the second which has confronted the library board, the first being due to the annexation contest affecting the validity of the bonds.

LEUSCHEN EXPANSION ANNOUNCED

Redlands Fruit Enterprise Acquiries Packing-House at Highland

REDLANDS, Jan. 12.—Increased demand for navels under the brands of the Peppers Fruit Company has resulted in that organization expanding during the last week to include the Fred Leuschen packing-house at Highland. The new packing plant, constructed only last year and considered one of the most up-to-date in the State, has been leased to the Peppers interests and fifty-five cars of fruit have been packed already under the Peppers brands.

Leuschen is to be associated with T. H. Peppers in operating the Highland plant. J. G. Chapman, district manager for the Peppers Fruit Company in Redlands for several years, is also to have supervision. All fruit of the Leuschen interests will be packed in the Highland house and go out under the Peppers banner. Red Mule brand is the extra fancy, Sweetest-Yet the fancy and several choice varieties are under various labels.

When the Leuschen packing-house was constructed last year it was considered the best in the State for the purpose. All the latest mechanical devices for receiving and handling, stocking and packing of citrus fruits have been installed. It has a capacity of eight cars in eight hours.

The Peppers Fruit Company expects a good pack this season in the Redlands house, according to Chapman. It is packing all the fruit for the Western Fruit Growers and several other growers. The season's output from the local house will probably total between 250 and 300 cars, Chapman said. Fruit in both the local and the Highland houses is packed by the Betz Packing Company, considered generally as assurance of one of the best packs in California.

Year in Jail and $1500 Fine Given for Liquor Sale

VENTURA, Jan. 12.—Edward (Frenchy) Du Quette of this city, today has been sentenced in the Justice Court by Judge Malvern Dimmick to spend one year in the County Jail on two charges of sale of liquor, and given the choice between paying a total of $1500 in fines or serving 500 additional days in jail on three other similar counts.

Du Quette was arrested in December, last, by deputy sheriffs on charges of selling intoxicants on five different occasions to "stool pigeons."

On each of two of these charges Du Quette was given six months' jail sentences. On each of the other three, a fine of $500 or 500 days in jail was meted out to him. All five cases had been consolidated, so if Du Quette does not pay any of the $1500 fines on the last three counts, he will serve 500 days additional to the year in jail.

Du Quette had pleaded not guilty on all five counts and demanded a jury trial. He was found guilty by a jury.

Girl's Eyebrows Singed as Well as Dyed Auburn

PASADENA, Jan. 12.—Because she "just had to have" brown eyebrows and eyelashes to match her curly auburn hair, Gertrude Everett, pretty Pasadena Junior College co-ed, was a patient in the Pasadena Emergency Hospital today.

Miss Everett was satisfied with her brown eyes and Titian hair, but she didn't like the "jarring note" caused by her golden eyebrows and eyelashes, so she dyed them.

The preparation not only dyed the offending hirsute appendages, but severely burned the owner about the eyes and forehead.

She has not decided whether to try out a new kind of dye when she recovers.

REALTY BOARD ELECTS

BELL, Jan. 12.—Dean Kirk, prominent real estate dealer of this city, has been elected president of the local Realty Board for the present year. F. R. Egee has been chosen vice-president; Charles A. Fischer, secretary-treasurer, and A. L. Murphy, State director. The board directors selected are Dean Kirk, F. R. Egee, Charles Fischer, Otto C. Beck and A. B. Shaub.

RADIO FANS, "LISTEN IN!"

Due to Passage of Cycle of Sun Spots, Reception on Your Set Should be Better, Authority Says

PASADENA, Jan. 12.—Due to the passage of a cycle of unusually prevalent sun spots, radio reception should be greatly improved during the next five years, according to Dr. Harlan T. Stetson, director of the Perkins Observatory at Ohio Wesleyan University, who is in this city to confer with Mt. Wilson observatory astronomers. Dr. Stetson and Dr. G. W. Pickard of Boston, recently completed researches to determine the effect of sun spots upon radio reception.

"Contrary to popular impression," asserted Dr. Stetson, today, "radio reception may be as good in the summer as in the winter, the occurrence of sun spots being much more important than any seasonal effect."

Asked to explain the connection between sun spots and radio reception, the authority declared his belief that sun spots act as powerful magnetized fields which direct the electrons emitted from the sun toward the earth in greater numbers than under normal conditions.

"This increasing bombardment of the earth's atmosphere ionizes the molecules of our atmosphere and appreciably lowers the so-called Kenelley-Heaviside layer, which is recognized by engineers as a cause of turning back radio waves toward the earth."

Dr. Stetson is here to confer with Mt. Wilson and California Institute of Technology scientists on problems connected with the installation, at Perkins Observatory, of a new sixty-nine-inch telescope that will be the third largest in the world, excluding the 200-inch instrument to be located in this vicinity.

The new knowledge concerning the relation of sun spots to radio communication has been arrived at through a co-operative investigation conducted between WBBM, Chicago broadcasting station, and Boston, since 1926.

"We hope, with the aid of our new equipment," said Mr. Stetson, "to secure important new data."

"It is quite probable that the radio will become the astronomer's new instrument for solar research, and for measuring ionization of the earth's atmosphere by disturbances on the sun."

EL PASEO OPENS TUESDAY

Architectural Gem at Palm Springs Completed and Will be Scene of Art Exhibition

PALM SPRINGS, Jan. 12.—The new two-story building of shops and apartments that for the last three months has been under construction here and very fittingly named El Paseo Shops, is now completed, and will be given a formal opening on Tuesday from 2 until 10 p.m. Particular interest attaches to this venture as it is an idea born of the famous El Paseo Building at Santa Barbara, a place of such great beauty that it is brought to the attention of all visitors to that city as an example of all that is perfect in pure Spanish architecture.

Several influential local residents and business men are responsible for this beautiful group of shops surrounding a typical Spanish patio and employed as Architect Jonathan Ring, who was for years connected with Allison & Allison of Los Angeles, helping them to design many of the most famous buildings in the Southland of Spanish motif.

Situated a little beyond El Mirador Hotel and on the same side of Palm Canyon Drive, it is comparatively in the center of a district which is being very rapidly built up with homes.

The opening ceremonies will include a program of Spanish music and the public is cordially invited to view the famous collection of paintings from the Biltmore Salon in the beautiful picture gallery just off the patio. These have been secured through the efforts of Marius De Brabant, a local resident and well-known patron of art, who secured the prize picture from the Biltmore's last exhibition. This particular canvas is by Jack Wilkinson Smith and will be shown.

Among the exhibitions are numbered many of California's foremost painters. This exhibition will be on display for several weeks of this season and the galleries will be open daily for art lovers and purchasers.

NEWS OF SOUTHERN COUNTIES

RAINFALL AIDS ORANGE SHOW

Downpour Welcome to Citrus Industry Boosts Interest

"Psychological Effect Just Amazing," Manager Says

More Colorful Exhibition Anticipated as Result

SAN BERNARDINO, Jan. 12.—With the citrus industry of California smiling gayly because of the recent heavy rain that covered the State, interest in the Twentieth National Orange Show, which will open here February 13, has taken a decided boom, according to Manager R. H. Mack, with exhibitors from all parts of the State making reservations for their choicest fruits, and with the sale of tickets for the show already nearing the 100,000 mark.

"The psychological effect which the rain during the past week has had on the growers of the State is simply amazing," stated Manager Mack, who further predicts that all the space in the orange show home will be sold out at least three weeks before the twentieth show opens.

The orange show officials report that the general optimism which the weather man has injected into the citrus industry during the past week promises to be no small factor in making the show this year more colorful than ever before. "It has even gone so far as to make it seem wise for us to plan for a crowd 25 per cent larger than the 275,000 locals and visitors from other States who attended the show last year," said Manager Mack. "Not only that, but it has been a factor in bringing a number of new features to the show this year."

UNIQUE FEATURE ADDED

One of the unique features that will be added to the show this year, this official states, which should spread the fame of the California orange to every State in the nation, is in connection with the prize fruit that will be entered in the world's champion orange-grower contest.

"Judging in the championship contest will be the main feature of the show on its opening day, February 13," states Manager Mack. "That night Gov. Young, who already will have officiated at the opening of the show, will present the medal to the grower who will be crowned as the world's champion orange grower for the coming year, among clicking cameras and blinding flashlights that will herald the event to the world in talking pictures and pictorial news stories.

"It is planned that every governor in the United States will receive a box of California's most golden oranges."

COMPETITION TO BE LIVELY

Earnest Mueller, another Etiwanda grower, who has a wide reputation for growing excellent fruit, now holds the diamond-studded medal for the best lemons that were exhibited last year. All of these growers and scores of others are in the race again, according to the show officials, which promises to make the competition more lively in all events than ever before.

In all, there will be about three-score classes of premiums for the orange show this year, Manager Mack states, each class having three prizes to the class. A prize of $500 will be awarded for the best feature display embracing a mechanical feature. And as was the case last year, the grand sweepstakes prize for oranges will be $200 cash. From these desirable heights, the prizes will range downward to $5, with certificates and trophies in all classes in addition to the cash awards, officials announce. At least 1000 growers will enter products in the show this year, it is estimated.

Several new departments have been added to the show this year, with the cooking department, which has been in demand for a long time, among the most important, according to Manager Mack.

ANOTHER PIONEER DIES

LANCASTER, Jan. 12.—Funeral services were held for John C. Gibler, 78 years of age, who died on the ranch of his son, M. D. Gibler, at Redmand. Gibler was one of the early pioneers of the Middle West. He leaves three sons and a daughter.

SCIENCE IN DETECTIVE'S ROLE AGAIN

Microscope and Enlarging Camera Implicate Truck Driver in Postoffice Theft

ORANGE, Jan. 12.—If Edward McAdoo, young local truck driver, eventually finds the theft of a registered mail sack from the Orange postoffice pinned on him, he still can console himself with the thought that it required something more than ordinary detective ability to find him out.

McAdoo, arrested by Federal postal inspectors, was beyond the reach of ordinary police methods. But the twin eyes of criminal detection, the microscope and enlarging camera, are asserted to have seen through the theft and picked out a bit of raveling on the blade of McAdoo's pocket knife.

This, the inspectors declare, matches the raveling of the Mission mail sack, which had been ripped open by a keen blade before it was found, ransacked, in a used-car lot at Orange.

So science pointed the finger of suspicion at McAdoo and he was formally charged with the crime.

Ordinary police methods, however, have helped to some extent in building a chain of asserted circumstantial evidence around McAdoo, who was an employee of the G. M. Bay Transfer Company.

In investigating the disappearance of the mail sack from a truck at the Santa Fe station here, the officers were said to have learned that McAdoo had driven a truck to his home on the night of the theft, contrary to usual custom.

McAdoo explained that he had carried groceries home in his truck, but when officers questioned his wife they were told, they say, that she had brought home the groceries herself and McAdoo had, so far as she knew, brought nothing, according to officers.

May Have to Buy Roadway Rights to Tujunga Dam

NORTH HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 12. The county may be asked to buy a route to the Big Tujunga Dam site. Following a conference between a San Fernando Valley-wide committee and Supervisor Wright, it is understood now that the needed right of way to the site will be either leased for $15,000 or purchased. Definite action will be taken when the Board of Supervisors meets early this week.

Dr. Homer Hanson, who is the owner of the tract in the bottom of the canyon just below the dam, has already offered use of the land at a stated stipulation.

The right of way is needed to maintain a road to carry materials to the site when work on the huge dam begins.

Ventura Given Forest Receipts

VENTURA, Jan. 12.—A check for $1248.39, Ventura county's share of the $556,981.10 granted to California by the United States Forestry Department has been received by Harry Van De Linder, County Treasurer.

The sum granted to the State represents 25 per cent of the United States government's receipts from Federal forest lands in California during the year ending June 30, 1929.

The receipts represent money paid the government for timber and grazing fees.

RAINS CAUSE LAYING OFF OF FIRE RANGERS

NEWHALL, Jan. 12.—All the outside force of the Forestry Department has been laid off following the good soaking of the brushland by rain. Dispatcher Kennedy and Deputy Warden Daries will remain in charge and there will probably be a driver for the fire truck. All the National Forest guards have been laid off including the lookout on Oat Mountain, who during the recent dry period had his hands full in holding down his job. Ranger Ellis E. T. McClure and George Armstrong make up the winter force in charge of Angeles Forest.

FIRST WOMAN PUT ON CHAMBER BOARD

Mrs. Walter F. Malone

MONTEBELLO, January 12.—Mrs. Walter F. Malone is the first woman to be elected to the directorate of the local Chamber of Commerce and at the organization meeting was voted first vice-president.

Until two years ago women were not allowed memberships in the organization. At that time the business and professional women of the city petitioned the officers of the chamber to have the rules amended. After careful study of the constitution and by-laws it was found that only an unwritten law excluded women. So, since that time, many business and professional members of the sex have become affiliated with the chamber.

Before election a very active campaign was launched to put Mrs. Malone on the directorate, sponsored by the retiring president, W. F. Johnson. When questioned about the matter he said he felt that the women are entitled to at least one representative. Mrs. Malone is considered well qualified to serve the chamber as first vice-president as she has always been an active worker in civic affairs and at present is president of the Montebello Woman's Club.

Other officers elected are: N. C. Banks, president; I. W. Whaley, second vice-president; H. P. Moritz, treasurer, and Zola V. Cotton, secretary. The new officers will be inaugurated formally into office at the chamber's annual banquet Monday evening, when the gavel is turned over by F. W. Johnson, retiring president.

Alta Loma Club Elects Officers

ALTA LOMA, Jan. 12.—Alta Loma Community Club will have as its president for the new year Francis S. Wagner, who was elected at the annual dinner meeting at the club rooms in Lomita Drive. He will succeed E. M. Barkow. Other officers are Lester Bennett, vice-president, and Herbert T. Blake, secretary-treasurer.

The Community Club started five years ago as a volunteer fire department organization, but expanded to take in others of the community, and now has a membership of fifty-eight. Vincent Roth, County Auditor, addressed the group.

EDISON ANNOUNCES NEW VALLEY PLANS

NORTH HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 12. The Southern California Edison Company expects to spend $184,600 in the San Fernando Valley area in 1930, it is announced here today by Ray Whitson, district manager. In addition to this total, the pay roll of the company will be about $96,000 for the year, Whitson says. Most of the improvements will be in the extension of cables, the placing of new cables, and a general development of lines, to keep up with the gradual increase of homes in the valley section.

POLICE ASKED TO LOAN STILL

Phone Request Causes Chief to Plan Arrest, But It Was for a Play

UPLAND, Jan. 12.—"Please Mr. Chief, have you got a nice modern still I could borrow? I only want it for a week or so, and promise I will bring it back in good shape."

J. F. Sawyer, Chief of the local police department scented something new in the bootlegging industry when this request came to him via telephone. Thinking that anybody gullible enough to call up the Chief of Police to borrow a still might be gullible enough to call at the police station, Chief Sawyer invited the inquisitor to call.

It then developed that the person wanting the still only wanted to play at bootlegging. A group of footlight enthusiasts was practicing for a play in which a still was needed. So the director referred one of the players to the Chief.

BOY'S DEATH INVESTIGATED

Autopsy Ordered for Today on Body of Five-Year-Old Kenneth Rundle, Asserted Narcotics Victim

PASADENA, Jan. 12.—Information indicating that 5-year-old Kenneth Rundle may have died a victim of narcotics caused Daniel Beecher, chief of the District Attorney's trial department, to order that an autopsy be performed tomorrow morning at the C. F. Lamb Mortuary, 415 East Orange Grove avenue. Cremation services were halted yesterday, two hours before they were scheduled to have been held.

Dr. R. E. Ramsay, who attended the boy in his last illness, asserted today that pneumonia caused the child's death, and that no morphine was administered. The physician explained that the boy was subnormal and that such persons tend to have less resistance to disease. Dr. Ramsay, one of the best-known physicians in this city, declared that he had received no official explanation of the District Attorney's act in halting the cremation service, and that he knew of no unusual circumstances in the case.

Young Rundle, said to have been the son of Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Rundle of Camarillo, was attending a local school for subnormal children when taken ill. He died last Wednesday and the death certificate named pneumonia as the cause of death.

The services were halted when W. H. Holland, chief of the county probation department, reported he had received information that led him to believe the child may have been drugged.

Officials of the school branded this information as an idle rumor, and asserted the results of the autopsy tomorrow would bear out their conviction that the case did not warrant investigation.

C. P. Lamb, head of the Lamb Mortuary, said he possessed no information bearing on the case.

Asserted Pair of Bandits Both Held to Answer

HUNTINGTON PARK, Jan. 12.—Francis Fraetis, arrested on suspicion of burglary on two counts, and also two charges of robbery, and Lee Skaggs, arrested on one charge of robbery, were given preliminary hearings Saturday before Judge Edward H. Miller. Both were held to answer to Superior Court, Fraetis's aggregate bail being $10,500, and Skaggs's bail being $5000.

Both are charged with holding up Frank Hale, attendant at the J. G. Sedgwick gasoline station on New Year's Eve, obtaining $17. They were arrested a few hours later by local officers. Fraetis made two asserted written confessions, in the latter mentioning Skaggs. Skaggs also made an asserted written confession.

Fraetis is also charged with holding up Mrs. Gwendolyn Wells, in charge of the Halladay Grocery Store here on the evening of October 28, taking about $20; also of robbing the home of C. W. Losey in South Gate, December 13, taking two pillows, and the home of E. H. Blankenship, in South Gate, December 7, taking a wrist watch and an alarm clock.

Both young men had been roommates in an apartment-house in this city.

Woman Pioneer Goes to Reward

SAN BERNARDINO, Jan. 12.—Mrs. Fannie Okeson Stiles, the wife of Dr. W. H. Stiles, one of this city's pioneer residents, and herself widely known through Southern California was interred here yesterday. She had been ill for two months and died at the family home on Friday.

Born in Lexington, Ill., sixty-seven years ago, Mrs. Stiles lived there until a few years after her marriage to Dr. Stiles, who began his medical practice in that city. They moved to this city about forty-three years ago.

Mrs. Stiles was one of the charter members organizing the San Bernardino Woman's Club, and was a past president. She was active in the Presbyterian Church, of which she was a life-long member, and for fifteen years served as treasurer of the Riverside-San Bernardino Presbytery.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Stiles leaves a daughter, Miss Pauline Stiles, widely known writer, who is the authoress of "The Crooked Stick" and "Cloud by Day," who lives here, and one sister, Mrs. A. S. Esbaugh of Kankakee, Ill. A sister-in-law, Mrs. Luther Stiles of Long Beach, is at the family home now.

Funeral services for Mrs. Stiles were conducted from the residence. Rev. Otis D. Ironmonger, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, officiated.

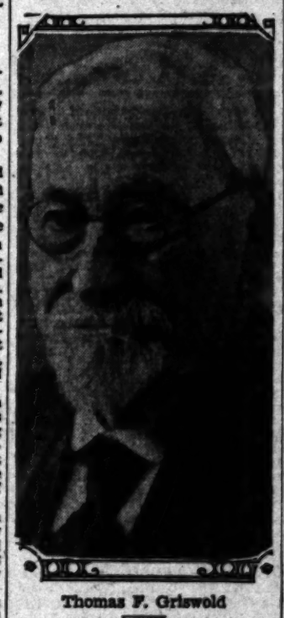
ALL PHONE NUMBERS IN TOWN TO CHANGE

OWENSMOUTH, Jan. 12.—The new telephone central office here has been completed on Remmet avenue, and work has been started on the installation of the dial equipment, it is stated today by C. C. Campbell, manager for the Pacific Telephone Company in San Fernando Valley. The new equipment will cost about $25,000. When all work is completed, the new exchange will represent an investment of $50,000. All the present telephone numbers in the Owensmouth section are to be changed for the new numbers of the dial system. They will appear in the new phone directory to be issued in March.

TAX EXPERT TO TALK TO WOMEN

RESEDA, Jan. 12.—The Reseda Woman's Club will hold its reciprocity day program on the 14th inst. at Alton Hall, with James W. Mussatti, editor of the Tax Digest, official paper of the California Taxpayers' Association, as principal speaker. Scores of members of San Fernando Valley women's clubs are expected to attend the meeting.

TRIBUTE PAID TO MASONIC PATRIARCH



Thomas F. Griswold

COVINA, Jan. 12.—Members of the Masonic fraternity in the Upper San Gabriel Valley paid tribute last night to Thomas F. Griswold in a ceremony during which he received the fifty-year gold button conferred upon veteran members of the order by the California Grand Lodge. The emblem was presented by J. L. Matthews, Past Master of Covina lodge, assisted by Past Masters Sidney H. Ashton and Malcolm J. McCarthy.

Griswold will be 92 years of age in March and has been a Mason fifty-nine years. He was made a Mason in Necedah, Wis., in June, 1870, and nine years later moved to California. He has been Master of Covina lodge three times, and is now Treasurer, and Past Commander of Covina Commandery, Knights Templer, and Past High Priest of Azusa Chapter, R.A.M.

Other features of last night's ceremonies were installation of officers of the lodge and the local commandery. Installing officers were Past Master W. J. Evans and Dr. C. W. Searcy. Officers inducted were: Charles F. Hasheider, Master; I. Worth Everett, Senior Warden; Earl F. Davis, Junior Warden; Thomas P. Griswold, Treasurer; Malcolm J. McCarthy, Secretary; W. P. Nye, Chaplain; J. D. Reed, Marshal; Robert W. Estep, Senior Deacon; Hal Cook, Junior Deacon; Eugene S. Christensen, Senior Steward; John F. Brackett, Junior Steward, and Samuel Lucas, Tyler.

Commandery officers were installed by Rowland Hudson of Puente, inspector for this Masonic district, and George Stone of Pasadena. The new staff consists of: James A. Stewart, Commander; Thomas Compton, Generalissimo; Peyton E. Calvert, Captain-General; Elmer G. Hotchkiss, Senior Warden; Robert M. Dodsworth, Junior Warden; Thomas F. Griswold, Treasurer; William Hoogendyk, Recorder; Thomas E. Foster, Prelate; Clark P. Malcho, Standard-bearer; Orville L. Strickland, Sword-bearer; Charles A. Ryan, Warder; Joseph C. Crickmore, Sentinel; Morris M. Morgan, First Guard; A. M. Glines, Second Guard, and Sidney H. Ashton, Third Guard.

C. L. Wheatland Made Defendant in Love Action

SANTA ANA, Jan. 11.—C. L. Wheatland, former head of the Balboa Palisades Club, who later figured in extensive litigation with the club over building contracts, was named in the role of love pirate as M. G. Phipps, former Newton (Iowa) man, has filed a divorce suit in Superior Court against his wife, Katherine Phipps of Whittier, with Wheatland as asserted corespondent.

Phipps asserts his wife is living with Wheatland at 1321 California avenue, Whittier. In addition to his charge of infidelity, Phipps also complains of desertion.

Mr. and Mrs. Phipps were married at Newton in 1921 and have a son, La Verne, 8 years of age, who figures in the court proceedings as the center of a fight for custody. Phipps wants possession of the boy, who is living with Mrs. Phipps, and charges in his court complaint, that unless a temporary custody order is issued at once, there is danger that Mrs. Phipps will remove the boy beyond jurisdiction of the court.

Phipps stated that he came from Iowa to California two years ago to try to locate his wife and son and that he found them at Whittier. Mrs. Phipps left there and he did not find her again until a month ago, this time at the California-street address.

A residence at 925 French street, this city, was named in the complaint as having been occupied at one time by Mrs. Phipps and Wheatland, according to Phipps.

Attorneys Nelson and Burns represent the plaintiff.

FLOODS OF MUD IN LAGUNA CARTED OFF

LAGUNA BEACH, Jan. 12.—Merchants and employees in the downtown district on Florence avenue had a busy time cleaning away eight inches of mud from the sidewalks and streets following the rainfall of 3.30 inches during the storm of the past few days. On several of the streets from one to six inches of mud and water accumulated. The service of all available trucks in the community was needed to carry the mud from the streets. Water rushed down Temple Hills, left barren last summer by brush and grass fires. Storm drains were inadequate to carry off the surplus water. Oldtimers remarked that they had never before witnessed such a deposit of earth on their streets.

NAMED FIRE CAPTAIN

RESEDA, Jan. 12.—E. L. Parker has been appointed captain of the Reseda Fire Department, the volunteer crew of which is supervised by the Los Angeles department. Parker succeeds W. L. Fletcher, who has resigned. A chemical apparatus wagon is part of the equipment here.

Federal Judge From Hawaiian Islands Retires

SAN DIEGO, Jan. 12.—After thirty-three years of continuous service in Hawaii, which included more than twenty years as a member of the Hawaiian judiciary, former Federal Judge John Debolt has selected this city as the place in which he will spend "the contemplative years."

At the Hotel Clark, where he is living, he said that he had retired from public life and planned to make his home here. Until late last year, when he sailed for Los Angeles, he had not left the islands since 1896.

His judicial record there started in 1902, when he was appointed as the first judge of the first Circuit Court. In 1911 he began a three-year term on the Supreme Court bench, which he left to take up private practice. Another term on Circuit Court began in 1918 and continued until 1922, when he became United States District Judge. He retired from that bench into private life in 1928.

While on the Federal bench Judge Debolt made an extensive study of citizenship laws, and is the author of "Naturalization of Aliens and Their Duties as Citizens."

Another Delay in Building of Beach Library

REDONDO BEACH, Jan. 12.—A possible new delay in the proceedings on this city's proposed $50,000 Library Building, for which bids have already been asked, has been encountered in a petition signed by 936 property owners asking a special election to redetermine the library site.

The petition, which has been certified as sufficient by City Clerk C. C. Mangold, takes exception to the plan of building the library in the City Park site selected by popular vote at the time of the bond issue three years ago.

The delay marks the second which has confronted the library board, the first being due to the annexation contest affecting the validity of the bonds.

LEUSCHEN EXPANSION ANNOUNCED

Redlands Fruit Enterprise Acquiries Packing-House at Highland

REDLANDS, Jan. 12.—Increased demand for navels under the brands of the Peppers Fruit Company has resulted in that organization expanding during the last week to include the Fred Leuschen packing-house at Highland. The new packing plant, constructed only last year and considered one of the most up-to-date in the State, has been leased to the Peppers interests and fifty-five cars of fruit have been packed already under the Peppers brands.

Leuschen is to be associated with T. H. Peppers in operating the Highland plant. J. G. Chapman, district manager for the Peppers Fruit Company in Redlands for several years, is also to have supervision. All fruit of the Leuschen interests will be packed in the Highland house and go out under the Peppers banner. Red Mule brand is the extra fancy, Sweetest-Yet the fancy and several choice varieties are under various labels.

When the Leuschen packing-house was constructed last year it was considered the best in the State for the purpose. All the latest mechanical devices for receiving and handling, stocking and packing of citrus fruits have been installed. It has a capacity of eight cars in eight hours.

The Peppers Fruit Company expects a good pack this season in the Redlands house, according to Chapman. It is packing all the fruit for the Western Fruit Growers and several other growers. The season's output from the local house will probably total between 250 and 300 cars, Chapman said. Fruit in both the local and the Highland houses is packed by the Betz Packing Company, considered generallly as assurance of one of the best packs in California.

Year in Jail and $1500 Fine Given for Liquor Sale

VENTURA, Jan. 12.—Edward (Frenchy) Du Quette of this city, today has been sentenced in the Justice Court by Judge Malvern Dimmick to spend one year in the County Jail on two charges of sale of liquor, and given the choice between paying a total of $1500 in fines or serving 500 additional days in jail on three other similar counts.

Du Quette was arrested in December, last, by deputy sheriffs on charges of selling intoxicants on five different occasions to "stool pigeons."

On each of two of these charges Du Quette was given six months' jail sentences. On each of the other three, a fine of $500 or 500 days in jail was meted out to him. All five cases had been consolidated, so if Du Quette does not pay any of the $1500 fines on the last three counts, he will serve 500 days additional to the year in jail.

Du Quette had pleaded not guilty on all five counts and demanded a jury trial. He was found guilty by a jury.

Girl's Eyebrows Singed as Well as Dyed Auburn

PASADENA, Jan. 12.—Because she "just had to have" brown eyebrows and eyelashes to match her curly auburn hair, Gertrude Everett, pretty Pasadena Junior College co-ed, was a patient in the Pasadena Emergency Hospital today.

Miss Everett was satisfied with her brown eyes and Titian hair, but she didn't like the "jarring note" caused by her golden eyebrows and eyelashes, so she dyed them.

The preparation not only dyed the offending hirsute appendages, but severely burned the owner about the eyes and forehead.

She has not decided whether to try out a new kind of dye when she recovers.

REALTY BOARD ELECTS

BELL, Jan. 12.—Dean Kirk, prominent real estate dealer of this city, has been elected president of the local Realty Board for the present year. F. R. Egee has been chosen vice-president; Charles A. Fischer, secretary-treasurer, and A. L. Murphy, State director. The board directors selected are Dean Kirk, F. R. Egee, Charles Fischer, Otto C. Beck and A. B. Shaub.

RADIO FANS, "LISTEN IN!"

Due to Passage of Cycle of Sun Spots, Reception on Your Set Should be Better, Authority Says

PASADENA, Jan. 12.—Due to the passage of a cycle of unusually prevalent sun spots, radio reception should be greatly improved during the next five years, according to Dr. Harlan T. Stetson, director of the Perkins Observatory at Ohio Wesleyan University, who is in this city to confer with Mt. Wilson observatory astronomers. Dr. Stetson and Dr. G. W. Pickard of Boston, recently completed researches to determine the effect of sun spots upon radio reception.

"Contrary to popular impression," asserted Dr. Stetson, today, "radio reception may be as good in the summer as in the winter, the occurrence of sun spots being much more important than any seasonal effect."

Asked to explain the connection between sun spots and radio reception, the authority declared his belief that sun spots act as powerful magnetized fields which direct the electrons emitted from the sun toward the earth in greater numbers than under normal conditions.

"This increasing bombardment of the earth's atmosphere ionizes the molecules of our atmosphere and appreciably lowers the so-called Kenelley-Heaviside layer, which is recognized by engineers as a cause of turning back radio waves toward the earth."

Dr. Stetson is here to confer with Mt. Wilson and California Institute of Technology scientists on problems connected with the installation, at Perkins Observatory, of a new sixty-nine-inch telescope that will be the third largest in the world, excluding the 200-inch instrument to be located in this vicinity.

The new knowledge concerning the relation of sun spots to radio communication has been arrived at through a co-operative investigation conducted between WBBM, Chicago broadcasting station, and Boston, since 1926.

"We hope, with the aid of our new equipment," said Mr. Stetson, "to secure important new data."

"It is quite probable that the radio will become the astronomer's new instrument for solar research, and for measuring ionization of the earth's atmosphere by disturbances on the sun."

EL PASEO OPENS TUESDAY

Architectural Gem at Palm Springs Completed and Will be Scene of Art Exhibition

PALM SPRINGS, Jan. 12.—The new two-story building of shops and apartments that for the last three months has been under construction here and very fittingly named El Paseo Shops, is now completed, and will be given a formal opening on Tuesday from 2 until 10 p.m. Particular interest attaches to this venture as it is an idea born of the famous El Paseo Building at Santa Barbara, a place of such great beauty that it is brought to the attention of all visitors to that city as an example of all that is perfect in pure Spanish architecture.

Several influential local residents and business men are responsible for this beautiful group of shops surrounding a typical Spanish patio and employed as Architect Jonathan Ring, who was for years connected with Allison & Allison of Los Angeles, helping them to design many of the most famous buildings in the Southland of Spanish motif.

Situated a little beyond El Mirador Hotel and on the same side of Palm Canyon Drive, it is comparatively in the center of a district which is being very rapidly built up with homes.

The opening ceremonies will include a program of Spanish music and the public is cordially invited to view the famous collection of paintings from the Biltmore Salon in the beautiful picture gallery just off the patio. These have been secured through the efforts of Marius De Brabant, a local resident and well-known patron of art, who secured the prize picture from the Biltmore's last exhibition. This particular canvas is by Jack Wilkinson Smith and will be shown.

Among the exhibitions are numbered many of California's foremost painters. This exhibition will be on display for several weeks of this season and the galleries will be open daily for art lovers and purchasers.

PACKING HOUSE REBUFF

Ontario City Planning Commission Denies Request of Mutual Orange Distributors for Zone Change

ONTARIO, Jan. 12.—Plans of the Mutual Orange Distributors, headquarters in Redlands, to erect a $75,000 orange packing house near the Pacific Electric tracks and Palm avenue, received a setback in announcement by the City Planning Commission that recommendation will be made to the City Council that no change sought by the fruit association from residential to industrial be granted. This decision reached by the Planning Commission, of which Fischer Ball is chairman, virtually denies the company the request for permission to erect the building at that site.

Recently the Council adopted a zoning ordinance, which included the district near the Pacific Electric tracks and Palm avenue in the residential district. Through I. H. Weaver, field representative for the Mutual Orange Distributors, the city was asked to so amend the zoning ordinance as to permit construction of the packing-house.

E. W. Fischer, vice-principal of Chaffey Union High School, took the lead in opposing the plan, appearing before the Planning Commission with a large delegation.

Beside Minsberg's body last Friday police found a slip of paper bearing the words "Federal Prohibition Offices."

GUN NEAR BODY

The body of Lapeda was discovered by Marie Baron, a maid, when she entered the room to change the linen. It was lying, fully clothed, across the bed and blood was issuing from a wound in the temple. A gun lay a few inches from one of the dead man's outstretched hands. Miss Baron screamed, attracting the attention of the rooming-house manager, who rushed to the room and then notified police.

Detective Lieutenants Hickey, Steed and Romaro responded to the call and at first were inclined to report the death a suicide. Closer examination of the body, however, revealed that the trousers pockets had been turned inside out, lending credence to a robbery theory. Then the officers stumbled on the significant scrap of paper.

MURDER SCENTED

The body was turned over to the Coroner, pending further investigation of what looms as a possible murder.

Lapeda was well dressed and well manicured, evidence, the detectives said, that he had been in comfortable circumstances.

The rooming-house manager said he had registered at the place on the 1st inst., and had been noticeably quiet and uncommunicative in leaving and returning to his quarters.

Beach Family Again Struck by Ill-Luck

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Jan. 12. For the fourth time in as many years misfortune stalked this city's most unlucky family today, when Sammy Bell, 10 years of age, was struck down and injured by an automobile as he darted out from an alley on his roller skates.

Four years ago the boy's mother was widowed. Her husband died of tuberculosis. In 1928 Sammy's 8-year-old sister was scalded to death in a tub of boiling water into which she had fallen while at play. Last year, another sister, 6, died of ptomaine poisoning.

This morning, hurrying to his mother's cottage at 605 Ocean avenue, Sammy sped out of an alley into Seventh street, just as a car, driven by C. E. Dowty, approached through the rain. Dowty applied the brakes in vain. The machine struck Sammy and knocked him to the wet pavement, inflicting a compound fracture of the left leg. After emergency treatment here, the boy was removed to the County Hospital at Orange.

"SONNY BOY" WILL SING FOR CHARITY

Davey Lee, youngest of screen celebrities, is announced as one of the entertainers at the all-star revel in Shrine Auditorium on the night of the 29th inst. The title creator of "Sonny Boy," associated with Al Jolson in several productions, will sing and otherwise entertain, in company with many leading personages of the motion-picture world. The all-star revel has been arranged to raise a fund to give financial aid to various foreign and national charities not included in the sphere of the Community Chest.

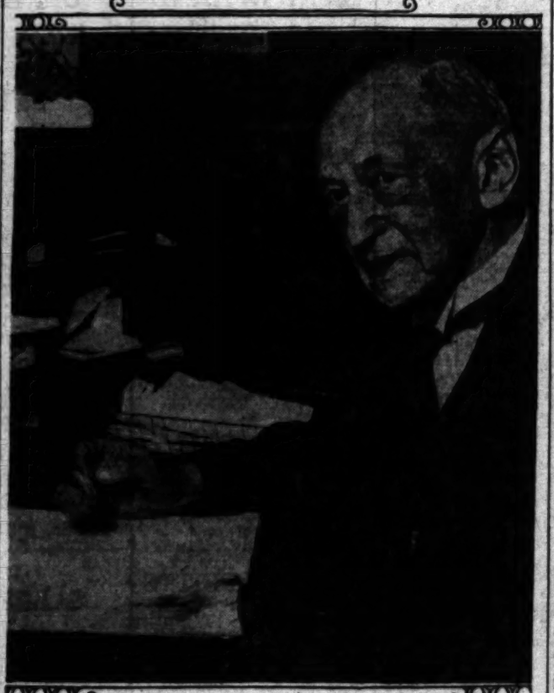
TAX-PROTEST RULING MADE

Taxpayers who fail to appear before the Board of Equalization during its stated term in July cannot come in with a request for reduction of taxes later, the County Board of Supervisors is advised by County Counsel Mattoon in an opinion to be considered today.

A representative of the Masonic Orphans' Home forgot to appear last summer, and as a result the home will have to pay $4000 in taxes. It is contended that the home's taxes should be reduced because it is a charitable nonprofit institution, supported by bequests and gifts.

OCTOGENARIAN MERCHANT BUSY

He's Eighty Today but Still "on Job"



Max Meyberg at Desk With His Gift Watch

MAX MEYBERG, who has been in business in Los Angeles probably longer than any other merchant, today will celebrate the eightieth anniversary of his birth. He will begin the day by stooping 150 times and placing the palms of his hands flat down on the floor without bending his knees.

"I've always tried to keep fit by exercise and I begin every day that way, have done it for years," he explained. He said that he is at his office every day in active conduct of the affairs of Meyberg Company, wholesale electric dealers, 1022 South Wall street, and commented:

"It just goes to show young people what can be done."

Mr. Meyberg came to Los Angeles fifty-four years ago and has been in business continuously ever since. He has seen the place grow from 8000 population to nearly 1,500,000. He organized the Fiesta de Los Angeles in 1894, which continued annually for a few years in promotion of business in times when business was noon too good. One of his prized possessions today is a watch given him by grateful merchants because of his services at the time.

He was one of the organizers of the old Merchants' Association and was active in its merging with the old Manufacturers' Association into what now is the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association. He still is a staunch champion of the open shop in industry. Mr. Meyberg came to this country in 1865 from Germany. As a hat salesman along the Mississippi River in the old steamboat days he had his eight trunks loaded on the Natchez one day, missed the boat, and boarded the fast Robert E. Lee, which left a short time after the Natchez. The Lee overtook the Natchez and they were racing madly upstream when the Natcher's boilers blew up—and he lost his eight trunks.

"About four years ago," he said, "I was sitting in a crowded cafe here and I invited a man who had just come in to sit down at a seat at my table. Before we parted I learned that he was paymaster on the Natchez aboard the steamboat the day it blew up."

Council Asked for Extra Fund

The Board of Public Works has asked the City Council to appropriate $1000 additional to pay for some of the improvements necessitated in the general reconstruction of Council offices so that each member has a private office, with an anteroom for his secretary. In this case, the board asks for $503 to pay for installing ventilators to release the hot air from the Councilmanic offices, and the remainder of the $1000 for various doodads.

The communication was referred to the Finance Committee.

INN ORDERED TO QUIT LIQUOR TRAFFICKING

In a final decree on file today in the court of United States District Judge James, it is ordered that the Santa Nella Inn in Merced county shall not traffic in any manner in liquor for a period of a year. The order came following a hearing of the case of the government against Linn A. Simon, Daniel Pedrone, Itha M. Pedrone and others, operators of the inn.

Report Made of Humane Work for Half Year

License fees received by the Los Angeles Humane Department for the last six months of 1929, comprising the first half of the fiscal year, total $84,439.50, according to the monthly report, which shows $6305.50 in fees for last December.

Of 644 dogs impounded, 538 were destroyed at the animal shelter, 215 Ann street. Homes found and redemptions saved 103 dogs and twenty-eight were kept on hand. A total of 161 cats were impounded. Ten were redeemed or homes found for them and the remainder were destroyed.

A total of 613 large animals were examined, six horses and mules destroyed, two suspended from labor and six warnings and reprimands were issued.

Forty-one carloads of stock in transit and 1350 crates of poultry were inspected.

Seventeen head of stock were impounded, nine redeemed and four sold, five held over the month and one destroyed.

Warning Given to Housewives

A warning to housewives to refrain from dealing with house-to-house peddlers who offer for sale various articles ranging from "valuable" chinaware to "costly handmade" rugs, has been issued by the Better Business Bureau. Peddlers have been active in many sections of the city recently and in almost every case where a purchase was made of some asserted "costly" article it was found the housewife had been victimized.

One woman in Flintridge paid $300 for a tablecloth which appraisal at a downtown store showed to be worth $17.50.

LEVY MAP SUBMITTED

The City Engineer has submitted to the City Council the assessment district map for the Hawley-avenue and Cassett-street improvement district. It was referred to the Public Works Committee.

COURT RULES ON RAILROAD TRACK PATH

Insurance Company Loses Suit Over Policy Held by P. E. Train Victim

A footpath across a railroad track may be a public highway even though the railway company has posted a sign stating that it is not, according to a decision handed down by Municipal Judge Bush.

Judge Bush ordered the Great American Casualty Company to pay a $1200 insurance policy on the life of Edward Johns, killed July 13 last, by a Pacific Electric train at Anaheim Landing. Evidence showed that Johns was struck while walking on a footpath across the tracks. A sign near the path read "No thoroughfare — private property — Permission to pass over revocable at any time—Look out for the cars."

"As long as the right to use it has not been revoked, the footpath is a public highway," Judge Bush decided.

Attorneys for the company announced that the decision, believed to be the first of its kind in California, would be appealed to the Supreme Court.

OSTEOPATHS TO MEET

Members of the Los Angeles Osteopathic Society will hold their first meeting of the new year tomorrow evening at the College of Osteopathic Physicians and Surgeons. Appearing on the program are Drs. Carl P. McConell and George V. Webster, now located in Los Angeles. Dancing in the college gymnasium will follow the business meeting.

POLICE SKEPTIC ON SUICIDE TALE

Razor Victim Maintains He Slashed Himself

Officers See Gangsters' Hand in Mutilations

Two Arrested as Witnesses Found With Liquor

A case which at first appeared to be a suicide attempt on the part of John W. Dowdle, 46 years of age, giving his address as the Morrison Hotel, yesterday was believed by police to have been the outcome of a bootleggers' feud.

Dowdle was found severely slashed across the abdomen, back, and neck, apparently with a razor, when police answered an emergency call to 434 West Pico street. He was lying in a pool of blood and insisted, when questioned by the officers, that his injuries were self-inflicted. Weakened by loss of blood, he was rushed to the Georgia-street Receiving Hospital where Drs. Sebastian and Kirkpatrick immediately began a major operation to save his life.

Here again attempts were made to question him but he refused to answer questions, sullenly reaffirming that he had tried to end his own life with a razor.

Parked in front of the house where the cutting occurred, Detective Lieutenant Shattuck of the Georgia division homicide detail found a large sedan, which was searched and inside were found two gallons of liquor. A youth believed to have been the driver, was taken to the station for questioning, as was also a woman who gave the name of Marjorie Rhue, 28, and her address as 2650 South Budlong street. Police say a gallon of liquor was found in her car, also.

Indications, according to police, are that Dowdle was attacked in a quarrel concerning delivery of liquor. Several cars were seen to drive up and leave the place immediately before and after the cutting took place.

Although Dowdle is weak from loss of blood and his injuries are severe, police surgeons predict that he will live. He gave his occupation as automobile salesman.

WIDOW OF COL. PARKER SUCCUMBS

Apoplexy Proves Fatal to Member of Pioneer California Family

Mrs. Martha J. Parker, 76 years of age, pioneer of the West and widow of Col. Frank J. Parker, died yesterday at the Santa Monica Hospital following a stroke of apoplexy Friday. She was a native of Maryland and came to California in the 50's.

Her father, W. H. Newell, was one of the founders of the San Francisco Morning Call and later he established the first newspapers in the Pacific-Northwest, the Times-Mountaineer at Dalles, Or. Later he sold this and founded the Walla Walla (Wash.) Statesman, which was operated for years by Mrs. Parker's husband, Col. Parker, who died in Lake county two years ago.

Mrs. Parker had been a resident of Santa Monica seven years, previously residing in Los Angeles, Portland and Seattle.

She leaves four sons, Frank N. Parker, auditor for the Interstate Commerce Commission at Washington, D. C.; Gilbert H. Parker, news editor, Wall Street Journal, San Francisco; Edward H. Parker, mechanical engineer, San Francisco, and William Parker, general manager of the Pacific Coast News Service with headquarters in Los Angeles.

All except Frank Parker, now en route from Washington, were present at the time of death.

Private funeral services will be conducted Wednesday at 2 p.m. from the Wilshire funeral home at 1519 Wilshire Boulevard, Santa Monica. A Christian Science service will be read.

BABY SHOW JUDGES NAMED

A committee of judges was named yesterday to decide the winners in the baby show and children's health contest Saturday and Sunday in the Los Angeles College of Chiropractic. Dr. Charles H. Wood, chairman, appointed Dr. Linnie Cale, Dr. Gustave Haas, Dr. C. T. Sheridan and Dr. Horace Clay. In addition to the contest, numerous free clinics for babies and mothers will be conducted.

JURISPRUDENCE BARS PROXIES

Business Man Appearing for Partner in Traffic Court Draws Judge's Ire

One partner may act for another in business but not in court, J. J. Korsen, jeweler of 220 West Fifth street, discovered in Traffic Court where he answered to the name of M. Rodman, 534 Gardner street, his partner, charged with two parking violations.

On the witness stand Korsen admitted to Judge Bush that he was not Rodman, but was appearing for him.

"You can do that in business but you can't do it in court," the judge declared. "You get Rodman in here, quick."

When Rodman appeared five minutes later Judge Bush fined him $25, remarking that both men were lucky in not being sent to jail for contempt.

COSTELLO FIGHTS BALM SUIT

Veteran Actor Denies He Ever Proposed Marriage to Woman Musician

Denying he ever promised to marry Vivienne Sengler, musician and composer, Maurice Costello, former motion-picture star and father of Dolores and Helene Costello, actresses, has filed an answer in Superior Court here to the suit for $100,000 damages brought against him several weeks ago by Miss Sengler.

In her complaint, Miss Sengler asserts Costello proposed marriage to her in Stockton, December 10, 1928. She declares it was agreed they were to be married April 22, 1929, but that Costello finally repudiated his asserted promise and refused to wed her.

MAURICE COSTELLO

Vivienne Sengler

Costello's answer is a general and specific denial of the charges made by Miss Sengler. He declares he has never proposed marriage to her at any time, nor has he had any agreement with her at any time regarding marriage or anything else.

Costello asks that Miss Sengler's suit be dismissed and that he be awarded judgment for his costs. He is represented by Attorney Samuel H. London, while Miss Sengler's complaint was prepared by Raymond W. Stewart.

Filing of the answer places the case in a position to be set for trial.

BUILDING UNIT HAS PROFIT

Great Activity During Year Shown in Report of Superintendent Backus to Mayor

Building Superintendent Backus's annual statement, furnished last week to Mayor Porter, shows that the Building and Safety Department last year showed a net profit of $12,520.16. Total receipts collected by the building, electrical and plumbing divisions reached $519,736.15, with expenses amounting to $507,215.99. In addition, $182,300 was expended for the fire alarm system and $110,000 for the traffic signal system.

Traffic signals now are in operation at 491 street intersections, with 110 blinker lights.

Permits were issued by the building division for enough structures, if placed side by side, to extend 127.5 miles. They were valued at $93,016,160, and the permits numbered 31,721, requiring 238,778 inspections. Residential building amounted to $45,396,991, or 48 per cent. They will house 54,842 persons. These figures include $17,632,360 for apartment-houses, $21,177,333 for single-family dwellings and $6,587,298 for double dwellings. Amusement buildings were erected at a cost of $197,825, club buildings, $2,284,585, hospitals, $1,942,800, schools, $2,404,950, and theaters, $1,135,000.

Business, manufacturing and industrial buildings amounted to 22 per cent of the year's total, or $20,886,830, an increase of 25 per cent over the previous year.

During the year 44,700 electrical permits were issued, requiring 127,000 inspections. Fifteen miles of cable were laid for the fire and police signal system. Two thousand five hundred and thirty-six furnace permits were issued and 1145 refrigeration inspections made.

The plumbing division issued 87,400 permits and 160,224 inspections were made.

LAW AIDED BY REVENGE OF WOMAN

Wife's Tip and Assistance Leads to Arrest of Mate on Bootlegging Charge

As a climax of a short drama which might have been entitled "A Wife's Revenge," Clayton R. Stapleton, 23 years of age, of 843 Maple avenue, was arrested and jailed last night on Wright Act charges.

The desk sergeant at the Georgia-street station received a call last night from a woman who described herself as Mrs. Ethel Stapleton, and who said she had information which would lead to the arrest of a bootlegger at the Maple evnue address. She did not say then that this is her own home and that the asserted bootlegger is her husband, but she agreed to meet an officer in front of the house and give him proof of the liquor selling.

Policeman R. A. Smith was sent to the address and Mrs. Stapleton met him there and told him the rest of her story, which included the fact that she had quarreled with her husband. Nevertheless, according to the policeman's story, Stapleton had no suspicion of him when he was ushered into the house and introduced by Mrs. Stapleton as a prospective customer.

The policeman said he bought a pint of liquor from Stapleton, for which he paid $2 in marked bills. He immediately arrested Stapleton and then searched the house, reporting that he found ten more pints of liquor there.

REAL ESTATE OWNING TO BE LECTURE TOPIC

Real estate ownership and control are to be discussed in a series of Monday-night lectures at University College, 122 East Seventh street, in charge of George Schneider, author of "California Real Estate." A class in real-estate conveyancing, which meets tonight at 6:30 o'clock, will include a series of Monday night sessions from now until March, covering notes and mortgages, deeds of trust, deeds and power of attorney, title, insurance, escrows, contracts and relation of broker to buyer and seller.

AERONAUTICS COURSE WILL BEGIN TONIGHT

Actual work on the Wasp, Hornet, Wright-Whirlwind, Leblond, Liberty and Hispana-Suiza airplane engines will be included in a night engineering course to be organized at 7 o'clock tonight at Bridge Hall, University of Southern California, Thirty-seventh street and University avenue.

POLICE ENTRY ENDS LECTURE

"Distinguished Croatians" Face Humble Charges

Guise Torn Off Asserted Well-Known Reds

Slavic Audience Humbugged, Officers Declare

Under the guise of being "distinguished lecturers from Croatia," two asserted Communists with police records were arrested by Detective Lieutenant Hynes and his "Red squad" at a meeting at 224 South Spring street yesterday. Both men had been billed under aliases and the meeting had been advertised as one for Czecho-Slovakians, Austrians, Serbians and Croatians in Los Angeles, Hynes said.

Several hundred persons of these nationalities were in the hall listening to whom they thought was "Prof. M. Mikalachi, Ph.D." On the platform with him was his co-lecturer, who the posters had stated was "Prof. John Pisiciv, celebrated Croatian statesman."

When Lieut. Hynes arrived at the hall, he said, "Prof. Mikalachi" had switched his lecture into a Communist harangue and "Prof. Pisiciv" was smiling benignly at the audience. Hynes said he required but one look to recognize the lecturer as Maurice Milson, a radical known throughout the country. Hynes and his squad climbed upon the platform and arrested both lecturers. Fingerprints of Pisiciv revealed that he once had been convicted as a bootlegger.

When the Pisiciv home was searched on a warrant Hynes said he found fifteen gallons of liquor and a revolver. Pisiciv was booked on the alien-gun law and illegal possession and action will be taken to deport him. Milson was booked on suspicion of criminal syndicalism. When the startled Slavic audience sought its money back it was discovered the "treasurer" had disappeared.

Hawks Lands in Texas Due to Darkness

Capt. Frank Hawks, holder of both east and west nonstop transcontinental air records, was forced down by darkness yesterday at Midland, Tex., following a six-hour flight from the Lockheed Aircraft Company's Burbank airdrome.

The message was received here by Hawks's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Hawks of 2080 Whitley avenue, Hollywood, with whom the flyer had been visiting while Lockheed mechanics overhauled his record-holding Lockheed-Air Express Texaco No. 5 monoplane.

The flyer is en route to Miami, Fla., and plans to hop from Midland to Miami today, the message told his parents.

WAR MOTHERS READY TO INSTALL OFFICERS

Officers-elect of Loyal Chapter, American War Mothers, will be installed formally at 2 p.m. tomorrow at a meeting in the clubroom of Patriotic Hall, 1816 South Figueroa street. Mrs. Cora Cox of San Francisco, State President, and Mrs. Isabella Richards of Long Beach, national Second Vice-President, will be present and officiate. The meeting will be preceded by the monthly luncheon.

HE'S OCTOGENARIAN BUT STILL DANCES

Barney Fagan

"I eat what I please at regular intervals; I drink both coffee and tea in moderation; and I walk ten miles a day!"

That is the secret of longevity as expounded yesterday by Barney Fagan, known as "king of soft-shoe dancers," who has just celebrated his eightieth birthday anniversary at M.-G.-M. studios. The octogenarian performer has been dancing since he was 5 years of age, he said. In 1880 he won the world's championship in competition with Horace Wheatley of England. He estimates he has danced more than 100,000 miles and worn out 375 pairs of shoes in the performance.

FUNERAL OF MINING MAN AWAITS KIN

David Morgan, Who Died Saturday, Was Prominent in Arizona Politics

Pending arrival of relatives this morning from out of town, arrangements for the funeral of David Morgan, mining man and former member of the Arizona Legislature, who died Saturday at the Good Samaritan Hospital, have been delayed. He was 64 years of age and resided with his wife and daughter Virginia at 6024 Stafford avenue, Huntington Park. The funeral will be conducted from the Wheat-Halverson chapel in Huntington Park.

Born in Wales, Mr. Morgan came to the United States when he was 18 and went to work in the Pennsylvania coal mines. Shortly afterward he came west and finally settled in Arizona after working in the mines of several other Western States.

In Arizona he was general foreman for the Congress Gold Mining Company, and superintendent of the Imperial Copper Company and the United Verde extension, in the latter post discovering the rich ore bed which accounted for that company's growth. At the time of his death he was vice-president and general manager of the Zenda Gold Mining Company, which operates mines near Barstow.

He was elected to the lower house of the Arizona Legislature in 1907 and to the Senate in 1920, and was chairman of the Senate's Committee on Mines. He was a Shriner and an Elk.

Ship Seizure Decision Near

Announcement has been made by United States Commissioner Head that he will arrive at a decision within about a week as to whether the power boat Chiquita will be seized under a libel action brought by the government.

The case involves an unusual situation, in that the government bases its case upon evidence that the boat was in touch by radio with rum ships and was supposed to land a cargo of liquor on the Southern California shore.

When the boat was taken over by Federal agents, no liquor was found on board, but the government sought to establish the boat's asserted rum-running by the radio messages. The case has been heard and was taken under advisement by Commissioner Head.

WIFE SAYS ROSES BOTTLED

When Mrs. Clara W. Possin asked her husband to bring her home some roses for the table, he brought her instead a bottle of whisky labeled "Four Roses," according to her testimony in Superior Judge Schauer's court. Frank T. Possin was the defendant in Mrs. Possin's annulment case. He told his wife he never drank, she testified, but after her marriage she learned he was drunk most of the time, she said. The annulment was granted.

GAS FUMES KILL WOM

Two Sons Resuscitated by Firemen With Heater Left Burning While They Slept

GLENDALE, Jan. 12. (Exclusive)—Carbon-monoxide [illegible] by a gas heater that had been left burning all night in a bungalow today cost the life of a woman here and nearly efforts by a fire department inhalator squad to revive her sons.

The victim of the deadly gas is Mrs. Mollie J. Lloyd, 67 years of age. Her sons, who tonight were reported out of danger, are Brooks, 28, and Clyde, 32. All were found in the court bungalow occupied by the mother and Brooks at 613-B East Palmer street. The discovery was made by Clyde's wife, Mrs. Linda Lloyd.

For several weeks the elder Mrs. Lloyd had been invalided with heart disease. Last night Clyde, who lives in the next-door bungalow with his wife, decided to stay in the house with his mother and brother.

Early this morning, Mrs. Linda Lloyd went in to awaken the trio. There was no response to her calls, so she left and returned an hour later. Finding her mother-in-law dead and the two men unconscious, she summoned the caretaker, Mrs. Viola Randolph, who, in turn, called Dr. E. Leslie Eames of 101 East Los Feliz Road. The physician notified the fire department, and an inhalator squad in charge of Capt. J. D. Meyer, responded and revived the sons.

Clyde Lloyd is at the Windsor Hospital and his brother at the home of a sister, Mrs. Walter Wilson, 220 North Isabel street.

The mother's body was taken to the Jewel City undertaking parlors, where an inquest will be held. Policeman Drew is conducting an investigation.

RUM LEADS TO SUICIDE ATTEMPTS

Two Women and Girl Reported Drinking Prior to Taking Poison

Drinking of liquor was a prelude if not a contributing cause to suicide attempts by two women and a girl, according the the records of the Georgia-street Receiving Hospital, where the three would-be suicides were treated last night. It is said that all three probably will recover.

The girl is Anne J. Chludel, 16 years of age, a high school student, who lives with her half-sister, Betty Fredericks, 22, at the home of Mrs. Will Voelkel, 6636 West Fifth street. According to the police record, Miss Frederick came home last night and found her half-sister drinking wine in the company of some young friends and rebuked her, whereupon the girl dashed into the bathroom and drained a bottle of poison.

Brooding over a recent separation from her husband, Mrs. Lorraine Boras, 26, of 432 South New Hampshire avenue, is said by the police to have been drinking liquor at her home last night when she suddenly decided to end her life and took poison. After being treated at the receiving hospital, she was removed to the Hollywood Hospital.

Mrs. Ethel Ruby, 37, of 303 East Thirty-fifth street, was dining at her home with her husband, W. H. Ruby, and some friends last night, when she arose from the table, rushed into the bathroom and drank some poison. According to the police, she had become overwrought over family quarrels and had been drinking liquor shortly before she took the poison. After being treated at the receiving hospital, she was taken to the French Hospital.

Nearly $8,000,000 worth of toilet preparations and soaps were exported from the United States in the first half of this year.

SHOCK OF SON-IN-LAW'S DEATH FATAL TO WOMAN

The death of Ralph R. Beeler in a hospital early yesterday was such a shock to his mother-in-law, Mrs. Nellie G. Toone, that she suffered a heart attack when told the news, and in a few hours was dead.

Beeler, owner of a barber shop, was operated on several days ago for appendicitis at the Monte Sano Hospital. His condition grew worse and yesterday morning he died. He lived at 1918 West Sixty-fourth Place and was 40 years of age. His widow, Mrs. Gladys Beeler, is prostrated, and it was necessary to place her under the care of a doctor.

Mrs. Toone was 56 and lived with her husband, Frank P. Toone, at 1435 West Twenty-second street. Toone, who is president of the Southwest Stocking and Support Company, also is prostrated and a physician was called for him. Besides her husband and daughter, Mrs. Toone leaves a son Malcolm, who is associated with his father in business.

A double funeral will be conducted from the Edwards Brothers mortuary, 936 Venice Boulevard, at 2 p.m. tomorrow. Burial will be in Inglewood Park Cemetery.
